THE GREATEST SALE —OF— BOYS AND CHILDREN'S CLOTHING!

Shirt Waists, Hats, Shoes, Etc., of the Age.

The Past Reductions in Prices are no consideration compared with this Great Unloading of first quality Boys' and Children's Clothing. We make these fearfully Low Prices to Reduce our great Boys' Clothing Stock, which, on account of the backward weather is entirely too large. Space will not permit of mentioning the Hundred and One Bargains we offer during this wonderful sale. You know we are keenly sensitive about our advertising statements, consequently you may depend upon getting all or more than you expect for your money, as we are head and shoulders above all others.

LOT 5184—Boys' All-Wool Long Pant Suits from 11 to 18 years, usual price $6.50, reduced to $4.88.

LOT 5453—Boys' Union Cassimere Long Pant Suits, 11 to 18 years, usual price $4.00, reduced to $2.88.

LOT 3905—Boys' All-Wool Jersey Suits, 3 to 9 years, usual price $4.00, reduced to $2.88.

LOT 1730, Boys' Two-Piece Suits, 2 1-2 to 9 years, usual price $1.25 and $1.00, reduced to 63c; Children's Kilt Suits, 2 1-2 to 6 years, reduced to 98c.

25 DOZEN Boys' Shirt Waists, 4 to 14 years each, usual price 25c each, reduced to 13c or two for 25c.

50 DOZEN Boys' Short Pants, 4 to 14 years, usual price 25c, reduced to 10c a pair.

With every Boy's Suit, we give you free of charge a Handsome Pearl Handled Pocket Knife or a Spalding Base Ball and Bat.
With every purchase in our Boy's Department, amounting to $15.00 or over we will give the boy entirely free of charge.

A Year's Subscription to the YOUTH'S COMPANION, the Boys' Popular Paper.

Remember these gifts are entirely free of charge. We simply do this as an advertisement.
We refund the fare to all customers from the Superiors, New and West Duluth and Lester Park.

FORTY PERISHED

A Horrible Accident in the Famous Birkenhead Mines in Bohemia Last Night.

The Timbers of the Roof Caught Fire and the Flames Spread Very Rapidly.

Forty Miners Were Unable to Escape and Are Supposed to Have Perished.

Fourteen Dead Bodies Have Already Been Brought to the Surface From the Pit.

PRAGUE, June 1.—A horrible accident occurred last night at the famous Birkenhead mines, near the Prizbar mines, in Bohemia. The timbers used in supporting the roofs of the mine caught fire and the flames spread from one part of the workings to the other until the whole interior of the mine was a mass of fire.
Five hundred men were working in the mine and all but forty escaped. These unfortunate miners were unable to get out, and it is feared all are either burned or suffocated. Fourteen dead bodies have been brought to the surface.

HENRY WATTESSON'S VIEWS.

The Wisdom of Going Outside New York for a Candidate.

LOUISVILLE, June 1.—Henry Wattesson, under the head "Ugly Work at Syracuse," says in this morning's Courier Journal: "Those Democrats who doubt the wisdom of going to New York for a Democratic nominee for president could want no better vindication of their opinion than is furnished by the convention held at Syracuse yesterday by the protesting and contesting Democrats of the Empire state and published in this issue of the Courier Journal. These show for themselves and need no interpreter or commentary. They disclose and emphasize all the old familiar elements of party disruption and discord; the claim of one faction that it, and it alone, is true; the bias of its advocates; the embodiment of all that is wicked and detestable; the gambit thrown down by the party of the second part to the party of the first part, with defiance and hate; and every preparation launched for a fight of reprisal and revenge, war to the knife and the knife to the hilt."

A Special Session Called.
MADISON, Wis., June 1.—Governor Peck today issued a proclamation calling a special session of the legislature on June 28, to reappoint the state in senate and assembly districts. This move is necessary by the declaration of the supreme court that the former apportionment was unconstitutional.

No Longer a Partner.
MONTREAL, June 1.—John S. Allan, who eloped with the wife of R. Y. Hedden, is no longer a member of his father's firm of H. & A. Allan, of the Allan Royal Mail Steamship company. The partnership was dissolved on May 26, a few days after the young man's elopement.

A Well-Known Steward Dead.
NEW YORK, June 1.—Wesley Barker, steward of the Fifth Avenue hotel, died suddenly yesterday morning. Mr. Barker had been carrying a personal acquaintance with a large number of guests of the hotel from all over the country. He was 50 years of age.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Queen Regent Emma has conferred on Chancellor Capivi the grand cross of the Order of the Lion, founded by King William the First of Holland.

Sir Francis Burdett, cousin of Baroness Burdett-Coutts, died yesterday aged 70.

All the Europeans have left Sereguir, India. There have been 2,450 deaths from cholera there since May 7.

The White Star steamer Teutonic from Liverpool arrived off Scotland lightship at 10:25 a. m. today.

Minnie Morgan, the well-known writer on horses and cattle, and cattle reporter for New York papers, died in St. Francis hospital, Jersey City, today, aged 64.

Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst and wife sailed for Europe on the Germanic today. The reverend reformer will spend a long vacation on the continent.

Mrs. Charles Foster, wife of the secretary of the treasury, sailed for Europe today on the City of Paris.

Jas. W. Vanderbilt, bishop of the Coleman Drayton were among the passengers of the steamer Teutonic which arrived at New York today from Liverpool.

At a meeting to settle upon a final stakeholder in the Sullivan-Corbett contest Phil Dwyer was selected. The backers of the two men deposited $2500 each, being the second installment of $10,000 a side for which they are to fight.
Deputy Sheriff P. A. Martin boarded the schooner Carrie A. Buckman, of Bucksport, Me., lying in Quoddy Roads, to serve a warrant on Capt. Stubbs. The schooner set sail shortly afterward for the West Indies, taking Deputy Sheriff Martin with her.

Cheap Wall Paper.
We will offer special inducements in prices of gilt wall papers for the next week. See us before buying.

SILVER VOTE POSTPONED.

No Vote in the Senate Until After June 14.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Prior to the resumption of the debate in the senate on the silver bill an incidental division took place involving a similar question. Mr. Teller moved to amend one of the bills taken up from the calendar by inserting a provision that in the case of property sold by decree of United States courts legal tender notes should in all cases be legal payment. Mr. Sherman opposed this convention, that there might be special contracts to pay in gold, but on a vote the bill as amended was taken up by 25 to 12, Messrs. Hill and Hunt voting in the majority. No quorum voting, the matter was laid aside informally.
At the close of Mr. Sherman's speech it was unanimously agreed that no vote should be taken on the silver bill until June 14. Mr. Morgan gave notice that he intended to press for a vote before June 21.

Cold Water Candidates.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 1.—The prohibition state convention this morning nominated R. R. Lind, a farmer, for governor. The ticket was completed as follows: Lieutenant-governor, James Lamont; secretary of state, John F. Kilgus; auditor of public accounts, Saml. D. Noel; treasurer, T. S. Marshall; attorney general, A. P. Wright. After the ticket had been completed, George W. Gere, who had been nominated for congress from the state-at-large, declined, and E. Andrews, of Whiteside, was nominated in his place.

Chinamen Killed.
SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 1.—During a fight between factions of Chinamen in the Chinese quarter last night, two Chinamen were killed and several wounded. Seven arrests have been made.

Richmond Nominated.
MADISON, June 1.—The state prohibitionists in convention here today nominated T. C. Richmond for governor. A platform was adopted favoring the principles of the Bennett law.

HE IS VERY MUCH IN IT.

Col. Graves Isn't Saying Much But He Will Get There.

The Graves canvass is progressing vigorously in spite of the attempt which the Kendall crowd are making to convince everybody that Col. Graves is not in it. A Herald reporter met him today and asked him about him about the situation. "Oh, I hear there are going to be some primaries tomorrow," he smilingly answered, "and I am only hoping it won't rain."

The opposition is endeavoring to make a great deal of the Knife Falls matter and charges everything to Col. Graves, entirely overlooking the fact that Mr. Billson, who was in the senate at the time, favored the scheme. Both he and Col. Graves believed it to be for the best interests of Duluth that the bill should pass the legislature.

CAUSED EXCITEMENT.

Secretary Noble's Decision Causes a Little Flurry at the Land Office.

The news of Secretary Noble's decision in the famous section 30 case, as announced in The Herald yesterday, caused quite a little flutter of excitement about the United States land office, and several parties were extremely anxious to place additional filings of scrip on the disputed tract, which is the well-known Warren-Hyde forty, described as the NW 1/4 of section 30. Secretary Noble's decision that Chippewa scrip is not assignable was the cause of the rush, and a very lively lot of people were present armed with Valentine and Porterfield scrip, which is said to be assignable. All the applications were rejected, and it is quite probable that no additional scrip of any nature will be permitted on the land until the present many-cornered contest for title is finished. The action of the secretary allows Hartmann's notice of contest to be heard and is simply favorable to him, nothing more.

ANOTHER DIVORCE CASE.

Mary R. Frost Wants to be Separated From Asa D. Frost.

Mary R. Frost has brought suit against her husband Asa D. Frost for divorce alleging drunkenness and slander. Since December 1891 she has not lived with him. He has accused her of unchastity, she alleges, and on April 18, 1892, accused her of unchastity conduct with Capt. B. E. Inman, at the same time swearing that he would kill Mr. Inman. He also told others that she had been intimate with Capt. Inman and at one time gave a policeman. She insists that she has never violated her marriage vows.

J. M. Tuffe has brought suit to recover $200 on a promissory note from Olaf Olson. A note of issue in the case of the Chapin-Wells Hardware company vs. Edmond Ingalls was filed.

THE LURID NOVEL.

Another Victim of the Half Dime Blood and Thunder Novel Has Appeared.

A Precious Young Rascal Who Now Reposes in the Tombs in New York.

He Smoked Forty Cigarettes a Day and Helped to Rob His Grandfather.

Another victim of the half dime, blood and thunder novel has managed to have himself located on the wrong side of a cell door in the Tombs prison, New York city, for attempting to shoot William Coyle, the bartender of Steve Brodie, the semi-retired and more or less famous bridge jumper, pugilist, pedestrian and all round sport. The name of the youth who has yielded to the blandishments of the lurid novel writer is William C. Housel, aged twenty-one. He is a grandson of Rev. Wilson Housel, of Milltown, N. J., and the precious young rascal has confessed, since his arrest for the assault on the bar tender, that he planned and helped to carry out the burglary which was recently committed at the residence of his aged relative.

Young Housel's desperado instincts are of the most superficial character. He talks about his misdeeds like a boy of twelve. He seems to derive an almost childish pleasure in recounting his adventures. He says that he has very clearly defined ideas as to what a hand should be like, for he has absorbed much literature on the subject. Speaking of the burglary of his grandfather's house, this refreshingly naive scamp said: "The old man is seventy-four years old, and I know he'd be easy to handle in case I was discovered. And then, again, I wanted to try my wits and tools before tackling anything big. If I made a success of this first venture I was going to go out west and spend the rest of my life as an outlaw. I knew there was plenty of money in the house, and I wanted it to help me reach the Creede mining camp, where I was going first. I'd like to drop in there now with my trusty bulldogs and shake the place up a little. The whole west, in my opinion, needs shaking up. It ain't like old times there; it's getting too tame."

Perhaps Mr. Housel might be surprised to learn that in the mining camp at Creede there are a great many men who would endeavor to make things pleasant for him, and who would probably succeed in effectually convincing him that it is not so tame out there as he imagines. However, as Housel is likely to be compelled to take his physical exercise for some time to come within a very limited space, Bob Ford and kindred spirits of Creede need not prepare to leave the camp immediately. They are safe temporarily from the hell-gate, adventure loving, desperate, grandfather robbing Housel. It is perhaps a significant fact that this "desperado" admits that he smokes forty cigarettes a day on an average.

A TERRIBLE ENCOUNTER.

A Hunter Almost Disabled by an Enormous Baboon.

A Cape correspondent describes a deadly fight that has taken place on the Vogel river mountains, in the district of Somerset East, between Mr. Nienke, a hunter, and an immense baboon. Mr. Hurter was out with his gun, when his dogs engaged with a number of baboons that were screaming on the top of the rocky precipice overlooking his homestead. He and the dogs but one were disabled, and the latter was engaged in a life and death struggle with an animal that Mr. Hurter had wounded in the shoulder. Dog and baboon were at the very edge of the precipice. Mr. Hurter had not a single cartridge left, so he picked up two large stones and was in the act of hurling one at the baboon, when unexpectedly a tremendous male baboon, the largest he had ever seen in his life, attacked him.

Mr. Hurter had just time to throw the stone in his upraised hand when the fierce monster was upon him. He seized Mr. Hurter by the leg and bit him with such violence that he thought every bone of his leg was broken. The animal then seized him by the chest, placing his powerful arms around the farmer, and tried for his throat. Mr. Hurter, a man above sixty years of age, was completely mastered. He, however, seized his antagonist by the throat, but with every move the baboon dragged him nearer the edge of the precipice, over which the wounded baboon and dog had just rolled. Mr. Hurter was at his wits' ends when he suddenly remembered he had a penknife in his pocket. If he could only get it out he might ward off the fierce brute by stabbing him in the face.

Mr. Hurter gradually got out the knife and put it in his mouth, the baboon all the while tearing the man's face with its hands. Mr. Hurter was fast becoming exhausted, but the baboon seemed as fresh as at first. With his left hand the farmer managed to open the knife, and stabbed and prodded his assailant, but with little result, the blood drawn seeming to make the baboon still more fierce. By this time Mr. Hurter, severely wounded and quite exhausted, had scarcely a vestige of clothing left. The encounter had lasted an hour and a half, as well as Mr. Hurter could guess, and he was wondering how it would all end. He thought of letting go his grip of the monster and taking his chance.

At this moment, fortunately for the man's life, one of the dogs that had been wounded had sufficiently recovered to attack the baboon in the rear, and the brute, releasing his hold of the farmer, turned its attention to the dog; but after a short rough and tumble fight it walked off along the edge of the precipice, frequently looking around as if uncertain whether it should recommence the combat. "I got home," adds Mr. Hurter, "and the dog, too, after an encounter such as I shall never forget and the like of which I hope never to experience again."

Paper as a Life Preserver.

Paper has not generally been considered as a particularly good medium for life saving purposes, and yet it has done its share in that line. Twice in his experience has John B. Obermeyer, of Chicago, owed his life to the practice of carrying papers in his inside pocket. The first time was on a battlefield in the war. Then the muster roll of his company of the Eleventh Pennsylvania volunteers stopped a musket ball fired at random from the enemy's lines. The second time was recently, when a bullet from a 38-caliber revolver, fired only six feet distant and aimed deliberately at his breast, failed to penetrate an envelope filled with blank bills and a pass-book in his inside vest pocket. After this second event Mr. Obermeyer, it is said, looked coolly at the would be assassin and called him a coward and invited him to shoot a second time, but the latter stood for a moment irresolute, then with his hand trembling laid his revolver on the desk and surrendered to the police.

THERE ARE SOME PEARLS.

There are some pearls which lie beneath the sea. So deep, so deep No diver's hand can reach nor eye behold. Their treasures safely hid and all untold. Through years and years, through storms that o'er it whirl.

Fairer than other pearls, perhaps, this pearl. There are some thoughts which lie within the soul— So far, so far; So deep within the heart's most secret cell, Like some hid star. That but this heart its whisper sweet can tell, Safe hid away and treasured and unsought, Fairer than other thoughts, perhaps, this thought.

—Cora Fabbr.

Unfortunate Chickens.

A farmer who has tried Shanghai fowl and found them wanting, gives the following account of their peculiarities. Their true name, he says, is "Shank high," and he pronounces them rightly named. They have no body at all, and when the head is cut off the legs come right apart. I don't see how they can sit on their eggs—my jackknife can sit as well as they can. They don't sit on the roost the same as other chickens do; not a bit of it. When they attempt to sit as other chickens do, they fall off backward.

They sit when they eat, I know, for I've seen 'em do it. And I've seen 'em try to eat standing, but they couldn't fetch it; for when they peek at a grain of corn on the ground they don't more'n half reach it, but their head bobs right between their legs and makes 'em turn a complete somersault.

I'd as soon see a pair of tongs or compasses walking about my yard as these shank highs.

They crow, too, a long time before day, when it isn't day. Probably because their legs are so long that they can see daylight long before a common chicken can.—Youth's Companion.

Turkish Baths for Convicts.

The Kings county penitentiary has the only free Turkish bath in this country. It is a good one, made by connecting the bottom of the old gas reservoir, putting a platform and railing in it and a skylight in the roof, and filling it to a depth of four and a half feet with warm water. On Saturday the seven hundred convicts are marched in squads to the bath and there made thoroughly clean. They turn to and rub each other vigorously under the eyes of their keepers, and the noise they spend in the bath is probably the loudest of the week to them. The gas reservoir was rendered useless when the electric lights were put in, and what to do with it was a great puzzle to the county authorities till Warden Hayes conceived the idea of turning it into a bathhouse. It is quite large, and its good effects were quickly perceived. The average number of patients in the penitentiary hospital used to be twenty-five; it is now reduced to seven.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Fasting Is Beneficial.

"I have never felt any but good effects from my experiment," said Dr. H. S. Tanner, whose fast of forty days some years ago made him famous. "In fact, I am firmly convinced that if a man should fast for forty days every ten years in his life there is no reason why he should not live to be a hundred years old. He renews his youth every time he does it. The truth is that the American people are all digging their graves with their teeth. I am strict vegetarian. I eat but two meals a day and nothing at all after noon. Meat eating is expensive at the best. You feed an animal ten pounds of grain to get a part of one pound of meat. It is like putting ten gold dollars in the bank and then a year afterward giving the bank a receipt for fifty cents."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Not Uncommon Occurrence.

"The mariners were afraid, and they said, 'Let us cast lots, that we may know on whose account this storm is come.' So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah. They took up Jonah and cast him forth into the sea, and the sea ceased raging."

This, as described in the Scriptures, was rough on Jonah, but it was a very common thing in his day to make such human sacrifices for the purpose of appeasing the elements.—Washington Star.

Love Plants.

Plants used in love divinations are common. In many parts of England and Scotland the familiar southern wood is known as "lad's love," "lad-lovelass," or "lad's love and lass's delight." Another British name for the plant is "old man's love," or simply "old man," from its use recommended by Pliny. In Woburn, Mass., this herb is called "boy's love," and it is said that if a girl tucks a bit in her shoe she will marry the first boy she meets.—Kansas City Journal.

Electric Meters.

That there is still a field for invention in electric meters is shown by the number of patents for devices designed to record the flow of current continually issued from the patent office. A good meter should be reliable, accurate, substantial, cheap and easy to read, but notwithstanding the work of various inventors during several years, there is no such instrument on the market today.—New York World.

Two Shutters in One Camera.

With the object of avoiding the difficulty experienced in photography of obtaining a distinct foreground and background at the same time, a leading French photographer fits his camera with two shutters, one for the foreground and the other for the background, giving that for the former a greater and variable degree of opening.

Ex-Governor Gilpin, the first chief executive of Colorado, says he has seen his state grow from nothing to a population of 750,000. All this has happened in a little more than thirty years, and the governor himself is not yet an old man.

Read What He Says.

Dr. Speer & Co., West Superior, Wis.: Gentlemen—According to the promise I gave I forward you a testimonial of the troubles I had.

I, George H. Thompson, make the following statement regarding the skill of Dr. Speer & Co., whose marvelous cures have won them a high reputation as successful physicians: To whom it may concern: For a long time I had been a constant sufferer from catarrh of the bladder, accompanied by pains in the back, loss of flesh and what is worse that feeling of lassitude which overcomes sufferers from this disease, rendering them wholly unfit for work and making life a complete burden. I treated with several different physicians without obtaining any relief, and had almost abandoned hope when I was prompted to seek the advice of a specialist. Accordingly, in June last, I consulted Dr. Speer & Co., placed myself in their care and now am happy to say that I am completely cured, thanks to their skillful treatment. Any further information will be gladly furnished to all who may feel interested.

Saved the Engineer.

Harry Miller, an engineer stopping at the Norris House in Duluth, has been afflicted for four or five years with loss of self-confidence, with nervousness, sleeplessness, pain in the head and back, flatulence of the muscles and cold, clammy sweat, and was, at the time he began treatment with Dr. Speer four months ago, a total wreck, both in his physical and nervous system. He is now wholly recovered and stands ready to go before any Justice of the Peace and swear to the facts above set forth. Dr. Speer's office is in the New York block in West Superior.

CUT DOWN YOUR SHOE BILL

Attention, Mothers and Fathers! Why not have your Shoes and Kid Gloves as well as those of your Children looking like new continually? Why have them looking worn and rough when you can avoid it? To do this you have only to oil them once a month with Tanner's Oil. Tanner's Oil does not injure but benefits the leather. It is now prepared by us for family uses. It prevents leather getting hard and from cracking, keeps it looking fresh and smooth, makes it soft and pliable and absolutely water-proof. Best of all—Shoes and Gloves kept thus in good condition—will outwear three pair worn ordinarily. One box should last a family of three one year. On ladies' and children's wear you should use it instead of Blacking. Gentlemen can shine their shoes after using it equally as well as before. All we desire is to have you give it a trial. Shoe Dealers, Glovers, and those Dry Goods merchants who sell Kid Gloves should have it on hand to furnish up their stock that has become shopworn. It will give it an absolutely new appearance. Your youngest apprentice can apply it. Price by mail 40 cents. Special price to Dealers.

THEY NEVER WALK

The West Point Cadets Who Never Walk But Must Always be Marching.

They are Much Better Cared for Than Are the Military Students Abroad.

The Famous Academy on the Hudson Claimed to Very Nearly Approach Perfection.

MAN in the backwoods may not know of Yale or Harvard, but it is almost certain that at one time or another he has heard of West Point. Of all American institutions, the military academy at that charming place in the true sense of the word. It is the people's school. Its pupils are summoned from every congressional district.

The nervous, quick boy, with his southern complexion and dialect, rubs his shoulders against those of the stalwart, determined westerner, and the light spirited and delicately framed Californian sits side by side with the reserved and formal New Englander.

The only conditions which appointees have to fulfill before entering the academy are that they must be healthy, have good morals and the necessary scholarly training, as required by the law. During the time the pupils or cadets, as they are called, stay at the academy they are well paid, housed, fed, instructed, and in one word they are well prepared for their future position in life as officers of the United States army. In exchange for all these advantages the nation requires the cadet to work hard for four years and become a brave and faithful soldier. I know of nothing more liberal, more just. In Europe young men have to pay for their training, and there is no more disappointing existence than the one which a poor officer leads abroad.

To be successful at West Point two things are needed, namely: Application and brains. This being so, the number of those who drop out of the course during four years naturally is large, but there is no loss either to the institution or the army. It must be a matter of pride, not only to the cadets but to all Americans, to look at the long list of distinguished men who have been graduated from West Point. Think of the silent, retiring, invincible Grant; the fierce and meteoric Sheridan; ever ready fighter that he was; the quick, nervous and brilliant Sherman; the skillful, chivalric Lee; the gallant, prayerful Jackson; the stately and superb Hancock; the loyal Meade; Stuart, the plucky rider, and ever so many more I could name.

The first thing that strikes forcibly a visitor to West Point is the quiet, academic atmosphere that seems to hang over the whole place. Were it not for the few sentinels, who gravely and silently pace up and down here and there, one would hardly imagine that he was within the boundaries of a military institution. It has often been asserted that too much academic and too little military training is pumped into the heads of the cadets. Barry Lyndon might have said, if he had visited West Point, that the boys in gray had "more head for books than fighting."

This is not so. Year after year history proves that there is just as much fighting spirit in the American army as among the soldiers of any army in the world. West Point is one of the best, if not the very best, military school of its kind on the globe, especially with regard to infantry drill. This, however, is not astonishing, considering that the cadets always march during the four years of their sojourn at the school. They never walk, they march. They march to the early dawn, they march to breakfast, exercise, duty, dinner, supper, and after their day's work is done and the stars begin to shine they march to bed. Each cadet is expected to do five hours of work every day, but as a matter of fact they do much more, including gymnasium exercise. In the classroom they spend only one hour and a half in the forenoon and one hour in the afternoon.

Beside the professional and physical instruction they are taught fencing, riding and dancing. Graduates from West Point are well trained mathematicians, chemists and engineers. They are also masters in the various branches of their profession; they know how forts should be made, guns built, bridges constructed and they are also fairly well acquainted with the literature of their profession. The only shortcoming in the military instruction I know of is that it is carried on with obsolete material. The rifles are old and the gun older, consequently the cadets have no opportunity to become practically acquainted with modern arms. There are a few new magazine rifles and rapid firing guns at West Point, but they are carefully placed in the museum instead of in the hands of the soldier boys. As for marching, no body of troops can rival the cadets, not even the First Regiment of the Prussian Footguards.

THE NEW GYMNASIUM.

The corps at West Point forms one battalion consisting of four companies. Officers and noncommissioned officers are selected from the ranks. The daily routine is simple enough and it becomes perhaps monotonous to many of the boys after some time, yet they have no reason to bemoan their fate. At 6 o'clock a. m. the men fall in with his company at the reveille, at 6:30 he takes breakfast, at 8 sharp he marches to his section room. The fencing lesson begins at 9:30, whence the young soldier returns to barracks at 10:15. Dinner is taken at 1 p. m. At 2 o'clock the men march again to the section room, and afterward they drill from 4:15 to 5:30 p. m. During fall the cadets of the first, second and fourth class receive riding lessons. Nearly all of them become good riders, but the building in which the lessons are given is utterly inadequate for that purpose, and what is worse is very damp during the winter months and consequently unhealthy for both men and horses. Though the cadets do not receive leave of absence until after the second year, they are allowed to visit relatives, social receptions and evening dances are frequent at the academy. From the middle of June to August, the cadets camp, and it is during that time that special attention is paid to their military or rather tactical training. As a rule the boys look eagerly forward to the camping period, which is less monotonous than the barracks life.

After four years of successful study the young cadet graduates and becomes a commissioned officer, but his military education is not finished. If he be an engineer he goes to West Point, if an artilleryist to Fort Monroe, if of the cavalry or infantry to Fort Leavenworth, and if he be chosen light artillery as his arm he proceeds to Fort Riley. The only fault one can find with this arrangement lies in the fact that too much time elapses between the officer's sortie from West Point and his entrance in one of the other postgraduate classes, as one might call it. Often men have gray hair before they are detailed, and are not as well equipped then as they were when younger.

There is no military school in Europe which is conducted on the same principles as West Point. The Ecole Militaire of France at St. Cyr is different altogether. The young man who wishes to enter must have passed his examination as bachelier es lettres or es sciences—that is to say, he must have a college degree before he can apply for admission to the military school. There he receives a two years' military training, for which he has to pay $800 per year. Individually he is much freer, and leave of absence is frequently given for a few days. He also has to pay for his clothing and must sign an engagement that he is willing to serve five years in the regular army whether or not he passes the final examination as officer. Only cavalry and infantry are trained at St. Cyr, while the engineers and artilleryists graduate from the Ecole Polytechnique.

The real cadet school in France is the Prytane Militaire, where boys enter at the age of eleven years and not older than sixteen. This institution is chiefly for sons of officers and of those noncommissioned officers who have died on the battlefield. The life at the Prytane is very secluded and the discipline unnecessarily severe. The military academy of England is Sandhurst, and in many respects it is similar to St. Cyr, though the preliminary scientific examination is less severe than in the latter place. The course lasts two years.

With regard to Germany, I may say that its "Kadettenschule" is an intermediate one for boys whose fathers are either officers or officials. It is necessary that aspirants enter at the age of nine years. The training is hard and entirely done by army officers. From the very first day a German boy enters training begins, and it is not until he is nineteen or twenty years old that he leaves as a full fledged lieutenant. Apart from these institutions, all European countries have staff academies where the science of strategy and ordnance construction is thoroughly taught.

IN SUMMER CAMP. The first thing that strikes forcibly a visitor to West Point is the quiet, academic atmosphere that seems to hang over the whole place. Were it not for the few sentinels, who gravely and silently pace up and down here and there, one would hardly imagine that he was within the boundaries of a military institution. It has often been asserted that too much academic and too little military training is pumped into the heads of the cadets. Barry Lyndon might have said, if he had visited West Point, that the boys in gray had "more head for books than fighting."

Sugar for Jonathan, Rum for John Bull. The shipments of sugar to the United States from British Guiana in 1901 represented in value no less than $3,316,450.49, as compared with $2,562,870.61, the extent of the sugar purchases by Great Britain, which is, however, their principal customer for rum, the shipments of which aggregated in value $1,181,263.19. The whole of the gold went to the United Kingdom, and its value appearing as $1,801,382, and of timber her purchases amounted to $50,198.10, the next largest purchaser having been Belgium, which took woods to the value of $4,569.

The Fruit Crop Outlook. A close observer declares that the present prospect for the fruit grower of California is favorable. The fruit crop in the past is expected to be only about one-half as large as usual. Although the output in California was less than that of last year, the size and quality of the fruit will be improved so much that it will command advanced prices. The value of the fruit crop this year in California is estimated at $20,000,000.

To Regulate Actors. A rule has just been introduced at all the theaters of Italy by which the performers are forbidden, under pain of fine, to receive flowers during a representation or to notice in any way the presence of an audience. The introduction of such a rule in America might prove of advantage.

 U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN.
 June 1.—Three storms are shown this morning
 on the charts, the principal one being over Minnesota, where it was yesterday. Another is over Canada, while an area of high pressure covers
 the Northern and Western states.
 No rain of any consequence has fallen except in the South, where it has been heavy and still continues, and there is every reason to believe that it will extend to this section by tomorrow,
 if not before.
 The temperature has, as a general thing,
 risen from 2° to 15°, except over Minnesota and Dakota, where it has fallen slightly.

DULUTH, June 1.—Local forecast for Duluth
 until 8 p. m. June 2: Fair; probably followed by rain, slight change in temperature.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Forecast till 8 p. m.
 Thursday: For Upper Michigan and Wisconsin:
 Slightly cooler; northwest winds; fair
 Thursday and Friday. For Minnesota and the Dakotas: Fair weather and becoming warmer;
 southerly winds Thursday.

JOHN J. COSTELLO.
 Every head will bow in sorrow at the announcement of the death of John J.
 Costello. Though he has been seriously ill for many weeks, and all hope of his recovery was abandoned some time ago,
 Mr. Costello's death will prove a severe shock to many friends throughout the city and the state, and the sorrowing relatives will have the sympathy and condolence of all in their sad bereavement.

John J. Costello was a man of sterling worth, a staunch friend and a generous opponent. He was a self-made man, and the success which attended his commercial ventures was due to earnest,
 hard work and well judged enterprise.
 His was a frank and warm hearted nature, and the many acquaintances that he made speedily became his loyal friends. Duluth never had a truer friend than John J. Costello, and he never lost an opportunity to advance the city's interests. Though possessing in a marked degree the confidence of his fellow citizens, who would have delighted to honor him to almost any extent in their power, Mr. Costello was not ambitious for political honors.
 The only public office that he held was that of alderman of the Third ward,
 which he filled for four years, declining
 a third term on account of the increasing claims of his private business.

Mr. Costello's course in the council was marked by the same honesty of purpose and earnest labor which he ever exhibited in his business pursuits and the city was never served more faithfully or more efficiently. His was an active life, and "after life's fitful fever he sleeps well." It seems sad that he should be cut off while in the very prime of life and at a time when he was in a position to enjoy the fortune which his ability and labor had amassed, but the decrees of Providence are inexorable
 and we can only bow in silent submission to the Supreme Power that wills and guides the destinies of all.

COL. GRAVES' CANDIDACY.
 One of the weakest points which the Kendall adherents are endeavoring to make against Col. Graves' candidacy is that he did not become a candidate until
 a week ago and it is not right that he should now oppose Mr. Kendall who came into the field under the impression that he would have no opposition. This is a very flimsy claim and shows how very hard it is for the Kendall supporters to find anything to say against Col.
 Graves' record.

Col. Graves' position in this campaign has been that which he has always assumed in regard to public offices. He is not a self-constituted candidate for congress. Col. Graves never sought any public position, of his own volition. He has never during his public career shoved himself forward, but, on the contrary,
 he has hesitated even when the people have demanded his services. So in this campaign. Col. Graves said truly several weeks ago that he was not a candidate,
 but if the people wanted him he might consider the matter.

Shortly after this many of the best and most earnest Republicans of St. Louis county, who feel that
 Col. Graves is by all odds the best equipped man in Duluth to represent the Sixth district in congress, started a movement in his behalf. It was a popular movement and it needed but a start
 to rapidly assume large proportions.
 Meetings were held, petitions were circulated, asking Col. Graves to become a candidate, and finally, after several days' careful consideration of the situation, he accepted. He is, therefore, a regularly called candidate and his friends are confident that at the primaries tomorrow evening he will be the winning candidate.

But who asked Mr. Kendall to become a candidate? Did any large body of Republicans wait on him and ask his services, or did even one person sign a petition requesting him to be a candidate? In fact, is he not a self-constituted candidate?

THE LAST CHANCE.

It is rather disheartening to notice that the vested proprietor of the News did not have sufficient moral stamina to announce this morning whether the News prefers Col. Graves or Mr. Kendall as a congressional nominee. Possibly in the case of the vested proprietor "there are moments when he wants to be alone
 —and this is one of them"—but unless he wants to remain forever under the accusation of moral cowardice, he must emerge from his shell and take some decided stand upon this important question. How can the News ever lay claim in the future to be a Republican paper if it now refuses to advise the members of the party what their duty is in the premises? Surely one of the special duties of a party organ is to advise the party.

There is still one chance for the News
 to let its readers know who it believes to be the best man. It says this morning:
 "Let the best man win." But who is the best man? Is Col. Graves or Mr. Kendall the best man? What does the News think? A few days ago the News said that if any information was desired on this point, the anxious enquirer could interview the editor personally. Well, the vested proprietor, who is also the editor, likewise the business manager, likewise the superintendent of advertising—in fact a regular modern Pook-bah—he goes around the hotel lobbies expressing the opinion that Col. Graves is the best man. Now if he really believes that is correct and he is not talking for effect, why does not the News support Col. Graves? Perhaps the News will do so tomorrow morning.
 That will be its last opportunity to show
 that it is not entirely devoid of courage or afraid to express an opinion. Will it embrace the opportunity?

CONVENTION REPORTS.

The Herald has made arrangements
 for very complete reports of the Republican national convention at Minneapolis, much more complete than those furnished to any other paper in Duluth.
 The Herald, being the owner of both the United Press and the Associated Press
 day franchises, possesses unequalled facilities for securing quick and full reports of all the proceedings of the convention, while a special correspondent
 will furnish all the gossip incident to such political gatherings.

The Herald editorial rooms will be connected with the convention hall by a direct wire, and we will consequently be in a position to obtain very early reports of all that happens. Special editions will be issued during the days of the convention whenever warranted by the importance of the news. All the proceedings of the convention will be held during the day time and therefore The Herald will be able to give in its last edition each day a full report of the convention's doings up to the hour of adjournment.

The importance of the minister kissing
 the bride has been shown in a recent case in Brooklyn. A father endeavored to get his daughter separated from her husband on the ground that she was drunk at the time she was married. The officiating minister, however,
 knocked out the father's plea by asserting that he saluted the bride and if anything stronger than lemonade had passed her ruby lips he would have detected it.

The Minneapolis Tribune gives such an elaborate account of a baby burr
 which was foaled in that city a few days ago that one would suppose it was a novelty. The general belief has been that Minneapolis is filled with burros, especially in the vicinity of the flouring mill district.

The St. Paul Dispatch says: "The facility with which humanity reconciles
 itself even to the most unbearable conditions embodies the explanation of the wonderful vitality of the race, as well as the wonderful universality of lying."
 And of this Dispatch is a striking example.

"Where will the gamblers go?" asks
 the Saratoga, N. Y., Union. Well, that is not so important a question as what they will go by. By the way, Editor Pardee has been shouting for many weary months "that the gamblers must go,"
 but they do not appear to take the hint.

Minneapolis is rapidly filling with convention visitors, but the big rush will not be reached until Monday. The people of Minneapolis have made ample preparations and there is no doubt they will be able to take care of all who attend.

Blaine will write another letter of declination, Blaine will not write another letter. These are the conflicting statements that come over the wires several times a day. One is as likely to prove true as the other.

The St. Peter Herald says it reads a great deal about the tin plate liar, but has never seen him. The Herald should get out and mingle with the politicians of both parties, and it will find that he is quite numerous.

The friends of Col. Graves are not found around the streets boasting of what they will do, but they are confidently awaiting the result of the primaries.

It is noticeable that the Cleveland sentiment among the Democracy is steadily increasing. His nomination seems more certain than it did two weeks ago.

John Sherman delivered an eloquent
 and able speech on silver in the senate yesterday. It was a splendid review of the financial credit of the United States
 and an eloquent plea on behalf of sound money.

From the manner in which he continues to dodge votes in the senate on the silver question, it is evident that David B. Hill intends to maintain his title as an artful dodger.

Col. Ingersoll says his voice is still for Gresham. Yes, and no one has forgotten how that voice killed Gresham's chances in the Chicago convention.

Every Republican should vote at the primaries tomorrow evening. Vote for delegates favorable to the nomination of
 Col. Graves for congress.

Gambling houses are now being licensed in Omaha, according to a dispatch today. This system is not likely to spread to many other cities.

The Venezuelan rebels are winning victory after victory. Very soon they will cease to be rebels, if their victories continue.

Mr. Blaine sat for photographs while in New York last week. Will he send the negative to Minneapolis?

William Henry Hulbert has entered a monastery. Perhaps he may meet Wilfred Murray there.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Boccaccio" Tonight.

The Jeanie Winston Opera company opens its engagement tonight at the Lyceum in "Boccaccio." The Evening Telegram, of Superior, says of their appearance in this opera:
 "Miss Winston in the title role has a pleasing stage presence, and acts with considerable grace and ease. The score of "Boccaccio" is rather trying for a woman's voice, and it speaks well for her powers that she carried the part of the adventure-seeking student so well.
 Miss Johnson, the prima donna, has a pleasing voice of good quality, and gave a satisfactory rendition of the part of Fiametta. Messrs. Bell and Tyrrell as the cooper and grocer, supplied the comedy of the piece and put plenty of life and action into their respective parts. The chorus is well drilled and quite up to the average. The coopers' chorus, one of the most taking airs in the opera, was well done and deserved
 the encore it received."

THEY WERE DISCHARGED.

No Case Against White & Co., the Employment Agents.

The case against White & Co., in the municipal court this morning for running an employment agency without a license
 was dismissed for the fact that the police
 had no show of authority for arresting
 the proprietors as there is no ordinance
 calling for a license, and the police were
 at fault in interfering with the firm.
 Frank Riley, who is alleged to have stolen $4, was held to the grand jury in $500, but he immediately drew his check for the amount of the bail and was set at liberty. P. J. Liden and Francis Connolly who were fighting on Lake avenue
 at 1 o'clock this morning, were each fined $5 and the times the times the man with a frightful thirst, was charged with being drunk. His appearance would seem to bear out the charge but he pleaded not guilty and will be tried this afternoon.

Will Go in a Body

A meeting will be held tomorrow night at headquarters of the Republican club of Duluthians who are going to the Minneapolis convention, and an effort is being made to have them go down in a body. Parties intending to go to the convention and to the several meetings of Republican clubs which will be held during convention in the convention hall, should not fail to attend the meeting tomorrow so that Duluth may be properly represented with proper display.

JOINED HIS MAKER

The Spirit of John J. Costello Passed to Another and Better World Last Night.

Honored and Esteemed by All, His Death is Heard With the Most Profound Sorrow.

He is Cut Down in the Prime of an Unusually Successful Business Career.

After a long and protracted struggle John J. Costello is at rest. In the midst of his family and surrounded by sorrowing relatives the last sacraments of the Roman Catholic church were administered to him and he passed away at 11:55 o'clock last night. For months he has fought the conqueror of all but he was to be taken to his Maker, and it was to no purpose. He was afflicted with cancer of the stomach and the disease defied the best medical treatment. This last winter he was taken with a severe attack of dyspepsia and later it seemed to develop into a severe stomach trouble. A trip to California was taken in hope that the change of scene might benefit him. For a time it seemed to and he rallied, but it was only for a time. His relatives hoped against hope until an examination showed the existence of cancer and then it was realized that there was no chance for recovery.

There was not a more popular man in Duluth than John J. Costello and his untimely death will be heard with profound sorrow. It seems hard that he should be cut off in his prime and almost at the beginning of a honored business career. Mr. Costello was born in Crook, county Limerick, a little over thirty-seven years ago and was the youngest of five children. His father Edmund Costello died in 1857 and his mother Johanna Costello in 1888. The family came to America in 1852 when Mr. Costello was ten years old. They settled in Long Island for a time and afterward came to Minnesota. Later they went to Wisconsin and in 1870, John who was then a little over 14 years of age came to Duluth. He made his home with Camille Potier. In 1873 he went into the hardware store of his cousin, R. A. Costello, and learned the trade of a tinsmith. Shortly afterward he purchased this branch of the business and here began his career. No better testimonial to Mr. Costello's business ability and success is needed than the knowledge that his humble beginning was made on a cash capital of $25. In 1876 R. A. Costello sold out the entire business to J. J. Costello, and he conducted it alone until 1887, when the former returned from Graceville and purchased a half interest in the firm. It then became J. J. & R. A. Costello, the present firm name.

Mr. Costello's public career has not been large, but he has served as alderman for several years and was regarded as one of the ablest representatives that ever sat in the council. He was elected first from the Second ward without opposition and took his seat Jan. 11, 1887. Two years later, when changes in the boundaries of the ward had been made, he was again returned to the council from the Third ward. On March 5, 1889, he was elected president of the council after one of the most exciting contests in the history of that body. Twenty-one ballots were taken and after the third or fourth the announcement always came, J. J. Costello 6, H. Armstrong 6. On the twenty-first ballot Mr. Costello received 7 votes. While he was president of the council Mr. Costello was also called upon to serve as acting mayor and often for long periods, and in this capacity he showed marked ability. The first library board was appointed by him and some of the members are surviving today. He also served as a delegate to the waterways convention and afterwards to the Detroit convention.

Mr. Costello was married in 1881 to Miss Anna Weber, daughter of L. B. Weber, a former Duluth merchant, now living in Los Angeles, Cal. Six children, Blanche, Bessie, Ethel, Clara, Verona and John Joseph, the oldest 10 years and the youngest, 9 months of age, survive their father.

The funeral services will be held Friday morning. The casket will be taken from the house at 7:30 o'clock to the Cathedral where the solemn mass for the dead will be said. Bishop McGillicuddy will preach the funeral sermon. The body will be interred in the Catholic cemetery.

THEY ALL COME.

Some Saginaw Lumbermen Who Will Transfer Operations to Minnesota. A correspondent in the Chicago Lumberman writes as follows on some of the Saginaw lumbermen who are looking toward the head of the lakes:

"I understand that S. H. Webster & Son, of Saginaw, Mich., own 7,000 acres of valuable land near Duluth, Michigan men seem to have captured a large slice of Minnesota. The Hills, Mitchell & McClure, Merrill & Ring, Wright, Davis & Co., Duncan & Brewer are all old Saginaw lumbermen, and own large timber and mining properties at the head of Lake Superior, as do the Cranberry Lumber company and Sibley & Bearinger. I was told the other day that when the A. W. Wright Lumber company and the Wells-Stone company, of Saginaw, finish their timber in the Saginaw region, and they have only 100,000,000 feet left, they will transfer their entire lumbering and mercantile business to Minnesota. Without these concerns neither the Saginaw valley nor Eastern Michigan will seem quite the same that they were, however prosperously they may continue to grow. The 100,000,000 feet of pine owned by the A. W. Wright Lumber company will be exhausted in three years. It is a pretty big firm and its connections are still bigger.

"The Lumberman recently referred to C. M. Hill, of Saginaw, and his rich investment in iron ore on the Mesaba range. The land was purchased at less than $5 an acre for the timber there was on it. When the ore discovery was made Mr. Hill sold one-half of his three-quarter interest for $50,000, receiving the timber and a royalty of 30 cents a ton on iron taken out on his three-eighths interest remaining. I understand a stock company with a capital of $5,000,000 was formed, a number of mines are in operation and Mr. Hill is venturing on the timber. The ore is of a high grade and produces Bessemer iron of the finest quality, while it is so easy of access, being from one to twenty-five feet from the surface, that it is proposed to mine it with a steam shovel. Thus some people have riches thrust upon them."

THEY WANT JUSTICE.

Colored Men Want Equality With the Whites. Yesterday was the day selected by the colored people of the country as a day of fasting and prayer for their persecuted brothers in the South and it was generally observed in Duluth. Religious services were held in the afternoon at St. Mark's Methodist church, Rev. R. Taylor preaching the sermon. In the evening the colored people, with their band, came over from Superior, and a large meeting was held at the Republican headquarters hall.

The meeting was almost a counterpart of the great Chicago mass meeting a few weeks ago when the colored men protested loudly against the outrages to persons of their color. The hall was draped in mourning and everything was calculated to impress the colored men rather with the failure of the government to protect them than to rejoice because they are entitled to citizenship under the laws of the country and given rights equal to the whites. The lynching of negroes in the South for crimes which are becoming so frequent lately and the failure of the government to protect and give them trials was the principal cause for the establishment of this memorial day.

Rev. R. Taylor was the first speaker. He said that although they had been taught the power of prayer by their parents, in the light of the great wrongs being done every day colored men were beginning to believe that there is no virtue in it. The colored people, he declared, have suffered every torture from the whites. When any difficulty arose between a colored man and a white, it is alleged to be assault or rape. Mr. Taylor said that President Harriet, when asked, that he had no time to consider their grievances. The colored people of the South have been asked why they don't leave the South, and Mr. Taylor said that it was because they pay over $200,000,000 in taxes now and have their educational institutions and churches there; their men are established in the ranks of every profession.

Orator B. A. Lewis, of Republican city convention fame, followed in a vigorous speech. He declared that this large meeting was a rebuke to the outrages that have been committed against the colored people. Every day, he said, beneath the hand of injustice. The conviction of a white man for an outrage on a colored woman is unknown, but if there is a shadow of suspicion against a colored man he is taken to the nearest tree and hanged. The speaker closed with an appeal to heaven that if there is justice it should be given the colored men under the flag of the country.

C. W. Dorsey, R. H. Blackstone also spoke and C. F. Douglas, of Superior. The following resolution was passed: Whereas, The 31st day of May has been set aside for fasting and prayer to Almighty God for relief from the terrible persecutions which have been subject to, therefore, be it

Resolved, That as the president of the United States admits that the limits of his office leaves him powerless to act for the better protection of the colored people against lynch law and mobs, that we hereby appeal to the national legislature praying that justice be meted out to all, regardless of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

Company A's Inspection. Brigadier General Bunker, of the Third regiment, inspected Company A last evening and was thoroughly satisfied. He complimented the boys in a short speech on their appearance and conduct, and the company of Duluth had never passed a more creditable inspection. He not only expressed his thanks to the officers, but to the men in the ranks as well.

Sunday School Convention. The thirty-fourth annual convention of the state Sunday school association will be held in the Hennepin avenue Methodist church in Minneapolis from June 13 to 15. It is expected that every Sunday school in the state will send delegates, and reduced railroad rates have been secured. The citizens of Minneapolis will entertain the visitors.

If you want to drive over the boulevard, drive your carriage on the incline cars after tea. They will run until 9 p. m.

Miss Augusta Ostrom and Chorus.

Admission to these exercises will be confined to persons participating in the parade and those holding tickets, which are obtainable from the committee. After the program is given the local lodges and cantons will escort the grand lodge to the headquarters and the visiting lodges to their trains.

Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock the session of the grand lodge opens at Odd Fellows hall and the Rebekah degree lodge convenes at 10 o'clock at the same hour in the Hayes block. In the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock a steamboat excursion will be given to the representatives of the Grand Lodge and the Rebekah degree lodge by the local Rebekah degree lodge. In the evening a local degree staff of the Odd Fellows will exemplify work in the first and second degrees. A local degree staff will also exemplify work in the Rebekah degree.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

The Duluth Furnace Company Don't Like the Superior Coke.

The Light, coal and iron company has lost the trade of the Duluth Furnace company on coke for the reason that their article is of an inferior quality. The furnace company has not been satisfied with it for some time, and a short time ago ordered 100 cars of Connellsville coke from Pennsylvania. It was delivered here at $7.50 per ton. It costs $6.25 per ton for the West Superior coke delivered, but an experiment with the Connellsville coke has proven that the company could better afford to pay $9 per ton for it than to pay $6.50 for West Superior coke. It requires less than one ton of the former to make a ton of pig iron where it requires one and one-half tons of the latter and the former gives the better quality of iron. Two boat loads of about 2500 tons each, which is exactly the same as the Connellsville, one has been unloaded at the Pioneer docks and the total cost delivered is only $4.60. The cost of transferring it to the furnace will bring the total up to about $5 per ton.

The difference means considerable. The furnace was using from 175 to 200 tons of Superior coke when running at full capacity, but will not use much over 100 tons of the new. It is also found that it is practicable to ship the coke in. It has always been argued that the load case, unloading and the long trip would break it up so badly that it would be hard to use it. This is not true, however, for while there is some breakage it is very little.

Take the Twenty-first avenue ferry line for West Superior. Boat every half hour.

THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION.

Comments of the New York Papers on Its Probable Effects.

New York, June 1.—Commenting on the Syracuse convention the World says: "The managers of the Syracuse assembly proved themselves to be very poor politicians. They were apparently so elated at finding themselves in a convention which they could control that they lost sight of everything except a temporary elevation of themselves. In their resolutions they laud Grover Cleveland, but in electing a contesting delegation to Chicago they have done more than all Mr. Cleveland's enemies have been able to accomplish toward preventing his nomination. William E. Grace deliberately imperilled the success of the candidate for president whom he professes to favor in order to put himself at the head of a new machine in New York. It was at once the most selfish and the most stupid move ever made by an ambitious politician."

The Recorder says: "Perhaps the most important action of the convention was the creation of a permanent organization. The 'Dandelions' declare they have come to stay, so that there are now two Democratic parties in New York. What effect this will have on Tammany hall is one of the interesting political problems of the summer and fall. Will they enter the race for the mayoralty and nominate a county ticket against Tammany? The 'Dandelions' appear to be the masters of the situation. Will they be able as a condition of peace to strip Hill of whatever Tammany support he has and give it to Mr. Cleveland? A great field for political intrigue and wire-pulling was opened up at Syracuse."

The Times says: "It was a thoroughly representative body and there was not a sign of the cut and dried methods of the ordinary party machine. The action of the convention to elect to last was most judicious. Notwithstanding the intense enthusiasm that prevailed, it was ruled by a spirit of fairness. The real convention of the Democracy of the Empire was held in Syracuse yesterday, and took the action which was in accordance with its will."

The Sun says: "These mugwumps are now sounding the depths of political folly beyond the measurement of any gauge of vanity. They are only to be parallel of their foolishness in the found in their own previous proceedings. It will, however, occasion no damage to the Democracy."

TWENTY PEOPLE POISONED.

Five Physicians in Attendance and One-Third Will Die.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 1.—The family of C. B. Woolen, consisting of himself, his wife and five children, and Frank Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stage, Frank Melbourne, Frank Olmstead, Frank Stuart, L. H. Stevens, R. Noland, Dr. James Hardcastle, W. Flack, J. W. Snow, Al. Snow and Edith Gordon, (colored), who works for the family of boarding house keepers, were taken suddenly and violently ill shortly after they had eaten their breakfast yesterday morning.

They were all seized with vomiting, suffering the most excruciating agony. The paroxysm of several of the sufferers rendered them unconscious. Five physicians are in attendance and it is thought at least one-third of them will die. It is a case of poisoning, but the character of the poison and how it was administered are mysteries both to the physicians and police who are making an investigation.

CATHOLICS ARE EXCITED.

Disturbed by Threats by President Palacio, of Venezuela.

NEW YORK, June 1.—A special cable dispatch to the Herald from Caracas, Venezuela, says: President Palacio is distressed at the reports reaching him from all parts of the country about the part taken by priests in the uprising. He has sent word to the rebelling priests to continue to side with the rebels, there will be a dissolution of church and state.

The Catholic population is greatly agitated over this threat, as they fear Palacio may imprison the prelate if he refuses to interfere. They are arming themselves to resist Palacio in such a contingency. The rebel general Mora is again threatening Puerto Cabello. The railway between this port and Valencia is strongly guarded by government troops.

MOB LAW DENOUNCED.

A Colored Pastor Addresses His People in Significant Words.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 1.—Rev. J. A. Whittaker, pastor of the Central Congregational church, in a sermon last night urged his people to strive and better their condition, to show the whites that they were capable of advancement. He denounced mob law in unmeasured terms and concluded as follows: "Advocate if possible, but if it is necessary you are threatened with deportation, death, take with you some of your enemies."

MURDERED HIS WIFE.

An Ohio Man Killed His Wife and Then Suicided.

BELLAIRE, O., June 1.—On May 14 Charles Hill enticed his divorced wife from Wheeling, W. Va., to Clarington, O., eight miles below this city, and murdered her in a horrible manner. He was captured and taken to Woodsfield jail for safe-keeping. Yesterday his wife died and when the prisoner heard of it he cut his throat with an old case knife, nearly severing the head from his body and was found dead in his cell.

UPRISING IN HONDURAS.

An Attempt to Overthrow President Lova's Government.

NEW ORLEANS, June 1.—News was received here yesterday of an insurrection in Honduras. The rebels attacked San Pedro, the inland terminus of the railroad from Puerto Cortez, and were repulsed finally after a desperate struggle. Puerto Cortez had also been attacked with a like result. The insurgents made an attempt to overthrow the government of President Lova.

A BIG SURPRISE.

The Great Annual English Derby Run Upon the Epsom Downs This Morning.

La Fleche Was the Favorite, but Only Managed to Get the Second Place.

The Rich Stakes Were Captured by Sir Hugo, Who Was a Rank Outsider.

LONDON, June 1.—Derby day opened with light showers and sunshine and an occasional breeze sweeping over the Epsom downs. The crowd is greater than usual, perhaps. A few weeks ago the odds were all in favor of Orme, the duke of Westminster's wonderful 3-year-old. Then came the report that Orme had been poisoned. The sporting public hesitated to believe that such an outrage had been committed, and for a few days, even in face of the reports, the odds continued greatly in favor of Orme, being as much as five to one for the Derby. The Duke of Westminster said that he would run Orme at the Derby even if the colt had to go on three legs. But as time went on it became evident that Orme, if not ruined beyond ultimate rescue, would at least have to be taken from the Derby for this year and he was withdrawn a few days ago.

La Fleche, Baron Hirsch's brown filly, had been a favorite even while Orme was in the field and when Orme was disabled, La Fleche took the leading place with better. The book makers, however, have shown no reluctance to take up all the bets offered on La Fleche and some experienced sporting men have no hesitation to give their opinion that Baron De Hirsch's mare would not be the first in the race, notwithstanding her victorious record of last year when she swept the Chesterfield stakes at Newmarket, the Lavant stakes at Goodwood, the Nassau stakes at Goodwood and the Champagne stakes at Doncaster. Some how certain horsemen who ought to know have had a mysterious lack of confidence in La Fleche.

The public, however, have remained true to the principle that past victories are the best assurance of future triumphs. Therefore when the news came the other day that Baron De Hirsch was critically ill in Paris, and if he died La Fleche would be withdrawn, there was another sensation almost as great as when the reported poisoning of Orme was announced and the extraordinary spectacle was witnessed of sporting announcements bearing to eager patrons news from the death bed of a prominent man.

Bonavista, Mr. Rose's chestnut colt by Ben d'Or out of Vista came prominently to the front. Bonavista won the Woodstock stakes at Epsom last year and was third in the New stakes at Ascot, which were won by Lord Arlington's Goldfinch, and was third in the Chesterfield stakes at Newmarket, last July. La Fleche beat second and Col. Noyes' Lady Hermit in the New stakes at Ascot, which were won by Lord Arlington's Goldfinch, and was third in the Chesterfield stakes at Newmarket, last July. La Fleche beat second and Col. Noyes' Lady Hermit in the New stakes at Ascot, which were won by Lord Arlington's Goldfinch, and was third in the Chesterfield stakes at Newmarket, last July. La Fleche beat second and Col. Noyes' Lady Hermit in the New stakes at Ascot, which were won by Lord Arlington's Goldfinch, and was third in the Chesterfield stakes at Newmarket, last July.

Mr. Rose, the owner of Bonavista, also has shown a great deal of confidence in his brown colt Damien, by St. Damien out of Distaff Shore. St. Damien last year won the Stud Produce stakes on the Chesterfield course at Newmarket, beating Baron Hirsch's brown colt Windgall, which was second, and Prince Soltykoff's black or brown filly, Shining Star, which was third. St. Damien was second for the Bedford 2-year-old plate, being beaten by Mr. Milner's Desdemona and was second in the Thirty-Ninth Triennial stake at Ascot when Lord Arlington's Polyglot was first and Desdemona was sixth in the race. This is considered by horsemen a most promising record and as giving good reason for Mr. Rose's faith in St. Damien.

The winner of the Derby was Sir Hugo, a chestnut colt by Wisdom out of Manoeuvre, and owned by Lord Bradford. Sir Hugo won last year the Rous memorial stakes at Goodwood in July and the Post stakes in the Newmarket. La Fleche was second and Bonavista third. This is an utter surprise to the betting public, as Sir Hugo had hardly been considered by sporting men as having even a chance. Sir Hugo was beaten last year at Ascot for the thirty-ninth triennial by Polyglot and St. Damien both in the field today, and was beaten by La Fleche for the Champagne stakes at Doncaster last September. Gosson being second and Sir Hugo third and was only seventh in the race for the Middlepark plate, last October, when Orme was first, El Diable second, Gamble third, Stangelo fourth, Polyglot fifth and Silver Six sixth. It will therefore be seen that all the probabilities were against Sir Hugo. The betting was 33 to 1. The Frenchmen are greatly elated over Bucentaur's place in the race and many of them won a good deal on the result.

Another Fight in Prospect. NEW ORLEANS, June 1.—The Olympic club has cabled to London offering a purse of $15,000 to either O'Brien, Pritchard or Hall to fight Fitzsimmons before that club in September at the same time as the Sullivan-Corbet contest.

Beaten to Death.

CELINA, O., June 1.—In a saloon fight here last night Bill Miller, John Gibbons and Matt Tigh beat Daniel Benjamin to death with beer glasses. The three murderers were arrested.

MAY NOT BE PARDONED.

French Opposition to the Pardon of Mr. Deacon.

PARIS, June 1.—The question whether Edward Parker Deacon will be pardoned is still a subject of interest, popular discussion and much diversity of opinion, the influences which were exerted against Mr. Deacon before and during his trial, being adverse to his release. The Gaulois declares that one of the jurymen in the Deacon trial besought his colleagues to join him in a petition to President Carnot to pardon Mr. Deacon, but the majority of the jury declined to take part in any such movement, asserting that Mr. Deacon deserved to endure the full penalty to which he had been sentenced.

According to a dispatch from Nice, Mr. Deacon continues in the best of health. Many of the people, and especially the foreign visitors, would like to make a lion of Mr. Deacon, if permitted by the rules of the prison, but while Mr. Deacon is treated with every consideration which the rules permit, they are not relaxed in his behalf and his friends and admirers are forced to content themselves with the privileges granted to the friends of other prisoners in the same position.

Mr. Deacon has heard indirectly, it is said, from his wife and children since his imprisonment, and it is reported that Mrs. Deacon would not be averse to a reconciliation, upon her husband's release. This, Mr. Deacon's friends say, is impossible.

RIGHT HAVE ACCEPTED.

The Countries that Will Take Part in the Silver Conference.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—It is officially stated that acceptances have been received by the United States government from eight countries of Europe of the invitation to participate in the bi-metallic conference. The countries having accepted are understood to be England, Italy, Germany, France, Austria, the Netherlands, Spain and Portugal.

The conference will probably be held in Brussels. The three members of the conference who will represent the United States are Judge Lambert Tree, of Chicago; Henry W. Cannon, president of the Chase National bank of New York and formerly comptroller of the currency, and Senator John Sherman.

Secretary of the Treasury Foster yesterday visited Henry W. Cannon, of the Chase National bank. It is said that their conference resulted in Mr. Cannon's acceptance of the place of commissioner to the international monetary conference. There will be five commissioners, but it is stated but one will be from New York.

A SCANDAL RECALLED.

Mrs. Osborne, the Pearl Thief, Has Become a Mother.

LONDON, June 1.—Mrs. Florence Osborne, the defendant in the recent celebrated prosecution for the theft of pearls from Mrs. Graves, has become a mother. The child is a daughter. Mrs. Osborne is said to be in good health. Since her release from prison Mrs. Osborne has been in strict seclusion, attended by her husband, and surrounded by every comfort he is able to provide. Mrs. Osborne was released on May 1.

Capt. Osborne has leased for her use Kilmendage, a large and beautiful estate in North Devonshire, where they have lived in complete retirement. Capt. Osborne recently resigned his command in the army.

A DELEGATE DROPS DEAD.

Sudden Demise of a Prominent Philadelphia Man.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—John S. McKinlay, lawyer, politician and one of the most prominent citizens of Philadelphia, dropped dead in the rooms of the Republican city committee last night. He was a delegate to Minneapolis and was discussing his approaching retirement in an animated manner with a group of influential Republicans when he was seized with a fainting spell. He sat down on a sofa and in a few minutes fell over dead. His demise was due to heart failure.

IN SPECIAL SESSION.

Governor Burke's Message to the North Dakota Legislature.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 1.—A special to the Journal from Bismarck, N. D., says: Governor Burke in his message to the special session of the North Dakota legislature says: "An extraordinary occasion having arisen by reason of the lack of provision in the laws of the state whereby the representatives to the electoral college are chosen and for canvassing the returns, I have, as provided by the constitution, called you together in special session. The sentiment of the people also warrants me in calling your attention to the matter of an additional appropriation for the World's Fair fund. I leave these matters in your hands."

WOMAN AND HOME.

A Comparison of the Middle-Aged Unmarried Women of Yesterday and Today.

Women in India Remain Secluded But Still Exercise a Very Strong Influence.

Blackening Stoves—Keep in Touch With Your Children—The Duty of Children.

"If I am not married by the time I am thirty, I'll put on a gown and cap like a sister of charity and renounce all the vanities of life." Have we not all heard such speeches from girls in their teens? Have we not perhaps given forth such sentiments ourselves at that callow period?

The point of view of the girl of sixteen, absurd as we may deem it, is after all a species of atavism, or return to the old ideas in which our ancestors were trained, when matrimony and social extinction were the only alternatives presented to the impossible mind of the properly educated young woman; and thirty, in the ancient chronology, marked the last possible day of grace. Age is, to a certain extent, a relative term depending very much upon the conditions of life and the plane of thought. In the last century both men and women were pushed forward earlier into the arena—political, social and domestic—and consequently often ran through their allotted career of pleasure and pain long before they had reached threescore years and ten.

The middle aged spinster of our time holds no unenviable position, nor does she feel it incumbent upon her to seat herself in a shady corner of the drawing room because she does not happen to possess the distinction of a husband. What became of her in the past it is impossible to say. She was called "old maid," and that was probably the end of her career. Now we seldom hear the term applied, and would even be in doubt as to what old maids were supposed to look like were it not for the occasional comic valentine in which the charms of this obsolete genus are set forth in high colors.

In viewing the limitless potentialities for usefulness and happiness that rise up before the intelligent, progressive and healthy single woman, we will sigh over so much wasted force in the past, when she seemed to have no distinct place in social or domestic life, except to do the things that no one else cared to do.—Anne H. Wharton in Harper's Bazar.

Influence of Eastern Women.

Under the title of "Woman's Influence in the East," Mr. J. J. Pool has written a series of studies of oriental women who have risen to fame and greatness among the Mussulmans, Hindus and other races of Hindoostan. Among the women whose lives are given are the Rane of Aragal, the Empress Noor Jehan, the Rane of Jodhpore and many others who conclusively showed that socialisation has not been able to subvert their strength of will or to deprive them of courage in the moment of danger. In ancient days, as Sir Lepel Griffin points out in the introduction, Indian women enjoyed comparative freedom; they attended with men social and religious festivals, and received an equal share of the education of the day. It was not until India fell from its high estate into comparative barbarism and when an era of wars and troubles set in that women in India lost their equality with men.

Then the Mussulman conquerors set an example of seclusion, though, says Sir Lepel, it may be fairly asserted that the position of a married Mohammedan woman today is socially and legally more secure and protected against arbitrary violence either to person or property, than that of an Englishwoman, whose disabilities, until the last few years, were really a reproach to our civilization. It is remarkable that the women who have made a name in Indian history have been Sikhs, Mahatras or Mohammedans; the reason probably being that these people, like fun, and that is what youthful society is for—like the fun of the attaché. It is a kind of fun that represents the accumulated experience of centuries of young and old men who devote themselves agreeably to the people whom they are accredited. There are young women of course who are captured by the most insane of foreigners, and so there are insects that mistake a tallow dip for the sun. The fools are not all confined to the male sex.

The truth is that the world does not and will not waste much sympathy on an American young woman who cannot make his way with an American girl against a rival whose sole claim to consideration is that he is a foreigner.—Harper's Weekly.

A Physical Phenomenon.

Did you ever see her? I mean the clean girl—the girl who always looks neat and well groomed under all circumstances? As the old saying is, clay wouldn't stick to her. But whether it would or not it doesn't, for the simple reason that she never gives it a chance. If she were condemned to die, she would still sit up all night to wash and iron her hair and shirts and handkerchiefs, etc., and she would be late at the ceremony on account of her careful toilet.

The clean girl is rarely a fashionable girl. She belongs rather to the old maid order or prissy sort. Some mornings on my way down town in a street car I amuse myself by looking around for the clean girl. I don't always find her. On the contrary, I see many things which surprise me—buttoned off or hanging by one thread, raveled edges here and there, rents fastened up with a pin, buttonholes too large to hold the button, gloves ripped out at the finger ends, and worse than these, I see signs of untidiness, dried mud on the bottom of a skirt, stains of food on the front of a sack or jacket. And, going a little higher, I see that face and neck have been carelessly bathed, and that the hair is not completely free from dust and dandruff.

But other mornings the clean girl comes tripping in, and I am always glad when she takes a seat beside me. She smells as fresh as a clover field, and looks it too. The scalp beneath her soft brown hair is free from dust and dandruff as if she had just left the hairdresser's chair, and her skin has that fresh, wholesome look which the human epidermis presents when it is kept well acquainted with both hot and cold water—one to cleanse and the other to tone up and bring the blood well to the surface and impart that glow which only cold water can give. There may be a trace of rice powder on the clean girl's face, but it is very slight, just barely enough to remove the shine.—New York Letter.

Blackening Stoves. Every good housekeeper dislikes to see a grimy stove, yet often greasy hands acquired in the process of blacking. A pair of thick gloves is, of course, a necessary part of the outfit of any woman who does kitchen work, and yet desires, as she should, to keep her hands dainty. As a rule far too much blacking is used on stoves. A cake of blacking, such as is sold for eight cents, ought to be used for blackening one stove. If more blacking is used it will not be rubbed into the surface of the stove as it should be, but remain as a fine dust, to be afterward blown about the kitchen and cause a generally grimy appearance, so often seen in uncleanly kitchens. A fresh coat of black should not be applied oftener than once a month, when the flues should also be cleaned out and the interior of the stove thoroughly brushed of old blacking should be washed off; the new coat must now be applied and the stove thoroughly polished. The edges of the stove, if they are of polished iron, should not be blacked, but cleaned like a steel knife or spoon or brickdust. The nickel knobs at least once a month must be rubbed bright with a chamois skin or old, shrunken flannel. An ordinary paint and whitening brush is one of the best things with which to apply blacking to a stove. A stiff brush, such as is used for this purpose, is the best brush for polishing.

During the month polish the stove with the polishing brush each morning, just after breakfasting the fire. Keep the stove always on hand in cooking to rub off any grease spot as soon as it occurs. If the spots are obstinate a few drops of kerosene oil put on the stovecloth will remove them. The ground edges and inside work of the stove should be rubbed off at least once a week, besides the monthly cleaning when the stove is blacked.—Home Magazine.

Mothers, Keep Abreast of Your Children

There is in every community a class of people who seem incapable of receiving any education outside their own limited experience. Life runs along easily enough for them until their children grow up and begin to look forward to something broader for themselves. Then the battle for supremacy begins in earnest. The child seems ungovernable to the mother and the mother seems tyrannical to the child. It is very hard for a mother who has laid down her own ideas of life and life's longings shall be arranged and finds that the life fails to arrange itself according to her plans; to discover that her own daughter is one of the chief opponents of her ideas. And yet this must be exactly what happens to the woman who fails to learn. Progression is a law of the universe, and one who attempts to retard its wheels is sure to be crushed beneath them. There is something pitiful in the power that so often carries the child so far beyond the parent. It is the law of heaven that love should go downward to the child—not backward to the parent. A true mother's love is sacrificial of self and asks no return. No child's love, however tender, can equal a mother's love, and it is not natural that it should. A great deal has been said of the duty of children to their parents when every thinking man and woman must recognize that the chief obligation is due from the parents to the children. One obligation is to keep abreast of the times with the child, so that the parent shall be a mentor in times of need—a safe, unfailing guide and companion—not an incubus. To do all this is to fulfill in the highest sense the trust which heaven has laid upon parents.—New York Tribune.

American Girls and Foreign Men.

Do young women in this country like diplomats for the uniforms and fear, for the foreign tongue in which they speak, for their nearness to royalty, or for the possible chance that they will take them to court some day? In the first place, many American young women do not care anything at all for diplomats, but there are others who like the social charms and acquisitions of adepts. Really, not many American young women lose their hearts over a young person simply because he is in the diplomatic service. One point of resemblance between an alien and a native American is that each is likely to be taken at his true value. It may be that a title adds to the market value, but not many titles come over here, and most of those that do need regilding.

There is a good deal of fun in a young foreign attaché, and the young women who like fun—and that is what youthful society is for—like the fun of the attaché. It is a kind of fun that represents the accumulated experience of centuries of young and old men who devote themselves agreeably to the people whom they are accredited. There are young women of course who are captured by the most insane of foreigners, and so there are insects that mistake a tallow dip for the sun. The fools are not all confined to the male sex.

A Saying That Has No Foundation.

The oft repeated assertion that "women are hard upon each other" is almost without foundation. There are two classes of women who are prone to be severe in their judgments of their sisters. To the first belong those who, owing in part, perhaps, to temperament and in part to force of environment, have never come face to face with a genuine temptation and hence find it impossible to understand how another can be tempted. To the second class belong those who, goaded by a consciousness of their own shortcomings, are always on the alert to detect in others evidences of similar weaknesses. But while representatives of these two classes are to be found in every community and in every grade of social life, they are, happily, in the minority.

The world, thank God, is full of true women, tender, pitying, mother hearted women, who are always mindful of the sisterhood of woman and who at all times stand ready to rebuke the slanderer, to plead the cause of the oppressed and to urge gentleness and forbearance toward the weak and erring. Never in the world's history have the relations between women been so cordial and beneficent as now. The long crusade in behalf of "women's rights," though not yet a success so far as the ballot is concerned, has steadily, year by year, been drawing woman into a better understanding of women, into broader and kinder sympathy with her in her aspirations, her perils and her needs, and today everywhere it is woman that is reaching out the helping hand to woman.—Housewife.

Leaders. The world has always admired and followed leaders, without much philosophizing as to why they followed them that made them so. They have been in all walks of life, civil, military, and religious. Moses, Alexander, Socrates, Plato, Caesar, Mahomet, Luther, Columbus, Napoleon, Newton, Washington, Lincoln, Grant, Livingstone—all have had their influence and left their impress, not only on their own generation, but on all who have followed to this day.

The influence of some has been for evil—more for good. Among the benefactors are the discoverers and pioneers, and in this category can be justly placed the Burlington system of railroads. They opened up the great state of Nebraska, reached that storehouse of silver, Colorado, and are pioneers in all improvements which add to the comfort or safety of patrons. ## Pretty Styles For Little Folks.

Boys' and Children's Department.

We speak, today, of the ZOUAVE BLOUSE, as shown in the above illustration.

This Waist, which may be worn with round or Kilt Skirts, or Knee Trousers, is made of White Lawn. The Collars and Cuffs that decorate this cute little Blouse are finished with deep Hamburg Embroidery. Two neat box plaits are carried up the front on either side of the opening, which is made invisible by a ruffle of handsome Hamburg Embroidery and Finishing Braid. The fullness at the lower edge of the Waist is collected in gathers by a running string, the fullness dropping below in characteristic style.

Every mother should see these Blouses together with the many other bewildering styles in the Celebrated Star and Mother's Friend Waists we are now showing.

One Pure Baking Powder.

Like Telling a Secret.

A story is told and it is a true story that over seventy per cent. of all the baking powders sold contain either alum or ammonia, and many of these powders contain both. The ill effects upon the system of food raised by alum or ammonia powders are the more dangerous because of their insidious character. It would be less dangerous for the people were it fatal at once, for then such food would be avoided, but their baneful action because imperceptible at first and slow in its advances, is no less certain.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is declared by all authorities as free from alum, ammonia or any other adulterant. Its purity has never been questioned, and while it does finer and better work, it costs no more at retail than many of the adulterated powders.

UNDER THE WRECK

Fireman Dave Barrows is Buried Under Seventeen Cars at Sturgeon Lake.

The Fast Freight on the St. Paul & Duluth Road is Fearfully Wrecked.

Engineer John Korslund and Some of the Brakemen Are Badly Hurt.

The night fast freight train No. 18, southbound on the St. Paul & Duluth road, which left here at 8:15 o'clock last night with eighteen loads and two empties, is in the ditch just south of Sturgeon Lake, about fifty miles from Duluth. Engine 45 pulled the train and John Korslund was engineer, Dave Barrows fireman and Charles Brown conductor. The names of the brakemen are not known as yet.

The train had left Sturgeon a few minutes late and was wheeling along pretty lively in order to make Miller station for a meeting point with No. 17 northbound, when a herd of cattle crossed the track and two of them became caught in a small culvert. The engine struck them and left the track, turning over on its side and stripping all her machinery from her, pinning the fireman Dave Barrows beneath the wreck and piling up seventeen cars of coal, merchandise and furniture on top of him. Engineer John Korslund has a broken leg and was badly bruised by jumping and the head brakeman is also badly bruised.

The track was torn up and the wrecked cars are piled up in a space of about 60 feet in length. The loss will be very heavy indeed, probably the heaviest the St. Paul & Duluth road has had for some years, probably in excess of $100,000. Trains were delayed six and seven hours, until a track could be built around the wreck. The night express did not arrive here until after 12 o'clock noon.

The body of the fireman is still beneath the wreck and a large force of trackmen and wreckers is at the scene of the mishap. The wounded are being taken care of and will recover although the engineer will be laid up for a long time. The wrecked cars are principally merchandise and coal, although there is one car of furniture, all from Duluth.

The dead fireman is quite young, probably about 21 years old. He is unmarried and had just been taken out of the St. Paul & Duluth shops and given a fireman's situation. He was formerly a fireman on the Omaha road. The accident was entirely unavoidable on the part of the train employees, the cattle having come on the track suddenly and unexpectedly.

The elaborate and costly chair which the Webster Chair company had made for the presiding officer of the Minneapolis convention, and of which a description was given in The Herald a few days ago, was on this train. It is not known as yet whether it is broken.

FORECAST FOR JUNE 1.
Local forecast till 8 a. m. tomorrow: Fair, followed by rain, slight change in temperature.

WHEAT WAS FIRMER TODAY.

The Big Shipments of Wheat From Duluth in May.

Prices opened firmer on the board of trade this morning, first sales in July being made at 1/4c advance over yesterday. General rains were reported throughout the Southwest and West with predictions of colder weather tomorrow and this had a bullish effect. The local demand for milling purposes is active and the shipments by rail to interior milling points are large. Dealing in futures today was very light, with little outside demand. Trading was done in large round lots. The market ruled dull in the close which was steady at figures unchanged from yesterday, except the June future which was 1/4c higher. Following were the closing prices:

No. 1 hard cash 85 1/2, June 85 1/2, July 85 1/2, September 83 1/2. No. 1 northern cash 83 1/2, June 83 1/2, July 84 1/2, September 81 1/2. No. 2 northern cash 76 3/4, No. 3, 70. Rejected 60. On track—No. 1 hard 85 1/2, No. 1 northern 84 1/2.

Car inspection today, 180. Receipts—Wheat 40,123 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 31,267 bus. Cars on track, 58; last year, 28.

The flour statement for the week ended Saturday last shows: Production by Duluth mills, 18,968 barrels; receipts by rail, 112,610 barrels; shipments, 147,143 barrels; flour now in store, 169,072 barrels.

The statements of receipts at and shipments from Duluth during the past month of May are as follows: Receipts—Flour, 392,188 barrels; wheat, 1,092,893 bus.; flaxseed, 643 bus. Shipments—Flour, 416,138 barrels; wheat, 8,771,387 bus.; flaxseed, 126,029 bus. The shipments are the largest on record. In May, 1891, they were only 3,851,849 bus.

Outside Markets.

CHICAGO, June 1.—The close: Wheat, June, 83 1/2; July, 83 1/2; September, 82 1/2. Corn, June, 50 1/2; July, 48 1/2; September, 47 1/2. Oats, June, 31 1/2; July, 31 1/2; September, 30 1/2. Pork, July, $10 1/2; September, $10 7/8. Lard, July, $6 1/2; September, $6 1/2. Ribs, July, $6 1/2; September, $6 1/2.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 1.—Wheat: June closed at 80 1/2; July opened at 81 1/2 and closed at 81 1/2; September opened at 79 1/2 and closed at 79 1/2. On track—No. 1 hard 83 1/2; No. 1 northern 82 1/2; No. 2 northern, 78 @ 80c.

Timsmiths Strike.

The tin, sheetiron and cornice workers are out on a strike. They have prepared an agreement which they are asking the bosses to accept. The only one who has refused so far is August Rehbein. The men ask that nine hours and eight hours on Saturday constitute a day's work, and that $2.50 be the scale of wages with a price and half for overtime and double price for Sunday work.

Postoffice Business for May. The total receipts from all sources in the Duluth postoffice during May were $6,205.38, and the expenditures during the same period were $2,551.21, leaving a net revenue to the government of $3,654.17. In May last year the total receipts were $4,025.72, indicating an increase of nearly 50 per cent for this year.

THIS SETTLES IT.

Mr. Blaine Told a Senator Today He Would Not Write Another Letter.

Several Blaine Boomers in Chicago Shouting Loudly for the Man From Maine.

Ex-Senator Ingalls Thinks That Governor McKinley Will be Nominated at Minneapolis.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—A Republican senator is authority for the statement that Mr. Blaine will not write a political letter of any kind until after the Minneapolis convention. He says Mr. Blaine told him this today.

THE BLAINE BOOMERS.

Hansborough Says North Dakota Delegates Are for Blaine.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Emmons Blaine was at the Grand Pacific hotel this morning in conference with James S. Clarkson, but to all the questions of reporters answered that he was as much in the dark as to his father's intentions as any one. He admitted, however, that the silence of the secretary of state was likely to be construed in one way only. Senator Hansborough, of North Dakota, was another of this morning's arrivals. He is a red hot Blaine boomer and declared that all the delegates from his state, with perhaps a single exception, were for the Maine man. "My ticket," said Mr. Hansborough, "is Blaine and Rusk."

Ex-United States Senator Geo. G. Wright, of Iowa, sounded a discordant note in the Blaine chorus this morning. He came straight from Des Moines and declared that the Hawkeye state was for Harrison beyond a peradventure. "The Republicans of Iowa," said he, "are not going to be dictated by Clarkson."

The members of the national executive committee for Milwaukee this afternoon tonight they will be entertained at a banquet by Henry C. Payne, and tomorrow the trip to Minneapolis will be resumed.

The talk of a temporary chairman seems to be usually divided between Tom Reed and J. Sloat Fassett. The members of the party which left this afternoon were: J. S. Clarkson, A. L. Conger, J. Sloat Fassett, H. R. S. Hyde of Massachusetts, Samuel Fassenden of Connecticut, Harry Sword, sergeant-at-arms, and J. Burke, president of the college league of clubs.

MAY BE MCKINLEY. Ingalls Thinks McKinley Will Be Selected at Minneapolis.

SEDALIA, Mo., June 1.—Ex-Senator Ingalls was in the city last night and in an interview expressed the opinion that Governor McKinley would be the standard bearer that the Republicans would select at Minneapolis.

A ten room house, all conveniences, on Bench street and a six room cottage on Sixteenth avenue east, for sale on easy terms.

W. J. REED, 42 Exchange building.

Gumming Stamps by Machine. An apparatus for affixing stamps on envelopes is the invention of an Australian.

The stamp receiver is supported by a pair of pivoted arms, while another pair of arms carry a damping roller. By pressing a handle the stamps within the holder are forced by a plunger upon the envelope, the stamps being at the same moment moistened by the damping roller.—New York Journal.

Glass Tanks. Hitherto glass cells have been blown, and owing to their size has been limited. By a new process tanks and cells of any dimensions can be constructed.

The process consists in welding or fusing plates or sheets of glass together, thus forming a solid glass tank, with all the advantages of having the sides straight, bottoms level and angles all square.—New York Times.

An Old Method of Having "Proof" Read. In old times printers chained copies of their books outside their offices, and if any passing scholar succeeded in detecting an error he was rewarded according to his magnitude—a cup of wine for a broken letter, a cup of wine and a plate of meat for a turned letter or a wrong font, and a much larger guerdon for an error in grammar.—London Telegraph.

Promises Made in Time of Danger. A story is told of a Frenchman on shipboard in a storm who belloyed out promises of a wax image of St. Christopher as large as that gentleman's statue at Paris, on condition that he should be preserved from death. A fellow passenger nudged him and suggested that he could not pay for such an image, even if he sold all his possessions. But the other replied in a whisper: "Be still, you fool! Do you fancy I am speaking in earnest? If I once touch the shore I shall not give him a tallow candle!"

Equally absurd is the account given of a certain man who, greatly terrified by rough weather on the ocean, vowed he would eat no more ham. Just as the danger was over he qualified his promise by adding, "Without mustard, O Lord!"

How the Snake Sheds Its Skin. Does the snake slip out of its old skin or does it turn the old skin wrong side out? I am of the opinion that it is the latter. I have in my possession a tolerably good specimen, and the lips of the skin, as well as the tip end of the tail, show that it was turned wrong side out and not slipped off.—Cor. Forest and Stream.

What Next? Angelina (reading an account of the wedding of Miss Scrapings, daughter of an eminent tea dealer)—The bride was then given away by the father.

Edwin—What with, dear—a pound of tea?—Exchange.

Chinamen Don't Like Black. English needles sent to China in the usual black paper are not bought, black being an unlucky color. This is as bad as sending cotton goods to Morocco with jexes from the Koran, which, instead of attracting buyers, is tabooed by the government there.—Leisure Hour.

THEATRICAL WORK A SPECIALTY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16, 1891.

Gentlemen:—Some three years ago your fireproofing was presented to us for examination, and after a thorough test we were asked what we thought of it. We would not at that time give an opinion of its merits; but can now say after three years of actual test, that we believe your RICINATE to be permanent and reliable, and find it to be all you represent as a fire-proof material.

We recommend its thorough application to all wood, canvas and other inflammable materials in all buildings where stage work and scenery is to be used. Its application in all instances to wood, canvas, upholstery, and other inflammable materials, made under our observation, has given perfect satisfaction, and we have no hesitancy in recommending it as a safeguard against fire.

Very respectfully yours, Signed, J. B. McLEAFTRICK & SONS.

THE USE OF Ricinate

has made a new departure in building. You can remove all danger of fire at an absolutely small expense. The Philadelphia Central Theater DID NOT burn, but we know "a word to the wise is sufficient." If you intend building, LOOK IT UP.

THE POT BOILING.

Harrison and Blaine Boomers Are Now Pounding the Air Vigorously at Minneapolis.

John C. New is Now on Hand in Charge of the Harrison Forces.

Clarkson Leads the Blaine Men, Assisted by Fassett, Conger and Several Others.

Frank Hutton Urges That to Secure Success Both Blaine and Harrison be Dropped.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 2.—The morning trains brought in the custodians of both the Harrison and the Blaine booms. The vanguard of the Harrisonians, which arrived yesterday, was reinforced by the appearance on the scene of John C. New, to whom the president has intrusted the management of his cause. Mr. New professed the greatest confidence in the prospects for the nomination of his choice on the first ballot. Chairman Clarkson himself headed the Blaine delegation and he had with him J. Sloat Fassett for temporary chairman and Col. Chas. W. Johnson, of Minneapolis, for temporary secretary. Both are Blaine men.

The early arrival of the Harrison vanguard has proved a great surprise to the Blaine men. They were not expecting the Harrison boomers until tomorrow, and their arrival yesterday and this morning has opened the preliminary skirmish a day sooner than expected. The plan of the Harrison campaign, as far as it has been disclosed in this skirmish, is first to make a vigorous and personal warfare on Platt, Quay, Foraker and the other prominent anti-Harrison leaders, and second, if it becomes necessary, to make an aggressive attack on Blaine himself, so that it will be impossible for the secretary to permit the use of his name.

John C. New declared this morning, when asked if another letter was expected from Blaine, that they did not want another letter. "One is enough," he said, "to anyone that reads and understands the English language. The Blaine letter was plain enough and we don't ask for another. Harrison will be named on the first ballot beyond question." Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, was another Harrison boomer who was on the ground today. He declares that Blaine will prove himself insincere, if he accepts anything less than a unanimous nomination, which he can't get. Spooner will second Devereux's nomination of Harrison in all probability. The Minnesota delegation has not so far declared itself, but will caucus Monday to determine on a course of action. There are said to be two Harrison delegations, one from the city and one from the country. The others are for Blaine, except possibly Stanford Newell, of St. Paul, who is credited with Alger leanings. Ex-Governor J. S. Pillsbury, the Minneapolis delegate-at-large, will present to the resolutions committee a plank for the platform declaring for single presidential terms. This may precipitate a Blaine-Harrison test vote.

DROP THEM BOTH.

That is Frank Hutton's Advice About Blaine and Harrison.

CHICAGO, June 2.—Ex-Postmaster General Frank Hutton, in an interview on the presidential situation last night, said: "I believe the men who are opposing Harrison and who say they are nominating the latter at Minneapolis, unless Mr. Blaine should have a pain in his head or stomach at this moment and the convention."

"Suppose Mr. Blaine should defeat his present chief and be nominated, do you suppose the humiliated administration and its friends are going to pass sleepless nights to elect the ticket? Politics is not a thing of tears and sentiment. It is cold blooded, with a knife up its sleeve and a razor in its boot. Should Harrison defeat Blaine and secure the nomination, party managers and workers are already on record as saying that he cannot be elected and that they will do nothing to help him."

"What, then, do you think should be done?" "Drop both men over whom the party is divided into bitter and relentless factions and unite upon some great, strong, vigorous man who can and will get the united vote of the party. I don't believe either Harrison or Blaine can get a united and enthusiastic support in view of the bitterness that has grown up between their friends and individual supporters."

HARMONY IS DEMANDED.

Warner Miller Wants Peace Among New York Factions.

St. Louis, June 2.—Ex-United States Senator Warner Miller, of New York, in speaking of the Minneapolis convention, says: "It is hard to say what will be the outcome at Minneapolis. When I reached St. Louis I found a number of letters and telegrams from friends at home, advising me of the situation in New York, but the advices are so conflicting that I am unable to arrive at a conclusion before meeting and consulting with the full delegation at Minneapolis.

"I hope for harmony among the New York delegates, and trust that we can cast our vote as a unit. We ought to be able to win with anybody this year, though if factional differences arise in our delegation at Minneapolis, I fear they will be carried back home and result disastrously to the party in November. Without New York we are not so sure of winning, and we must, therefore, fight for harmony in that state."

NOT DIVORCED YET.

Consequently Mrs. Annie St. Amour is Not the Head of a Family. Some time during the past winter Mrs. Annie St. Amour filed a homestead entry on a valuable claim in 58-19 in the heart of the Mesaba range, alleging that she was the "head of a family as a divorced wife." W. H. Hearné coveted this parcel of land and sought for grounds on which to make immediate contest. He caused a search to be made in the records of the district court and found that, while Mrs. St. Amour was pushing an action for divorce through the court, the decree of divorce had not been entered at the time she made the filing, and she was not the head of the family, as stated in her filing. This satisfied him and he immediately brought notice of contest on the ground of fraud in the filing. The hearing will be novel and amusing and will undoubtedly be fought hotly on both sides, and it is not improbable that some private affairs will be dragged into prominence.

PERSONAL.

John McCarthy, of Stillwater, is in the city.

State Grain Inspector A. C. Clausen is here today.

Robert Jamison came up from Minneapolis today.

H. Nunemacher, the Milwaukee iron man, is in the city.

E. J. Phelps, of the Minnesota Loan & Trust company, is in the city.

HIS MEMORY HONORED.

Chamber of Commerce Takes Action on Mr. Costello's Death.

A special session of the chamber of commerce was held this morning. President Baldwin announced the death of John J. Costello, a member and a former director of the chamber. Messrs. C. F. Johnson, D. C. Cash and R. C. Mitchell were appointed to draft resolutions, and it was agreed that the members and directors should attend the funeral in a body.

Mr. James, of the New York board of trade transportation committee, submitted a communication in regard to the ship canal scheme. The consideration of this was made a special order of business for the next meeting and also the discussion of a memorial relating to the improvement of the Mississippi river received from the St. Louis Merchants exchange.

Recovered Her Child.

Tuesday evening H. Kalf, who was formerly headwaiter at the Kitchi Gammi club left for Chicago representing to his wife, who is running the Argyle cafe, that he was going there to get work. They had disagreed somewhat, however, and when he left unknown to her he took their little daughter, age 4 years. The woman was frantic when she found that the child was gone. The police were informed and telegraphed to Ashland where the child was taken from him and yesterday evening the mother, who had gone to Ashland, returned with the daughter.

The High School Statue.

The statue of Hebe which the High school senior class of 1892 has purchased as a memorial gift to the High school, arrived and was unpacked this morning. It was made to order in Milwaukee and is a fine piece of art work. It stands 5 feet high. This is the beginning of a custom which will and ought to be perpetuated by the High school classes. The statue will be formally presented at the time of the graduating exercises.

ART OF BUILDING.

Styles of Architecture Exemplified by Three Structures That Are Now Being Erected.

A Combined House and School for Shipbuilders Being Erected by William H. Webb.

England's Headquarters at the World's Fair—The New Cathedral School for Boys.

Many men spend their lives in the pursuit of wealth, in order that they may make bequests that will cause their memory to be kept green by coming generations whom they sincerely desire to ben-

THE WEBB HOME.

After death there is usually a protracted legal squabble, and sometimes the upsetting of the will, so that in a great many cases at least the exact wishes of the testator are not carried out, and instead of benefiting mankind his philanthropic intentions all too frequently serve no other purpose than to sow seeds of discord and incidentally to enrich a small army of lawyers.

This view of the matter had probably occurred to Mr. William H. Webb, and he accordingly determined that he would insure the execution of his long cherished plans by carrying them out himself. And he has begun the work in a manner which should entitle him to the respectful consideration of other men of wealth whose intentions and desires lie in the direction of elevating humanity and alleviating its suffering. He now has well under way a building which will be known as Webb's Academy and Home for Shipbuilders. It is located on a beautiful plot of thirteen acres at Fortlham Heights, New York city. He has set aside for this charity $1,000,000. Of this $400,000 will be expended in building and grounds. The remaining $600,000 will be utilized as a permanent endowment fund. The objects of the institution are clearly set forth in its charter, which says:

Free and gratuitous aid, relief and support to the aged, decrepit, invalid, indigent or unfortunate men, who within the precincts of the United States have been engaged in the craft of ship carpentry, building of marine engines or any part or section of the hulls of vessels or engines thereof, together with their lawful wives, will be furnished; furthermore,
to furnish any worthy young man, a native or a citizen of the United States, who after a careful examination by the trustees shall have proved himself competent and of good character, with a free and gratuitous education in the art and science of marine architecture and engineering, both theoretical and practical, and also teach him the craft of ship carpentry, marine engine building and the allied trades, with free board and lodging,
tools, engineering implements and materials
while acquiring that education.

THE BRITISH BUILDING.

Mr. Webb is an old shipbuilder. He has turned out in his time many of the best wooden clipper ships which made the stars and stripes a familiar sight in nearly every port of the world. Having accumulated a fortune, and realizing that others have been less fortunate, to the extent of being now practically dependent upon charity,
he has deemed it his duty, as it is his pleasure, to make some provision for the comfort of the luckless ones in their declining years. The educational feature of the institution was a happy inspiration.

Another building, differing in purpose,
style of architecture, and every essential particular from the Webb home, but scarcely less interesting, is the structure which Great Britain will have at the World's fair. The plans have recently been brought from England by Colonel G.
R. Grover, of the Royal engineers. It will be an excellent specimen of an English
half timbered residence of the century during which Columbus made his great voyage of discovery. While not at all beautiful on the outside, it will have an interior arrangement closely approaching perfection. The building will be constructed of red bricks, yellow terra cotta and massive timbers. The roof will be of red tile.
Half timbered houses became fashionable
in England during the reign of Henry VIII, between the years 1485 and 1509, when the use of brick was revived after a lapse of nearly ten centuries.

The cornerstone of what will be an interesting structure was laid a short time ago in Garden City, L. I. The new Cathedral School for Boys, as it is to be called, is a tribute to the memory of the late Mrs.
A. T. Stewart, the widow of the dry goods multimillionaire. The style of architecture is exceedingly simple, but the build-

THE CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR BOYS.
ing itself is unique in many respects.
There is at least one feature which is worthy of imitation. The sleeping rooms of the pupils will be 11 by 8 feet each, and between every two bedrooms there will be a sitting room 15 by 12 feet in size.
The basement of the new school will be given over to a gymnasium and baths.

The first floor will contain a library, parlor, public reception room, classrooms
and several pupils' rooms and parlors. The second and third floors will be occupied entirely by bedrooms and adjoining sitting rooms for the students. The lecture hall, servants' apartments and study rooms will be on the top or fourth floor. The cornerstone of the new cathedral school of St. Mary bears the appropriate inscription: "Pro Christo et Literis Humanis, Anno Domini MDCCCXCII."

SHE MAY BE A QUEEN.

The Possibility of a Great Future for a Little Girl.

The people of England are greatly exercised over the fact that if Prince George of Wales should die without issue, like his brother, the late Duke of Clarence, the right to the throne will revert to the Fifies.
Once the succession becomes vested in an individual, it goes down in direct line until it runs out, and then it continues to the collateral relatives of the last heir and not
of the one through whom it was inherited.
Thus, when Queen Victoria's offspring were children, only two lives—the queen's and the Prince of Wales—stood between the present Duke of Edinburgh and the throne. But now, before the duke can be king, the queen, the Prince of Wales, all his children and all his children's children
will have first to die.

The Duchess of Fife is very close to the English throne. Her father, the Prince of Wales, will in the natural course of events become king. Should her brother, Prince George, either die without issue before his father or else even after ascending the throne himself, Princess Louise will succeed him, and the permanent succession will then become vested in her offspring. As she has but one child, a two-year-old girl, who is officially designated as Lady Alexandra Duff, a good deal of interest attaches to this infant, for it is not at all unlikely that she may some day be queen of England, unless, of course, a little brother should make his advent, and thus effectually dispose of her chances.

The English people are, therefore, very anxious that Prince George should marry,
and it is rumored that he may wed his dead brother's affianced, Princess Victoria Mary of Teck.

The present Duke of Fife is not personally popular. At the time of his marriage it was generally considered that he

LADY ALEXANDRA DUFF.

was not a fitting mate for a possible queen
of England, although he is a direct descendant by blood, though in one important case not by marriage, of George III.
That queen did monarch had a son, the Duke of Clarence, who upon the death of his brother, George IV, became King William IV. He was succeeded by his niece, Queen Victoria.

William IV, while he was only Duke of Clarence, became enamored of Mrs. Gar-dan, a beautiful woman, whose mother was a well known Welsh actress. Of course
the duke could not marry the commoner,
but he lived happily with her for twenty years near London. They had ten children. One of their daughters, Elizabeth Fitz-Clarence, became the wife of the Earl of Errol. They had a daughter, Lady Agnes Hay, who married the Earl of Fife,
and gave birth to the present duke, who
in a not remote contingency will be the father of a race of monarchs. The accompanying picture of Lady Alexandra Duff
is the first ever published of that interesting young lady. She is said to bear a remarkable likeness to her great-grandmother, Queen Victoria.

A Little Vessel and a Long Voyage.

People who embark in commercial enterprises often take as great if not greater risks than the soldier who goes out to fight the enemies of his country. It is no easy task to sail a good sized vessel half way around the world, yet the other day a little sloop started from England on a voyage
to Sierra Leone, on the west coast of Africa. Her name is the Queen, and she is under the command of Captain Thomas Jacks, with a crew of two hands. The vessel, which is only fifty-one feet in length, has an under deck tonnage of seventeen tons and a gross tonnage of twenty tons. She is intended for trading purposes on African rivers and along the coast. It has been customary to take such vessels out on the decks of steamships. For some reason in this case it became necessary to sail the Queen to Africa. She is a strongly built hard wood vessel, and her captain has no fears that he will not reach his destination, although he expects that it will be a rather trying journey. He says she is perfectly seaworthy and capable of standing the heavy weather she may meet on her long voyage. The captain and the crew will sleep in a little square house on the after part of the deck. Her cargo is salt.

His First Train.

The oldest railroad conductor in the United States is Richard Coughlin. In 1833 he ran a train from Paterson, N. J., to Jersey City. Each car was pulled by a team of horses along a strap rail 1 1/2 inches wide. The rails were nailed to girders. Uncle Dick, as he is called, is more than eighty years of age. When he began every conductor had to collect cash fares.—New York Sun.

Afraid of Copper Cents.

There are men in the city hall and county building who honestly think they would be beaten at the polls or lose their job if a penny got into their pocket. Some of these cranks go so far as to keep pennies out of their homes, and so long as the children get their pocket money in more valuable metal there is no objection to the boycott
on copper.—Chicago Tribune.

Always Lucky.

"What! a sensible person like yourself
to have a horseshoe lying on the door step!
Did it ever bring you good luck?"
"Certainly! Yesterday my tailor came to dun me for payment of his bill. On going away he stumbled over the horseshoe and broke his leg. Now he won't bother me again for a month at least."—Lustige Blätter.

I had, gentlemen—According to the promise I gave I forward you a testimonial of the troubles I had.

I, George H. Thompson, make the following statement regarding the skill of Dr. Speer & Co., to whom it may concern: For a long time I had been a constant sufferer from catarrh of the bladder, accompanied by pains in the back, loss of flesh and what is worse that feeling of making life a complete burden. I treated with several different physicians without obtaining any relief, and had almost abandoned hope, when I was prompted to seek the advice of a specialist. Accordingly, in June last, I consulted Dr. Speer & Co., placed myself in their care and now I am completely cured, thanks to their skillful treatment. Any further information will be gladly furnished to all who may feel interested.

Saved the Engineer.

Harry Miller, an engineer stopping at the Norris House in Duluth, has been afflicted for four or five years with loss of self-confidence, with nervousness, pain in the head and back, flabbiness of the muscles and cold, clammy sweats, and was, at the time he began treatment with Dr. Speer four months ago, a total wreck, both in his physical and nervous system. He is now wholly recovered and stands ready to go before any Justice of the Peace and swear to the facts above set forth. Dr. Speer's office is in the New York block in West Superior.

CUT DOWN YOUR SHOE BILL

Attention, Mothers and Fathers! Why not have your Shoes and Kid Gloves as well as those of your Children looking like new continually? Why have them looking worn and rough when you can avoid it?
To do this you have only to oil them once a month with Tanner's Oil. Tanner's Oil does not injure but benefits the leather. It is now prepared by us for families. It prevents leather getting hard and from cracking, keeps it looking fresh and smooth, makes it soft and pliable and absolutely water-proof. Best of all—Shoes and Gloves kept thusly in good condition
—will outwear three pair worn ordinarily. One box should last a family of three one year. On ladies' and children's wear you should use it instead of Blacking.
Gentlemen can shine their shoes after using it equally as well as before. All we desire is to have you give it a trial. Shoe Dealers, Glovers, and those Dry Goods merchants who sell Kid Gloves should have it on hand to furnish up their stock that has become shopworn. It will give it an absolutely new appearance. Your youngest apprentice can apply it. Price by mail 40 cents. Special price to Dealers.

A SLICK BURGLAR.

A Machine for Smashing the Locks of Safes Which Was Very Simple.

It is Said That But Few Strong Boxes Can Resist its Terrible Power.

Burglar John Lang, alias Joker, and Safebreaker John Cody, who fell into the arms of the Newark police at Irvington, N. J., Sunday morning recently, were "railroaded" in the Essex county court of special sessions. They said they wanted quick justice, and they got rapid transit. Both men pleaded guilty, and Judge Kirkpatrick sentenced them to five years each in the state prison.

The safe jack found in the possession of Cody was made by his brother Pat. In describing it the New York Sun says: It looks complicated when apart, but is really simple, and the workmanship is crude and would be considered disreputable by a country blacksmith. In drilling through the doors of safes, cracksmen have always met with a difficulty in obtaining a purchase for the tail stock of a ratchet drill. A breast drill works too slowly and makes too much noise, while the weight of a man's body thrown against it does not exert sufficient force to feed a 3/4-inch twist drill. Cody's device was made to overcome these difficulties and at the same time be as portable as possible. It is, as a whole, only a modification of the apparatus used by bridge builders and other iron workers to drill holes which are to be made in the course of the erection of the work, except that the honest workmen may have the jacks strongly and heavily built and may dispense with many loose pieces.

There are a dozen pieces in the "pocket edition." The largest is a foot and two inches long. This is the upright lever, which passes through the link in the picture. It is a clumsily forged piece of fine cast steel, with an eye swaged upon one end, through which a hole has been tapped, with a fine thread to receive a screw. The lever is three-quarters of an inch wide and half an inch thick, and the screw is three-quarters of an inch in diameter, twelve inches long and has twenty threads to the inch. On the lower end of the screw a rule which is fastened with small set screws, and it carries another set screw to bind the tool to be inserted.

On the outer end of the screw a clumsy handle is secured to a squared head of the screw by means of a small wing nut. One of the men in the buggy walked to the directors' room, and while one man was getting the change the other forced open the door and sneaked to the safe and stole $10,000. He was detected and followed into the street. He dropped the money as he ran.

The man who wanted the change ran down the street, and the thief who stopped in the carriage drove rapidly away. A good distance down the street he was joined by the man who wanted the change, and both were driven out of town. The thief who made the sneak ran across the town, over the canal and into a house, and crawled under a bed. A mill hand notified the police, and the man was arrested. He proved to be Billy Burke, and his pals were Minnie Marks and Johnny Jordan. He was released on $10,000 bail, which he jumped.

On Sept. 9 of the same year four men tried to rob the Baltimore Savings bank. They were detected, and all escaped except the man who was to make the sneak. He was caught and identified as Burke. He gave bail and was released. He went west and was arrested at Cleveland and delivered to the Cokesco authorities. He escaped from jail, and on a reward of $1,000 was arrested at Minneapolis and taken back to Cokesco, where he was convicted and sent to the penitentiary for five years. He was given an additional year for breaking jail. He was released in 1888. Three months later he was arrested, with a woman, while attempting to rob a jewelry store in St. Louis. The woman proved to be Sophie Lyons. They were dismissed for want of evidence. Since then Burke has had a checkered career, with many ups and downs, but recently the "ups" have predominated until his Mount Sterling adventure, as a result of which he will probably not "burglar" any more for a long time to come.

Electricity for Caterpillars. Electricity is being put to novel uses every day. The public has often been told how Edison, years before he wrestled successfully with the problem of making incandescent light bulbs commercially possible, amused himself by designing an electric trap that wrought havoc with the cockroaches that invaded his lunch basket, says the New York Advertiser. Carl Her- ring has now improved on the idea by constructing a device for preventing caterpillars from crawling up trees. Alternating wires of copper and zinc are run around the trunk of the tree at a distance of about half an inch apart. The casual caterpillar begins to mount the tree, and the electric current which he touches with his antennae and limbs himself with the confidence and vigor born of an impending feast. Presently he reaches the copper wire, pokes his nose over it and lets another kink out of his backbone. Half an inch farther up his front feet strike the zinc, the circuit is completed and the unfortunate larva is a martyr to science.

Laplanders as Skaters. It is strange that Lapland has not furnished one of the many skating "champs" of the world, with whose doings the newspapers have regaled their readers for many years. In Lapland everybody skates, big and little, old and young, and a "spin" of 150 miles in a day does not even excite comment.

The simple boring machine pictured above was one of Paddy Cody's most efficient inventions. It is this instrument upon which both the Codys have chiefly relied in their raids upon postoffices and jewelers' shops. The instrument now in Newark is one of only three or four which have been captured.

KING AND QUEEN OF CROOKS.

How Billy Burke and Sophie Lyons Came to Grief.

Mount Sterling, Ky., was recently much exercised over the arrest of a bank sneak and his female accomplice, who were at first believed to be greenhorns at the business, but were afterward identified by Cincinnati detectives as Billy Burke, alias "Billy the Kid," and half a dozen other names, and Sophie Lyons, alias Levy, alias Kate Lucas, etc., to the number of about twenty.

The incident leading up to the capture of these notorious crooks seems to indicate that the great Vidocq knew what he was talking about when he said, "The most egregious blunders are made by the most astute criminals, and the older the criminal gets the more careless he becomes."

On the day of the attempted robbery there was a circus in Mount Sterling. When the procession was passing the Traders' Deposit bank all the officials were attracted to the front window. The teller saw a woman who was standing on the sidewalk in front of the window, make a signal with a handkerchief, apparently to some one inside the building. He turned quickly and saw a man's head duck behind the cashier's desk. The thief tried to get away with the $4,000 which he had grabbed, but he was held until an officer arrived, when he was locked up. Meanwhile the woman had got "lost in the shuffle," as it were, and possibly she never would have been thought of again had she not gone to the jail to see her accomplice, who she claimed, was her husband. It was then decided to put her under arrest too. The identification of the precious pair as "Billy the Kid" and Sophie Lyons speedily followed, and the town was as a natural consequence, thrown into a fever of excitement over the announcement that the authorities had caged so notorious a brace of criminals. And notorious they are, indeed. In fact, they are easily the leaders in their peculiar line, at least in the United States, although the man has also visited Europe "professionally."

Sophie Lyons, as a detective officer put it, has aliases a yard long. She has had great experience in several lines of evil doing, and enjoys an international reputation as a daring shoplifter, blackmailer, sneak thief and "pennyweighter." She has served several terms in various prisons and is the wife of Ned Lyons, who was released from the Ohio penitentiary only a short time ago. She is about fifty years of age, but doesn't look nearly so old. She is considered rather handsome by her pals. She lives in Detroit and is said to be worth about $75,000, much of the income from which she devotes to the education of her two sons, whom she hopes to make useful members of society.

"Billy the Kid" is thirty-two years old, and was born and raised in Chicago. He is a printer by trade. At a very early age he was credited with being the nerviest bank sneak in the country, and that is saying a good deal. He has been arrested 100 times, and has done several terms in the penitentiaries. He first became prominent in 1881. At noon on Aug. 1 two men drove up to the Manufacturers' bank at Cohoes, N. Y. At the same time a man walked in and asked for change for twenty dollars. One of the men in the buggy walked to the directors' room, and while one man was getting the change the other forced open the door and sneaked to the safe and stole $10,000. He was detected and followed into the street. He dropped the money as he ran.

The man who wanted the change ran down the street, and the thief who stopped in the carriage drove rapidly away. A good distance down the street he was joined by the man who wanted the change, and both were driven out of town. The thief who made the sneak ran across the town, over the canal and into a house, and crawled under a bed. A mill hand notified the police, and the man was arrested. He proved to be Billy Burke, and his pals were Minnie Marks and Johnny Jordan. He was released on $10,000 bail, which he jumped.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN.,
June 2.—Generally fair weather prevails in all sections this morning. The storm which was over Minnesota yesterday has moved to over Illinois with decreased energy and the absence of reports from the Northwest leaves the location
of the storm that was there yesterday uncertain,
but it is somewhere north of Minnesota now,
and will probably move east without seriously
affecting this part of the country.

The temperature has risen in nearly all sections except around Lake Superior where it remains stationary.
The rain yesterday which was expected to reach this section did not extend but a short distance above Lacrosse and west of Marquette.

The heavy rainfall of the past few days over the South has continued, but clearing weather
is now over that section.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 55°; lowest last night, 52°.

DULUTH, June 2.—Local forecast for Duluth
until 8 p. m. June 3: Fair; warmer.

B. H. BUONASO, Observer.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The cyclonic center
esterday morning in Southwest-on Missouri has since moved over Illinois. This storm is included within a barometric trough of low pressure that covers the country from the mouth of the Mississippi up the Ohio to that of the St. Laurence. Forecast till 8 p. m. Friday: For Wisconsin and Upper Michigan: Continued cool,
northerly winds; clearing weather; fair Friday;
warmer and probably fair Saturday. For Minnesota: Warmer and generally fair weather;
winds becoming southerly.

VOTE FOR GRAVES.

The Republicans of St. Louis county will tonight declare their preference for Col. C. H. Graves or H. C. Kendall as their candidate for the congressional nomination for the Sixth district. The campaign has been short but lively and there is no Republican who can claim that he does not understand the merits of the contest. Both candidates are well known. Their past records are known, and there is no one who has the best interests of Duluth and the Sixth district at heart who will not say that Col. Graves is by far the best man of the two to represent this district in congress.

There is no question that Col. Graves possesses the ability to properly represent the Sixth district.

He is fully acquainted with the needs of the whole district, and is especially well informed regarding the particular work to be done in congress on behalf of the interests of Duluth.

During the several terms that he served in both branches of the legislature, Col. Graves acquired a legislative experience that would aid him greatly in congress, and during his frequent visits to Washington on behalf of Duluth interests he gained a knowledge of congressional work such as but few new members of congress possess.

Col. Graves' record of services in behalf of Duluth's interests is a lengthy and honorable one. He has never been found wanting when the interests of Duluth were at stake, and the charges of his opponents in this regard have fallen flat, because they had no solid foundation. He is capable, honest, energetic and an untiring worker, and no abler representative could be sent to Washington.

The Republicans of St. Louis county can secure Col. Graves' nomination and election if they will turn out to the primaries tonight and do their duty by electing Graves delegates. The Herald believes that they will do so and that Col. Graves' friends will have a splendid majority in Saturday's convention. But let no friend of Col. Graves stay away from the polls because the result seems certain. Over-confidence has lost many a fight, and nothing but over-confidence
can lose this evening's contest.

A PICAYUNISH POLICY.

A correspondent, whose communication is published in this issue, objects to the attacks on the picayunish policy of Mr. Holman. The Herald does not share its correspondent's sentiments on this question. There is no doubt that Mr. Holman has in past years done much good by his opposition to extravagant and unjustifiable appropriations,
but there are indications that in recent years he has become a monomaniac on this subject. His opposition to large appropriations has diseased his mind and he has during the present session justly earned the title of a picayunish economist.

There is a difference between economy and parsimony, but Mr. Holman has evidently become so extreme in his opposition to public appropriations that he cannot perceive the difference. The postal appropriation bill is a notable example of the utterly brainless and picayunish policy which Mr. Holman has recently been pursuing. The amount asked by the postmaster general
for this important service has been cut down about $3,000,000. This reduction will prevent any extension of the postal service beyond its present bounds, either
as to railway mail service, free delivery
or otherwise.

There is an urgent demand for a continued and progressive policy of improvement in the postal department.
All sections of the country, and more especially the West where the rapid increase in population requires more postal facilities, demand it. Yet Mr.

Holman and his niggardly ideas would stand in the way of these improvements
and become a barrier to progress. Mr.
Holman has become so extreme in carrying out his peculiar ideas of economy
that he is now simply an obstructionist.
If he had his way, he would kill the appropriations for the deep water channel
on the great lakes and for the improvement of Duluth's harbor.

THE EDITORIAL OSTRICH.

The editorial ostrich in the News office still has his head stuck in the sand and his tail feathers in the air, and tomorrow morning, when he has learned how the primaries have gone, he will lift his head out of its hiding place and proclaim his happiness over the result. If the friends of Col. Graves have been triumphant, as there appears to be little doubt at this writing, he will exultingly
exclaim that he is delighted with the result and he wished and worked for it all the time. If by some strange circumstance the Kendall forces elect a majority of the delegates, his joy will be equally unbounded and he will point with well simulated pride to what he has done. Oh, the editorial ostrich is a great example of duplicity and hypocrisy, and the vested proprietor fills the role to perfection.

But, on the other hand, what a mean
and unmanly position the editorial
ostrich occupies. Devoid of opinions,
destitute of backbone, bereft of courage,
without any moral stamina, what a spectacle he presents to gods and men. It is a sight that, were it not so contemptible, must arouse sympathy for one so pitifully afflicted. But such cringing cowardice, due to the fear of treading on some person's pet corn and perchance
losing five cents' worth of advertising
patronage, or caused by apprehension
that some man on the opposite side might "stop his paper," cannot but create disgust in the minds of men who are men and who are not ashamed to maintain and express their views upon public questions and upon candidates for office.

If the editorial ostrich had a spark of manhood in his composition he would have told the readers of the News whether he believes that Col. Graves or
Mr. Kendall is the best man to represent the Sixth district. If he had but the spirit of the mouse he would have declared his position in this important contest. But he possesses neither, and is content to stick his bundle of wheels into the sand and let the public guy his exposed body. How dignified, how honorable, how inspiring, how grand an attitude for the publisher of a great Republican organ!

A POOR PROPHET.

The Tribune this morning announces that "victory is certain" for Mr. Kendall at the primaries tonight. In addition to the many other indications that Col.
Graves' friends will win a splendid triumph at the primaries, this statement
by the Tribune is a cause for rejoicing,
because its political predictions are always astray. For instance, in the recent city campaign it asserted day after day that Alderman Long's election
to the mayoralty was a certainty,
that the other candidates were not in it,
and on the morning of election day it prophesied that Alderman Long would sweep the city. How close was its prediction the returns published on the following morning indicated. Alderman
Long was buried out of sight.

The Tribune's prediction on tonight's primaries will probably be as faulty as it was in the city campaign. The fact is that as a prophet the Tribune is not a howling success, and it is almost certain to get on the losing side. Consequently in this contest, when the Tribune prophesies a Kendall victory, it is safe to expect that Col. Graves will sweep the county.

THE KNIFE FALLS BOOM.

Col. Graves has issued an open letter to lumbermen who have stated their opposition to him on account of some supposed connection of his with the Knife Falls boom. The statement made by Col. Graves shows upon what a flimsy foundation rest the charges that were made against him. It was proposed by the St. Paul & Duluth railroad about 1872, to improve the St. Louis river so that logs could run down it. An examination of the river showed it would cost $300,000. The company was then very poor and could not afford to make such an expenditure.

Next winter a company asked authority from the legislature to build a boom
at the head of the rapids and stop the logs. The bill was introduced and passed by Hon. W. W. Billson, then senator from this district and now a reputed supporter of Mr. Kendall. This company was made up of directors of the St. Paul & Duluth railroad, of whom Col. Graves was one. It was not supposed then that the river could be improved and logs brought to Duluth.
Finally the Nelson Lumber company
took hold of the boom charter, and Col.
Graves and the other St. Paul & Duluth people transferred their interest to them
without one cent of compensation or profit.

Three years ago, when Col. Graves was a member of the legislature, he introduced, at the request of Duluth lumbermen, a bill to oblige the Knife Falls Boom company to keep a channel open through their boom for logs destined for Duluth. He fought hard for its passage,
with but little assistance from Duluth,

and it was defeated by only a small majority. This, in brief, is the whole history of Col. Graves' connection with this boom matter, and it shows how utterly absurd and unreasonable is the opposition of certain lumbermen to his candidacy on this account.

The St. Cloud Times says: "Col. C.
H. Graves, of Duluth, is announced as a candidate for congress in this district.
He is a gentleman of ability and experience, having served several terms in the state senate and house of representatives, and is as good a man as our Republican friends can name." The Times is a Democratic paper, but it is generous enough to admit that Col. Graves' ability and experience in legislative work
amply fit him for a seat in congress.

The Pioneer Press having recently stated that Col. Bobleter has consented, at the request of the bankers of the Twin cities, to become a candidate for a fourth term as state auditor, the Sleepy Eye Herald wants to know what the matter with the people putting up a candidate?

A committee has just reported that the sanitation of the capitol at Washington is bad. It would be charitable therefore not to blame the congressmen very much for any unwise things they may do. Men in ill health are not likely to be extremely wise nor even political.

The general conference of the Methodist Protestant church voted at Westminster, Ind., last Friday to strike the word "obey" out of the marriage service.
As the word had ceased to have any effect, it will make little difference to the poor down-trodden man.

The Prohibitionists, in their state convention at Minneapolis yesterday, nominated a candidate for state auditor.
This is certainly taking time by the forelock, as Auditor Bierman's term does not expire until 1895.

Editor Dana, of the New York Sun,
declares that Chicago is a very wicked and immoral place. Dr. Dana must be trying to break the force of Dr. Parkhurst's account of his trip into Gotham society.

Rev. Dr. Rainsford, of New York, told his congregation last Sunday the saloon should be elevated. Patrons of the saloon in Duluth are content with its remaining on the ground floor.

Succi, the once notorious faster, has gone insane and is confined in a London asylum. Most people thought his fasting experiments pretty conclusive evidence of insanity.

The Memphis Appeal-Avalanche says:
"Lynching as an object lesson seems to be a failure with the Southern negro."
Well, why not give the law a chance to teach the lesson?

Frances E. Willard is going to learn to ride a bicycle. It was Bishop Cox who declared that a lady on a bicycle reminded him of an old woman astride
of a broomstick.

The Herald has received a communication signed "A Liberal Protestant,"
but it does not believe any good will be accomplished by its publication at this time.

The Christian Union is grieved that more young men do not choose the ministry for a profession. Perhaps they don't want to associate with Parkhursts.

Over-confidence in the result should not cause any friend of Col. Graves to stay away from the primaries tonight.
Vote and make it doubly sure.

The Republican primaries will occur between 7 and 9 o'clock tonight. Every Republican should perform his duty by voting for Graves delegates.

Brooklyn has a blind man who guides himself about by his sense of smell. If he lived in Chicago, he would be likely to fall into the river.

Venice, a small town in Illinois, does not belie its name at present. Since the recent floods its inhabitants go around tired in boats.

The Kendall men are on the run.
Keep up the victorious fight for Col.
Graves until the last vote is polled.

Don't forget the primaries tonight, and don't forget to vote for delegates favorable to Col. Graves' nomination.

If you want to see Col. Graves the Republican nominee for congress go to the primaries tonight and vote.

Vote at the primaries tonight, rain or shine. Fair weather Republicans are Republicans only in name.

"Blaine or Bust" seems still to be the popular cry among Republicans. And they may get both.

If every Republican does his duty tonight, Col. Graves' nomination will be assured.

Benjamin Harrison still anxiously awaits that letter.

WEST DULUTH.

West Duluth office of The Herald, room 4, Silvey building, where announcements etc., may be left.

Thomas Brown was arrested this morning for indecent assault. As Mrs.
Bettie Nelson was returning to her home
about half-past nine last evening she was assaulted on Central avenue near Norton, by a man who threw her upon the sidewalk and was only prevented from accomplishing his purpose by her struggles and from the fact that her screams were loud enough to alarm the town. The poor woman entered a complaint and as Mr. Brown was observed walking behind her by parties along the street, suspicion was fastened to him.
A visit to the lockup found Mr. Brown and while he is not disposed to talk he declares that he was innocent; also that he was not in that part of the town where the assault occurred and that he was in a business place on Grand avenue at the hour at which the assault is alleged to have been committed. The trial or hearing will occur tomorrow morning.

The town is being billed for White's show to appear here on June 6.

The Nelson Drug company, of West
Superior, is opening a branch establishment at this place in the old bank room
O. O. Wold, formerly with Olson & Co., will have charge.

Yeager Bros., H. C. and George, are receiving a visit from their mother of Lebanon, O.

The last concert of the Choral union,
postponed on account of the very inclement weather of last week will positively come off on next Tuesday evening
when a splendid program of varied features will be rendered.

West Duluth Republicans will turn out to the primaries this evening and will carry the city for Col. Graves.

Chief Briggs will begin issuing warrants Monday for all dog owners who do not pay the license before that time.

The Methodist church was well filled
last evening to hear Chiniquy's lecture on the "Public School System." Tonight
he will lecture in the Scandinavian Lutheran church.

D. Cameron, a plain drunk, appeared before his honor this morning and deposited $10.

Mrs. F. C. Stamm and daughter left today for Princeton, Minn., to visit relatives.

There will be no change in the subject
at the Norwegian Lutheran church this evening.

Father Chiniquy will lecture in the Scandinavian Lutheran church, corner
Second avenue and Fifth street north,
Thursday evening, June 2nd. Will use
as his subject "Articular Confession."
This Father Chiniquy's greatest lecture and it is hoped that the church will be crowded. General admission twenty-five cents, reserved seats fifty cents.

AMUSEMENTS.

Winston Opera Company.
It was but a fair-sized audience that saw the Jeannie Winston Opera company
open its engagement at the Temple last evening. "Boecacio," Von Suppe's comic opera was the bill and was given a good presentation on the whole, although a little weak in some points. Miss Jeannie Winston takes a masculine role very well, both her voice and figure being adapted to the character. She has a strong voice of good quality
but was suffering from a severe cold
last evening as in fact were many of the company. Miss Alice Johnson, the soprano, was the favorite. She has a sweet and mellow voice, and a graceful and pretty manner. Renwick, the tenor, was not in good voice, neither was Henry Kenbury. Chas. Tyrrell
and Arthur Bell, the comedians, carried their parts well. The chorus is not very strong. The greatest fault with the presentation, however, is one that could be remedied, it seems to drag and needs more animation and brightness.
Tonight the company presents "La Perichole" by Offenbach, and their singing of this was well spoken of by the Baltimore papers where the company
first appeared.

Will Carleton.
The appearance of Will Carleton at the Lyceum Saturday night is being anticipated with interest. Everybody has read Carleton's poetry and is anxious to hear him. His poems have always been notable for the fact that they were peculiarly well adapted to public recitation, and, in truth, no one author is probably so much quoted in the most attractive elocutionary entertainments of the day.

Will Carleton, Lyceum theater, June 4
Holman Defended.

To the Editor of The Herald:
In interviews with Secretary Thompson of the chamber of commerce, by the local daily press, he is represented as using the following language in regard to the river and harbor appropriation:
"Mr. Holman, of Indiana, is the most obstinate opponent of the bill. He is a narrow-minded, picayunish man, and is anxious to cut the appropriation. He is from my own state, but when they elected Holman I left."

This seems hardly just to the old watch dog who is now serving his fourteenth term in the house, having been first elected to the Thirty-sixth congress back in the fifties. It is hardly picayunish for a government to live within its income,
and this is what Holman has aimed at.
It is not beyond the truth, I think, to say that he has, during his public service,
saved the American people $100,000,000
of useless taxation. Every congress needs a few experienced legislators,
thoroughly equipped and unambitious
statesmen, of whom Sherman in the senate and Holman in the house are perhaps the best representatives. Otherwise legislation would be a grab game.
The Duluth delegates to Washington have done good work in presenting the facts bearing on harbor and deep water
way improvements, but Duluth's interests will not be furthered by personal attacks upon the men who have the bill in charge. Without approving all that Mr. Holman has done or may do, it must be conceded that men of his stamp are a national necessity. The best public servants are oftentimes the least rewarded
and most eloquently damned.

MARK OF RESPECT.

The City Council Adjourns Out of Regard for the Memory of John J. Costello.

Aldermen and City Officials Will Attend the Funeral Services in a Body.

Only Necessary Business Transacted—Amendment to the Red Lake Falls Ordinance.

Out of respect for the memory of ex-Alderman and ex-President of the Council, John J. Costello, the council adjourned last evening after the transaction of only such business as was necessary. President Hugo arose and said: "It becomes my sad duty to announce to you the death of an ex-alderman and ex-president of the council. There are none who sat with him in the council, or who knew him, that cannot but feel that we have lost a public-spirited citizen. I presume no man rising from the ranks has made more friends or leaves fewer enemies than John J. Costello. It is such men as he that encourage us to lead better lives." The president then recommended the appointment of a committee to draft resolutions deploring Mr. Costello's death, and also that the council adjourn out of respect to his memory and that the aldermen attend the funeral in a body.

Alderman N. F. Hugo moved the appointment of a committee as suggested, and that the council and city officials attend the funeral. This was carried and Aldermen Long, Wilson and Kennedy were appointed.

But very little business was transacted. Alderman Wilson introduced an ordinance amending the Red Lake Falls ordinance to read that work must be commenced within forty-five days after the acceptance by the company of the ordinance instead of sixty days. It also provided that foot passengers may have the free use of the ferry to be built for transporting cars across the canal. The amended ordinance must be accepted within fifteen days. It went to the ordinance committee.

The Lake avenue viaduct contract was formally awarded to Fredin & Wilson. The paving of West Superior street from Third to Thirty-Second avenues west was ordered, the engineer's estimated cost being $87,177.02.

Acting Harbor Master Bob Smollett submitted a profile showing where buoy lights ought to be placed in the channels in the harbor. They were ordered placed, the buoys to cost not over $10 each. The monthly pay rolls were allowed.

THE SECTION THIRTY CASE.

A Fuller Digest of Secretary Noble's Decision.

The decision of Secretary Noble in the Hyde-Warren cases, involving the validity of a location made on a part of section 30 with Chippewa half-breed scrip under the section 30 clause of article 2 of the treaty of September 30, 1854, has been briefly stated heretofore. The Herald has secured a fuller digest of the decision, from which it is learned that Secretary Noble holds that the scrip is not assignable and any location made or attempted to be made by an alleged purchaser is invalid and cannot be sustained. He also holds that the scrip location is the subject of contest under the act of congress approved May 14, 1880, that the contest affidavit of one Emil Hartman was sufficient in form and substance, and having been first duly filed must be held to take precedence. After reciting at great length the history of the case and the action of previous secretaries, he says:

"From the facts before me I am satisfied that the contest affidavit of Hartman having been first filed in the local office and sufficiently corroborated must be held to take precedence of other applications for contest. Of his own showing the contest application of Hyde corroborated by affidavits of Powers and McDonalds were not filed until Oct. 29, 1886, long subsequent to the application of Hartman, Chandler and Barrick, and it appears that the hearing upon his application of April 10, 1886, was revoked for the reason that the department held in Hyde vs. Eaton et al. Feb. 18, 1889, and affirmed on review that Hyde's pre-emption claim for said tract was illegal. Besides Hyde's motion to set aside said order was not made until July 7, 1889, and his application to contest supported by affidavits were not filed until Oct. 29, 1889, and therefore cannot be considered until the prior contest shall have been decided.

"In addition to the foregoing it may also be observed that, according to his own showing, Hyde is now seeking to enter three other tracts under the homestead law. He cannot have two settlements claim for two tracts at the same time. Upon a careful consideration of the whole matter I conclude that the allegations set forth in Hartman's contest affidavit are sufficient to require a hearing to be had to afford him an opportunity to prove the same, that the other applications of contest must be held to await the result of said contest; that Hyde can claim nothing by virtue of his pre-emption claim for said northeast quarter of southwest quarter as against the government, because it has been decided by the department that his settlement claim was illegal, which decision was affirmed on review. The decision of your office is hereby reversed, and a hearing is ordered in accordance with the rules of practice upon Hartman's said allegations of contest.

Fire department fund—Balance May 1, $7,938.66; disbursements, $9,144.43; overdrawn,

$1,205.77. Library fund—Balance May 1, $2,991.40; disbursements, $184.27; balance June 1, $2,807.13. Park fund—Balance May 1, $1,350.93; disbursements, $560.09; balance June 1, $3,799.84. Total balances, all funds, June 1, $124,061.40.

IN THE FIRST DISTRICT.

The Situation on the Republican Side Very Much Mixed.

A well known gentleman from Southern Minnesota, who is in Duluth today, said: "The political situation in the First district is, from a Republican standpoint, somewhat mixed. Mr. Tawney is making every effort to secure the nomination, having as advocates some gentlemen of political tastes in St. Paul and also strong supporters at home, but he will also meet with determined opposition at home, and can scarcely secure a harmonious delegation even from his own county, and then only from among the politicians. On the other hand, B. Anderson, of Winona, has many friends who are pushing him forward, and he is especially strong at home and in Fillmore county and stands as good a chance of a nomination and election as any one. He is reputed to be a first rate fellow, and if elected will be a people's representative. Greer will carry his own delegation solid, and have strength outside. Keyes has not announced himself, but may be in the fight later. The reports here that he has left the district for good are not true, as he has informed me. He says perhaps he will not run, but he will not think any one can have his county if he wants it, and also Dimont. I do not think any are making an active canvass, except Tawney, although Anderson's friends are bringing him to the front rapidly."

CAR SERVICE REPORTS.

Duluth Handles More Cars With Less Delay Than Superior.

Chairman Kelly, of the Car Service association, has prepared his report for the month of May. There were handled in Duluth 7553 cars as against 5919 for Superior. This is quite a reversal from last month's record. Superior papers will please copy. In coal and coke Duluth handled 2641 cars to 2346 in Superior; wheat and other grain—Duluth, 2243; Superior, 922. Lumber—Duluth, 1008; Superior, 547. The number of days that cars were delayed in Duluth was 9181 and in Superior 5919. When the percentage of delay is figured out in comparison with the number of cars handled the difference is in favor of Duluth.

The Jefferson School.

The board of education met last evening as a committee of the whole and awarded the contract for excavating for the new Jefferson school to Traft Bros. & Co. at 22 cents per cubic foot for the earth excavation and $1.50 for stone. The Smead system of closets is to be placed in the school. The contract was awarded at $1350. Plans for a four-room building at Hunter's Park and a one-room structure at Woodland were requested of architects. The secretary will advertise for bids for frescoing the walls of the auditorium of the Central High school.

A Young Man Goes Wrong.

H. G. Crafts, a young man well known in business and social circles, has left the city in disgrace and is very fortunate in that he is not behind the bars. He has been cashier for L. J. Merrill & Co., and had been suspected of embezzlement for some time and an examination of the books showed that he was several thousand dollars behind. He had a house and lot at Onota and turned this over to his employers, and this with other assets was sufficient to make up the shortage.

Pennsylvania Headquarters.

The Pennsylvania headquarters at the Minneapolis convention will be at rooms 618 and 620 Lumber Exchange. There are a great many former Pennsylvania residents in Duluth who will attend the convention and the announcement is made for their benefit.

Death of Mrs. William Alexander.

Mrs. William Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. O'Connor, 14 Park avenue west, died at her home in Hayward, Wis., yesterday morning. The remains will be brought here on the afternoon Omaha train tonight for burial. Six weeks have scarcely passed away since Mrs. Alexander was summoned to this city to attend the funeral of her sister, Mrs. William Smith, wife of Capt. Smith, of the fire department. The deceased leaves her father, mother, a sister, three brothers, a husband and three children (the oldest of the latter being 9 years old) to mourn her loss. The announcement of her death was a sudden and unexpected shock and can only be felt to its full extent by her dear mother, who, though not recovered from the death of her other daughter, Mrs. William Smith, departed on the Omaha train yesterday in response to the telegram announcing the death of Mrs. O'Connor. The funeral will take place at 8:30 a. m. on Friday from the home of her parents and high mass will be said at St. Clements' church. The body will be laid to rest beside that of her loved sister whose death undoubtedly hastened her own departure for the better world. May she rest in peace and her many kind deeds be not forgotten.

If you want to drive over, drive your carriage on the Incline cars after tea. They will run until 9 p. m.

Ferdinand Schlesinger, the Chapin Mine Owner, is Now After the Cincinnati.

Annual Meeting of the Company and Election of Officers to Take Place Monday.

J. T. Hale May Not be Re-Elected President, Some Opposition Having Developed.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Cincinnati Iron company will be held next Monday morning, and it is quite probable that one or more propositions for leasing the mine will be considered. One of the men who has been looking up the Cincinnati is Ferdinand Schlesinger, who operated the Chapin mine on the Menominee range until three or four years ago, when he sold it to the Vanderbilts. Within a week, however, he has again purchased the mine. This may affect his negotiations for the Cincinnati. A Minneapolis Journal dispatch says:

"Ferdinand Schlesinger, who two or three years ago was the biggest mining and railway worker of the Menominee iron range of Northern Michigan, and who was at the head of the German syndicate called the Schlesinger syndicate, is now turning his attention to the new Mesaba iron range. Mr. Schlesinger is negotiating for a lease of the big Cincinnati mine, lying 48 miles back of Duluth, where considerably over 5000,000 tons of soft Bessemer hematite has already been measured up 'in sight.' He is to pay a mining royalty of something like 60 cents a ton, and is to mine a minimum quantity of 500,000 tons of ore a year. The mine is the largest and best yet opened on the Mesaba range. Mr. Schlesinger and his friends are after more mines on the same range. They now own and operate the famous Chapin mine on the Menominee range."

A. E. Humphreys is absent from the city and no authoritative information can be obtained as to the status of the negotiations. The election of officers takes place at Monday's meeting. J. T. Hale is now president, but it is said that he will not be re-elected, considerable opposition to him having developed, but for what reason is not given out.

ENDED HIS TROUBLES.

A Man Who Lost All at Monte Carlo Shot Himself.

NEW ORLEANS, June 2.—George Sebastian, 35 years of age, committed suicide here yesterday. Sebastian came here eighteen years ago and accumulated a handsome fortune in the cork trade. He went to Europe two years ago, visited Monte Carlo, stayed there several months and lost his entire fortune at gambling. He then returned to New Orleans to take a place as a laborer in the establishment he had formerly owned. This and the fact that he was in no financial condition to marry a young woman with whom he was in love, preyed on his mind, and he ended his troubles yesterday by shooting himself in the head.

IOWA TOWNS FLOODED.

A Repetition of Last Week's Disasters is Inevitable.

KEOKUK, Ia., June 2.—The Mississippi river rose sixteen inches yesterday and the Des Moines three feet. The water is again pouring through the break in the Egyptian levees and Alexandria is submerged. The river is rapidly rising, and at the present rate will soon reach the highest mark of the season. There were heavy rains all about Keokuk for the past forty-eight hours. Keokuk & Western and Rock Island trains are abandoned.

At Dubuque the Mississippi had risen twenty-four inches in twenty-four hours yesterday. The saw mills and packing houses have suspended and are moving their portable property elsewhere. The rain was still falling in torrents, with no sign of clear weather.

Burlington reports heavy rains with the river rising rapidly. Much damage has been done to farming property. Illinois and Iowa by wind and lightning and hardly a bridge or culvert is left standing. It has rained incessantly at Milford, Ottumwa and Cedar Rapids for forty-eight hours, flooding the lower stories of hundreds of houses. All streams are rising rapidly and a repetition of the disastrous floods of last week is inevitable.

HIGHEST FOR THIRTY YEARS.

The Mississippi's Rise Makes 1,000 Families Destitute.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., June 2.—The present high water in the Mississippi river reaches the highest point in the history of the country for thirty years. Forty thousand acres of land are submerged, destroying one thousand acres of growing crops and carrying away dwelling houses, barns and fences, leaving 100 families with nothing to keep warm from their door.

Fully 500 of the 1000 families are tenants and have neither food nor clothing, and are calling for aid from their more fortunate neighbors. No estimate can yet be put upon the property destroyed, but it will reach far beyond anything ever known in this country.

HE WILL BE LYNCHED.

A Negro Ravisher Will Hang If the Mob Can Locate Him.

TEXARKANA, Ark., June 2.—Yesterday morning before daylight, Jerome Fisher, a negro, entered the house of Mrs. Dooley, a white woman, and after choking her into insensibility, ravished her person. The negro then fled and was pursued by citizens. At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Fisher appeared at the residence of Sheriff Cannon and surrendered. He begged the sheriff for protection and a fair trial. He was taken to the scene of the outrage and identified by Mrs. Dooley, after which he was locked in the jail.

At 10 o'clock last night a mob of several hundred persons surrounded the jail and with sledge hammers battered down the doors and entered. The sheriff had, however, anticipated their action, and spirited the negro away and concealed him. The mob then began a search for Fisher, but up to a late hour had not discovered his hiding place. It is certain that the negro will be lynched as soon as the mob can locate him.

SUNK OFF WYANDOTTE.

Collision Between Two Propellers and the Progress Sunk.

DETROIT, Mich., June 2.—A disastrous river collision occurred last night off Wyandotte. The propeller Progress, of Milwaukee, coal-laden, bound up, collided with the propeller Britton of Rockport, shortly after midnight, and the Progress was sunk in twenty-five feet of water, disappearing in less than three minutes. Captain Sullivan and the crew of the Progress were saved and were brought to Detroit this morning. Neither the captain nor the crew would talk about the accident.

The Britton was badly damaged and was taken to Detroit. The Progress was a 1300 ton vessel and at $85,000. Her cargo was worth $5000. She is owned by the Milwaukee Transportation company. The Britton belongs to the same company, is a 1800 ton vessel and is valued at $200,000. She carried a cargo of iron ore.

The Venezuelan War.

CORO, Venezuela, June 2.—The villages of San Juan and Plaza Capadare were occupied by a small revolutionary force under command of Gen. Morales on May 14. At the latter place they met with a slight resistance. Gen. Salomoe, Palacios' officer, then captured him and his entire garrison and took the prisoners to Tucuyo. Gen. Gill, a rebel chief, has been captured at Palio.

Washed From the Track.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 2.—Clarence G. Wilson, of Burlington, superintendent of the Iowa lines of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, was washed from the railroad track at Dudley Wapello county at 9 o'clock last night by a sudden wave in the Des Moines river and was drowned. The body has not yet been recovered.

HE WAS POISONED.

The Sudden Death of Charles Krauz at Butternut, Wis., Has Developed a Sensation.

An Examination of His Stomach Shows That He Was Poisoned With Strychnine.

Mr. and Mrs. Lipke Arrested for the Murder—Mrs. Lipke Was Krauz's Wife.

ASHLAND, Wis., June 2.—Coroner Smith has been quickly at work unraveling suspicious circumstances surrounding the sudden death of Charles Krauz, at Butternut, last February, and now has possession of facts which will bring out one of the most sensational murder trials ever held in northern Wisconsin.

Accompanied by Sheriff Hynes and a posse, he has gone to Butternut, Wis., to arrest Julius Lipke and his recently married wife, Mrs. Chas. Krause, and to serve subpoenas on a score or more citizens of that place for witnesses.

Last December a sensational attempt at poisoning case was reported from Butternut, Julius Lipke, a well known citizen and property owner, being the accused party. Rumor had it that he had been very familiar with Mrs. Krauz for months. Mrs. Krauz tells the whole story as follows: Lipke had been anxious for a long time to get married to her, but on account of his personal appearance, he being hump-backed, his advances were invariably refused. Some time ago, Lipke wanted to get Krauz out of the way and tried to get Mrs. Krauz to come the poison act. In fact, gave her some strychnine and instructed her to put it into her food, and then to use it where it would do the most good, that is, on Krauz. Lipke, so it is alleged, also tried to work up a scheme to burn the Krauz residence. He even induced the Krauzes to come and live with him for a while in Butternut. Meanwhile Mrs. Krauz was slow with her poison act, and finally got scared and told her husband.

The outcome was that the sheriff went down to Butternut and arrested Lipke and took him to Ashland, but for some unaccountable reason the prosecution against Lipke was dropped. Last February Krauz died suddenly. According to his wife's story given at the coroner's inquest which followed, he died while she was cooking supper in the next room. She heard a slight groan and when she passed into the room, found her husband dead with a Bible lightly clutched in his hands. The coroner's jury decided that the death was a natural one, and rendered a verdict accordingly, but there was great indignation over the affair and calls were made for a further investigation.

The stomach of Krauz was cut out and sent to the Rush Medical college, Chicago, for scientific investigation. The recent report from the college scientists, stating that enough traces of poison were found on the stomach to cause death, gave Coroner Smith enough evidence to go ahead with the case. In the meantime Julius Lipke and Mrs. Krauz have been married and are now living at Butternut, and have no inkling of the fact that an investigation has been made and that officers are on their track.

H. PARSONS NOMINATED.

The People's Party Candidate for the Sixth District.

LITTLE FALLS, June 2.—The People's party congressional convention for the Sixth district was held here yesterday afternoon. C. T. Hines, Knight of Labor, of St. Louis, was made chairman, and F. Leigh of Todd, secretary. The St. Louis platform was adopted in its entirety, and O. G. Lyman, of Stearns, was elected delegate at large to the Omaha convention, with John J. Jensen, of St. Louis county; P. Seiberger, of Stearns; C. F. Bohall, of Todd; J. O. Caler, of Sherburne, as delegates. The alternates are J. H. Baker, of Duluth; M. Hamilton, of Wadena; M. Wessenberg, of St. Louis; A. H. Hendrickson, of Todd; E. M. Morton, Hubbard.

The Duluth delegation wanted to adjourn without making a nomination for congressman but were voted down. An informal ballot gave the following result: James T. Plant, Santiago, 13; Kittel Hall, vorse, Stearns, 21; H. Parsons, Duluth, 18; P. J. Seiberger, St. Cloud, 3; H. H. Hawkins, Pine, 12; total, 67. J. L. Robbins, of Stearns, then read the following letter from Kittel Hallvorse:

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 28, 1891.—J. L. Robbins, Suak County, Minn.—Dear Sir: Having just received your dispatches, that at the late Peop party convention, held at St. Cloud, I was indorsed for nomination. I deem it my duty to inform you, as one of the delegates to the congressional convention at Little Falls, June 1 next, that I am not a candidate and could not accept if nominated. My indorsement referred to above I regard as the highest compliment, and feel that I owe sincere thanks to those who have thus tendered this support. Hoping that your convention will be harmonious, and that its action will result in the consolidation of all the reform forces in our district, I am very truly yours,

K. HALVORSEN.

O. F. Bohall, of Todd county, also read a telegram announcing Mr. Plant's declination. The formal ballot resulted as follows: Parsons, 35; Plant, 14; Halvorse, 15; Seiberger, 4; Hawkins, 1; total, 69. Mr. Parsons made a brief speech accepting the nomination.

FELL DEAD IN CHICAGO.

A Young Man From Minneapolis Died Suddenly.

CHICAGO, June 2.—About 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon a young man supposed to be John Brandenberg, dropped dead in the union depot as he was about to take a Panhandle train. Brandenberg registered at the Gault house, Monday, from Minneapolis, Minn. In his pocket was a ticket to New Albany, Ind., and a letter with the postmark "Livingworth, Ind." The letter was signed "Pa and Ma," and contained an urgent request for him to come home.

It is supposed that he was on his way to visit his parents at the time of his death. He was 25 years old, five feet tall and wore a light colored suit. His body was removed to the morgue.

WENT OUT ON STRIKE.

Stonecutters on the New Soo Look Quit Work.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., June 2.—Yesterday the stonecutters employed on the new lock went out on a strike. They number over 100, and were it not for the three new stone planers recently set up by the contractors, work would be entirely suspended in the stone yard. As yet the stone planing machines have not been interfered with, but there has been talk among the strikers of stopping them. The cutters are receiving $4 for a day of ten hours. They demand $4 for a day of nine hours.

Hughes Bros. & Bangs, the contractors, say there is very little work all over the country and that they will not accede to the demands of the men. They say their floaters are making the trouble, and that the old and steady men are contented but were outvoted in the union.

THE READING COMBINE.

Measures in New Jersey to Break the Great Combination.

TRENTON, N. J., June 2.—The move against the Reading coal combine in the court of chancery Tuesday will prove an interesting one. Speaking upon the matter yesterday, Governor Abbott said: "I anticipate seeing the greatest legal contest the state of New Jersey has ever had. The law distinctly prohibits the consolidations of corporations, companies or individuals looking to the increase of prices, by and through such combinations, of the necessities of life. I know this monster combination can be broken."

ANOTHER TRAIN ROBBERY.

A Santa Fe Train Held up and the Express Car Rifled.

WICHITA, Kans., June 2.—The south-bound Santa Fe passenger train, which leaves Wichita at 5:45 p. m., was held up at 9:45 last night by masked robbers at the stock yards, near the station of Red Rock in the Cherokee strip. The train was flagged and the engineer and the fireman were taken prisoners. The robbers then entered the express car, broke open the safe and secured its contents. The passengers were not molested.

Deputy United States Marshal Madison at Guthrie has been notified and will organize a posse and start in pursuit of the gang, the number of which is unknown. The money obtained is thought here to have been intended for Indian payments.

HE MAY BE PARDONED.

Governor Flower Will Likely Release Labor Leader Barondess.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., June 2.—Governor Flower last night practically admitted that he intends to pardon Joseph Barondess, the labor leader. He said: "In the case of labor leader Barondess, who came from Boston and gave himself up to the authorities, I am convinced that he should be pardoned. This convict was sentenced for one year. The general term of the supreme court held that he committed no crime and now the court of appeals decides that he did. If the general term did not know it was a crime how was Barondess to believe it was? I will hear the arguments in his case on Saturday."

THE BISHOP SUSTAINED.

Father Hynes Has Lost on His Appeal to Rome.

ST. LOUIS, June 2.—The widely known and bitterly fought contest between Father Hynes, of Pierce City, Mo., and Bishop Hogan, of Kansas City, has at last been determined against the priest. Private information comes from Rome that the holy see has decided in favor of the bishop and that the priest's appeal has been decided in the prelate's favor.

Father Hynes' conduct of his parish in various respects was not satisfactory to Bishop Hogan, and for several years requests were disobeyed,

GONE FROM SIGHT.

The Four Causes of Mysterious Disappearance Are Lunacy, Infidelity, Love and Crime.

Some Remarkable Cases That Have Excited Wonder and Comment by the Public.

Occasionally the Absentees Have Been Heard of After Many Years Have Passed.

THE sudden disappearance of individuals from the midst of society may be traced to one of four causes—lunacy, infidelity, love or crime. In all large cities nearly every week presents some social phenomenon of the kind. A man leaves his home ostensibly to make a call on a friend and his absence proves eternal. Boys run away in search of adventure only to be heard from years afterward, perhaps in the criminal courts or under conditions in which recognition by friends is well nigh impossible. Young women abandon their families in sheer wantonness, and their lives end in shame or suicide. In some cases peculiar satisfaction seems to be derived from the desire to be talked about, yet after all how many of these may be prompted by the cunning of insanity?

A few years ago a young girl suddenly disappeared from her home in Vermont. She was supposed to have been murdered, and the police instituted a search for her body. Subsequently she was discovered in boy's clothes at work on a canalboat. When taken in charge she disowned her parents and stoutly maintained that she was a boy and had never known any other life than the one she was leading. When her mind was partially restored she was unable to recollect where she went or what she did after leaving home.

The number of disappearances that comes under the notice of the authorities in large cities during the course of a year is startling. Visit the headquarters of the police department of New York, and in the scrapbook of Superintendent Byrnes one may find hundreds of circulars that have been sent from various parts of the world offering large rewards for the discovery of missing people, and usually accompanied by photographic likenesses and elaborate descriptions.

Turning over these files you find records something like the following: E. D. Crawford, editor from Sedalia, Mo., disappeared March 10, 1892; "no cause assigned." Stillman W. Edgell, doorkeeper at state house, Boston; "absent since Jan. 24, 1892." William Henry Clark, superintendent West End Street Railroad company, Boston; "disappeared Dec. 4, 1890." Mrs. Alice M. Brennan, Boston, disappeared Sept. 16, 1890. Francis S. Emmons, Jersey City, disappeared Feb. 10, 1890; "was in the real estate business; left a happy family and business affairs all right, but has not been heard from since." Edward Delima, from New York city; "all trace of him lost since December, 1891; so far as is known he had no trouble at home and was engaged in a prosperous South American business."

Some of the cases are closed with the grim announcement, "Found drowned!" In one, that of Robert James Monahan, a prominent lawyer of West Chester, Pa., the story given to the police was peculiar. He had a large practice and was closely identified with the politics of his state. Suddenly he felt some mental influence taking possession of him which he could not control, and without warning he left his country home. Going to New York he remained at the Gilsey House for several days, and then started for Australia. He returned as mysteriously as he departed, declaring that all the events that occurred in the interim were a blank in his memory.

Many cases of mysterious disappearance are never reported to the police. Men and women who have no relatives or friends to care for them drift hither and thither like chips upon the ocean until they are swallowed up in the maelstrom of some great city, and we only hear from them when their bodies are found ready for the potter's field and marked "Unknown."

"There are thousands of girls in New York," said Superintendent Byrnes to the writer, "many of them refined and of excellent family, whose mode of life would satisfy their relatives or friends. Practically they have passed behind the curtain forever. A few of these may be recovered, but the majority prefer the lives they have chosen and remain deaf to the entreaties of agonized parents who plead with them through the personals in the newspapers to 'come home and all will be forgotten and forgiven,' or invitingly suggest that they may 'hear something to their advantage.'"

Another recent mysterious disappearance in New York was that of the wife of Dr. G. R. Peckinpau, of Mount Vernon, Ind. She was educated at a fashionable girls' school. Her married life is said to have been happy. She was clever with the brush and had a decided talent for literary work. When she left the hotel it was noticed that she was inclined to be hysterical, and it is now the supposition that she became suddenly demented through fear of a surgical operation that had become necessary. Days afterward, when all hope had been abandoned, her body was found in the Hudson river.

A few weeks ago a girl of spotless name and unexceptionable family disappeared from a peasant Ohio home. She was a belle in society and engaged to be married. For causes not made public the engagement was broken. One day she told her parents she was going to her music lesson and disappeared. It was subsequently ascertained that she bought a railroad ticket for Cincinnati, but since that time all trace of her has been lost. Did she become demented or reckless? Will she be found living under an assumed name as a servant in some family by whom her identity is unsuspected, seeking thus to avenge a fancied slight, or will she sink deeper among the dark shadows of the world? Who can tell?

The story is told of a man possessed of a good income and to all appearance happily married, who one day left home saying to his wife that he would probably be absent on business two or three weeks. She did not see him again for seventeen years, yet during the whole of that time he was living in disguise only a few rods away from his own home. His two children dying not long after his disappearance, the wife moved to another locality. The man likewise moved and, making the acquaintance of her next door neighbor, managed to establish such good relations with him that he dined in the home once or twice a week. Thus he could look into the room where his wife sat and received company.

One evening, after the lapse of time mentioned, he sent a note to her without signature requesting an interview. She laughingly showed it to her friends, with the remark that, old as she was, she was evidently about to get a gallant. A person present recognized the handwriting as that of the long absent husband, and the wife swooned. The pair met at the place of rendezvous, however, where the husband, coolly walking up, embraced his wife, saluted his friends as if he had been absent but a short time, and then, as the story goes, went home and lived in great harmony with his spouse until they were finally parted by death. He never explained the cause of his singular conduct, but it was probably the freak of an unsound mind which might not have betrayed itself in such a manner as to attract attention in any other way.

Several years ago a literary man of some eminence in France gave a shock to the community. Walking out one day while the streets of the town in which he lived were full of people, a gentleman standing in a doorway on the opposite side beckoned to him. In the sight of many to whom he was known he crossed and entered the house. From that moment he never was seen again, and friends, magistrates and other authorities instituted inquiries without purpose. In a similar manner Mr. S. S. Conant, one of the editors of Harper's publications, left home some years ago and his fate still remains unknown.

Among the mysterious disappearances which have subsequently been explained is that of a young London girl of excellent family. Advertisements, placards and large rewards were resorted to without avail. In time the event was forgotten. Forty years afterward a brother of the lady emigrated to Australia, and arriving at Sydney, his name was published in the list of the steamer's passengers. A day or two afterward, while at breakfast in the hotel, he was informed that a lady wished to speak with him. She proved to be the proprietress. On entering she inquired whether he was not the son of a gentleman living in a certain locality in England. On his answer in the affirmative she replied, "Then I am your sister." She told him that she had eloped with a man beneath her rank, who, emigrating to Australia, opened the hotel in which they sat and had made a fortune. As his widow she was still conducting the business, but owing to family pride she never had communicated with her relatives at home, fearing they would regard it as a degradation to find her living by her own industry.

Some years ago a young wife in a small Connecticut town left her old husband, taking her two children. The cause of her disappearance was not suspected, but it was believed that she was suffering from a mild form of dementia. Officers were placed upon her track. She was traced as far as a town in Maine, and when last seen was going in a violent snowstorm toward a dense patch of woods. Suicide, however, was far from her purpose. Making her way to another station on the line, she there took the train for her real destination, which was a western city, where she was to meet the man to whom she had pledged her troth in early life. The latter had made a fortune, purchased a home and furnished it, and by correspondence arranged all the details for the elopement. The children were too young to understand their new relationship, and the pair lived as husband and wife until on her deathbed she told the story of the manner in which she had practiced the deception that had led her former friends to believe her dead.

Medical science has occasionally played a more conspicuous part than the professional detective in unraveling the mysteries of some of the recorded disappearances. For instance, not many years ago a skeleton was unearthed on the seashore near a watering place. On examination the bones indicated that the person who alive must have walked with a peculiar and characteristic gait in consequence of some deposits of a rheumatic kind that had affected the lower part of the spine. This led to an examination of the records of the locality, from which it was discovered that a man answering the description had suddenly disappeared many years before.

In 1857 the terrible murder of Waterloo bridge, London, was brought to light by medical experts. Twenty-three pieces of a human body were found in a carpetbag. Pinned together, they were shown to have belonged to a man five feet nine inches tall and dark in feature. The probable date of the murder was also fixed, though no trace of the assassin could be found. Even so slight a thing as a button has served to reveal the sad story of the taking off of some poor victim of crime or accident. The record is a long one, however, and books might be filled with the strange romances of the men and women who in the twinkling of an eye have vanished from view as completely as if they had been caught up in a cloud or buried by an earthquake.

This Waist, which may be worn with round or Kilt Skirts, or Knee Trousers, is made of White Lawn. The Collars and Cuffs that decorate this cute little Blouse are finished with deep Hamburg Embroidery. Two neat box plaits are carried up the front on either side of the opening, which is made invisible by a ruffle of handsome Hamburg Embroidery and Finishing Braid. The fullness at the lower edge of the Waist is collected in gathers by a running string, the fullness dropping below in characteristic style.

Every mother should see these Blouses together with the many other bewildering styles in the Celebrated Star and Mother's Friend Waists we are now showing.

GRAVES WILL WIN.

He is the Choice of Duluth Republicans and Will Carry the Caucus Tonight.

The Kendall Campaign Has Been One of Falschhood and Malicious Misrepresentation.

Will Kendall Withdraw if He is Not the Choice of the Convention?

Tonight the primaries will determine who shall go into the Sixth Congressional district as the choice of Duluth for a candidate for congress. That it will be Col. Graves there seems not to be a shadow of doubt. Nobody realizes this better than the disheartened Kendall supporters, and they are resorting to every form of prevarication and malicious deception to injure Col. Graves. Every means that they can employ has been used against him. They demanded the support of all the county officials and threatened them with the opposition of the Kendall faction, which they assert will control everything in sight next fall, if they did not wheel into line. It was unsuccessful, however.

One of the malicious statements made as to Col. Graves' candidacy is that it is in the interests of Judge Searle and that his friends will throw their support to the St. Cloud man. This is on a par with the other campaign lies which have been circulated. If Col. Graves should be chosen as the candidate from Duluth he will lend every energy to securing the nomination. Should Mr. Kendall carry the convention Col. Graves will withdraw and make no attempt to get the nomination anyway but will lend his support to his present opponent. His supporters and Col. Graves, himself, frankly admit this.

On the other hand what is the attitude of Mr. Kendall? There is no guaranty that he will not bolt should the nomination go against him and in a spirit of revenge try to get the nomination anyway and thus make the choice of another candidate from the outside possible. Col. Graves in all his political career has never bolted a convention. The will of his party has been his. That is not H. C. Kendall's record. It will be well remembered how, a few years ago, he openly declared that he would not abide by the choice of a Republican convention, of which he was chairman, and went into the field as an independent candidate for the legislature, and was beaten. Mr. Kendall has given no assurance that he will not bolt again.

Another sample of the falsehood and misrepresentation which pervades the entire Kendall canvass is found in his organ and mouthpiece this morning. Special dispatches from Tower, Mesaba and Ely were published saying that Kendall had swept everything in the two latter places and had Tower in his pocket. Everyone of those dispatches is bogus and was written in the organ's office.

Col. Graves will have another difficulty to contend with this evening. Every caucus will be packed with Kendall men and everything which can be done to keep the Graves men from getting their ballots in will be done. Every inspector throughout the city is a Kendall man and some of them will bear close watching.

The morning papers have made conflicting statements concerning who have the right to vote at the primaries tonight. There should be no dispute on this point. Every man who intends to vote for the Republican candidate for congress at the election next fall has a right to vote at the primaries tonight. If the judges have no confidence in the man's statement they have power to ask him to swear to it.

There has been some confusion about the place for holding the primary caucus in the second precinct. The Tribune ward, but it is definitely settled that it will be held in the basement of the St. Louis hotel.

SPEAKS OUT BOLDLY.

C. A. Towne's Sentiments in Regard to the Candidates.

A Herald reporter saw C. A. Towne, one of the staunchest Republicans in the city and an ardent supporter of Col. Graves, and questioned him as to the situation. Mr. Towne is a straightforward gentleman and is not afraid to say what he thinks.

"My position is easily stated," said he. "It is Mr. Kendall's misfortune to be a victim of personal habits that make it of doubtful wisdom to devolve upon him the important, high and delicate duties of a representative in congress from one of the greatest districts in the Union. These habits are notorious. They are not even denied. The Tribune, which has been so able an advocate of Mr. Kendall all through this matter, in a burst of almost reckless candor, said this morning: 'His faults, if he has any grave ones, are those that spring from an excess of good fellowship and kindly feeling.' Truly an admission making seriously against a candidate whom it is proposed to submit to the allurements and temptations of Washington, which, compared to those of St. Paul, are as sunlight unto moonlight. The Tribune concedes that its candidate has these 'grave faults.' The phrase is that of his own champion. No one, so far as I know, assails Mr. Kendall's honesty. For myself, I have never maligned him and I never shall. This plain and confessed misfortune, or, to use the Tribune's own word for it, this 'grave fault' of his is sufficient reason for preferring at the national capital some one not so afflicted. And this sentiment, by the way, has been emphatically volunteered to me within ten days by two of the most prominent men whose Kendall interviews appeared in the Tribune a few mornings since.

"In Col. Graves we have a man of exemplary private character, of happy home life, of wide experience in public affairs, thoroughly acquainted with the routine of business at Washington, counting among his personal friends many of the influential statesmen of the country, and familiar with every interest in this district; a man of affairs, of affable disposition, of good judgment, and a shrewd knowledge of men. He has heretofore shown how he can get votes in this locality, and if the people here give him their deserved support at the primaries tonight he will assuredly be our next congressman.

"Just a word as to the absurd statement that Col. Graves' candidacy is really a move in favor of Judge Searle. It is not true. The judge is a good man, but we want a Duluth man, and whoever gets the endorsement of our county convention, whether Mr. Kendall or Col. Graves, I shall, on that ground at least, support. And such I believe to be the feeling of all the Republicans of Duluth."

From Gov. Gilman.

A Herald reporter meeting Gov. Gilman this morning and inquiring as to his remarks alleged to have been made regarding the Graves-Kendall contests said: "There was no justification for the statement, as I am taking no part in the matter, though I probably have remarked that a contest or disagreement here in Duluth would result to our benefit in St. Cloud and promote the success of our candidate. Both the candidates here are my friends and I cannot interfere between them."

$4.30 Excursion Rates, $4.30.

On June 3, 6, 7, 8 and 9, the St. Paul & Duluth railway, "Duluth Short Line," will sell round trip tickets to St. Paul and Minneapolis for $4.30, good returning until June 15. For tickets apply to A. NELSON, City Ticket Agent, 426 West Superior street, Spalding house.

A BLAINE SPOOK

The Harrison Men See It Lurking Behind Every Pillar at Minneapolis Today.

Still the Blaine Boom Had Not Made Its Appearance Up to This Afternoon.

Harrison Has Opened Official Headquarters and His Forces are Being Well Organized.

Blaine Cohorts, on the Other Hand, Complain They Have no Rallying Place.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 3.—The Blaine boom has not yet made its appearance. There is some solicitude over this fact, but it is not denied even by the rabid Blaine men that the boom is late in appearing. Senator Washburn gave a little Blaine dinner at his palatial residence, "Fair Oaks," last night at which Clarkson, Fassett, Payne and the other subcommittee men, who are just now the custodians of the Blaine boom, were honored guests. Those who were present are rather reticent about the proceedings and maintain that it was simply a little social gathering. It is considered significant that none of Washburn's friends in the Harrison camp were invited and it is generally believed that the Blaine plan of campaign was pretty carefully mapped out.

It was determined to open up Blaine headquarters somewhere as a sort of center of influence from which the workers can draw inspiration and instructions. This action will be taken tentatively and not openly. The determination to force Blaine into the fight and keep him there is making the Harrison managers more and more bitter. They are getting exceedingly sensitive and touchy. Behind every tree they see a Blaine spook skulking. As an instance of this is cited the kick that has just been registered by John C. New and his supporters against the big club mass-meeting to be held in the convention hall Tuesday evening just after the convention assembles.

The Harrisonians profess to have discovered in this big scheme to boom Blaine just when it would do the most good. They assert that the subcommittee refused to permit the meeting unless it could name the speakers. This was conceded by President John Goodnow of the Minneapolis state league of clubs, whose pet idea is the mass meeting for the spreading of Republican doctrines in the Northwest. It has just been announced that one of the principal speakers will be one of the leaders of the anti-Harrison movement. This fact is considered by the Harrisonians significant of the purpose to start a general big Blaine boom just after the convention has assembled.

John C. New and A. L. Conger, the Ohio Blaine leader, had a bit of an encounter in one of the corridors of the West hotel last night. There has been bad blood between these two men, who were formerly good friends, but who have been separated by force of political circumstances. They had been talking at one another through the newspapers a good deal, but until last night had not met. "I know what is the matter with you, Conger," said New. "You did not get your man appointed postmaster of Akron. That is all there is to it and that is the only explanation of your eccentric attitude." Conger replied indignantly and the talk ran pretty high, though both gentlemen kept their tempers.

The Harrison followers held an informal caucus last night at the West hotel. Nothing definite was done pending the arrival of the remainder of the Indiana delegation today. A meeting of the delegation is scheduled for tomorrow morning. It is now given out that J. Sloat Fassett, of New York, has declined the temporary chairmanship which had been informally tendered him by the subcommittee. He preferred not to banish himself from the floor of the convention even during the opening hours. The national committee will likely meet tomorrow to settle on the man.

Senator Stockbridge's special senatorial train has arrived but the statesmen that it brought in this morning are, with the exception of Quay, not in line with their preferences as between Blaine and Harrison. There were in the party Senator Stockbridge, in whose private car they traveled, Senators Sawyer and son of Wisconsin, Felton of California, Gallinger of New Hampshire, Quay and his son and Congressman Burrows of Michigan. Sawyer, Stockbridge and Burrows are leaning toward Harrison, while Gallinger and Felton are as yet non-committal. Other arrivals this morning were John R. Lynch, who heads the Mississippi delegation and is for Harrison, and L. E. McComas of the Maryland delegation, who indorses what Lynch says.

A canvas of the hotels and locations allotted for headquarters shows this morning that not more than 10 per cent of the accredited delegates to the convention are in the ground. Tomorrow the arrivals promise to be numerous, but the bulk of the actual nominee makers will not be in until Sunday. The advance guard includes men like Clarkson, Matt Quay, Conger, Kerins, Spooner, Stockbridge and a few others, whose weight and standing in the councils of the party is recognized, but the bulk of the talking is being done and the most of the noise being made by individuals, enthusiastic enough in their adherence to their respective favorites, but who will have neither parcel or lot in the actual proceedings when the roll of states is called for the selection of candidates.

It is much on the order of the hip-burrah that inaugurates a declaration of hostilities. Tomorrow and Sunday the skirmish lines will have been thrown out and then when the various state delegations have taken their places on the field and thrown out their banners the battle will have begun in earnest. Both sides are anxious for a preliminary count of noses. New has a list of a trifle over 500 delegates, all of whom he claims as instructed and pledged for Harrison, while he has a supplementary list of forty or so more that, while uninstructed, can in his judgement be reckoned as part of the president's forces.

But Clarkson who has a little list of his own in an inside pocket, puts the Harrison strength as 208 to a man. In this he is less liberal than J. Sloat Fassett, who has counted up an even 300 as the outside strength of the Harrison managers on the first ballot. As to Blaine's strength they are wary in making predictions. Clarkson's heart was made happy today by the arrival of Quay. The Pennsylvania senator came in shortly before noon on a special car with Senators Stockbridge, Sawyer, Felton, Gallinger and Congressman Burrows as company. Stockbridge and Sawyer are Harrison men, as between the latter and Blaine, while Felton and Gallinger were for the time non-committal.

Burrows, although an open Algerman, said that in his opinion, should the Blaine movement go so far as the placing of his name before the convention, Alger would not be a candidate. At the same time he had reasons to believe that before next Tuesday morning it would be definitely and authoritatively understood whether or not Blaine consented to the use of his name. "He will not write a letter," said Burrows, "but there are always two ways of doing one thing."

Senator Quay was not in a particularly amiable mood. He said that 99 per cent of the alleged interviews with himself during the past few days had been purely imaginary and that he did not propose to say a word until after he had conferred with Clarkson. It was developed that in the course of the trip there was an informal talk concerning available dark horses in the event of the situation demanding the selection of other than Harrison or Blaine. The names of Sherman and McKinley were talked of in this connection. Certain of the senatorial party took the ground that the nomination of either would not weaken the party in Ohio, and that the nomination of Sherman would open up the senatorial pathway to Foraker and thus heal the existing differences in the Buckeye state. It was also the sentiment that in the event of the nomination of either Blaine or Harrison, it would be good politics to put a far Western man in the second place on the ticket.

The arrival of Chauncey Depew is being anxiously awaited by the Harrison brigade. Advices from Chicago say that he cannot be here until tomorrow morning. By the exercise of his noted tact and diplomacy, the silver tongued orator from New York is expected to exert a powerful influence among the unstructured delegates. His declaration in Chicago the other evening to the effect that if Blaine entertained any intention of being a candidate or of accepting the nomination, provided it was tendered him, he ought to so advise those friends who have stood by him in previous campaigns, and that further, in the absence of such advices, his letter to Clarkson must be accepted as final and unequivocal, is boiled down to this: Blaine is not a candidate; no such man is in the field; ergo the Blaine movement is a delusion and a snare, and the once magnetic name now is no more than that of a man in buckram.

To this Clarkson, Fassett and their cohorts reply that Depew in a measure is right, that Blaine is still not a candidate in the general acceptance of the term, but that his party propose to nominate him, and that then he will bow in obedience to that party.

Harrison is the first of the candidates to have official headquarters established. This morning Gen. New took possession of suite 28 and 30, one of the apartments being fitted up for the accommodation of a small army of typewriters and stenographers. More thorough organization is essential to success, is the motto of the president's friends, and they say within the next twenty-four hours, with large accessions to their forces, they will have an organization complete in every detail, every man told off to a certain line of duty and expected to see that it is done.

Outside of Clarkson's quarters, on the other hand, the Blaine cohorts have no rallying place and of this they are complaining. They say that, like their opponents, they must have organization, or else they will be simply in the position of bushwhackers and will fail, if for no other cause, by lack of detail and concentration. It is all very well, they say, to argue as Clarkson has done, that Blaine does not need headquarters, that his cause is in the hearts of the people, and that an organized machine movement would deprive the Maine man's cause of that appearance of spontaneous sentiment that is now its chief strength, but at the same time they insist it must not and cannot be a one or two man movement, and that they must have the same systematic concentration and organization as the other side.

Powell Clayton, of Arkansas, ex-Lieutenant Governor Robertson, of Fort Wayne, Ind., who championed the Harrison element during the quarrels in Allen county, United States District Attorney Smiley Chambers, of Indianapolis, and Gen. Lew Wallace were among those who confided with Gen. New after dinner regarding the work to be done. Late this evening there will be a great accession to the Harrison forces. From all over Indiana there will come an advance guard of several hundred Hoosiers, wearing the Harrison colors, and most of them politicians with influence at home and acquaintances abroad. All of these will be primed with argument, supplied with political ammunition, and sent out among the various delegations as fast as they arrive.

Nothing will be left undone toward strengthening and solidifying the Harrison column and bringing it to victory soon and true. While the Blaine men are talking and shouting the other side proposes to be working, and working in the belief, as one of them expresses it, that there is less real Blaine sentiment to fight and ten times the Harrison en-

KILLED A SISTER

A Six-Year-Old Girl Beats Out the Brains of Her Baby Sister.

The Murderous Spirit Then Caused Her to Break the Neck of the Recently She Mashed Her Fingers and Toe Nails Badly With a Hatchet.

DANVILLE, Ky., June 3.—At Atoka, a village five miles from here, Moses Bottoms' 6-year-old daughter killed her 18-month-old sister. She beat out the child's brains and broke its neck with a piece of stove wood. The child seemed to bear some hatred to her baby sister, for only a few days ago she took it from the cradle and getting it on a rock, mashed its fingers and the nails with a hatchet.

After committing the crime, the child murderess called to her 15-year-old sister, who was in an adjoining room, telling her what she had done. When the elder sister ran into the next room the babe was dead, its blood and brains being scattered around the room.

A Hill Move.
NEW YORK, June 3.—A special to the World says: It is reported that Chairman Murphy of the Democratic state committee has summoned the delegates elected to Chicago by the February convention to meet him at the Hoffman house in New York on Tuesday. It is said that he intends to emphasize the instructions given them at the convention regarding the support of Hill for the presidency.

TWO DECISIONS REVERSED.
Supreme Court Rulings in a Couple of Duluth Cases.

A decision was handed down by the supreme court yesterday reversing the order of the lower court in the case of N. F. Hugo, respondent, vs. A. J. Miller, appellant. The case was reversed on an order that judgment be entered as demanded in the answer. The suit was over the sale of some property by Mr. Hugo as administrator. The court decides that the oath and affidavit were in form and sufficient notice was given, and says as to the publicity of the places of sale:

"Where the affidavit of posting points out to the probate court the exact place of such posting and the court, its duty being to see that the publicity of the notice as well as the regularity of the sale itself, is satisfied that the places named are three of the most public places in the county, and has so found and recited in its order of confirmation of the sale, the determination of the court on the mere question of the publicity of these places must be held conclusive in all collateral proceedings."

The decision of the lower court was also reversed in the case of F. J. Shipp, respondent vs. G. G. Hartley, et al., defendants, G. G. Hartley, appellant. The syllabus says:

"Admissions and declarations of one member of a firm to be admissible in evidence as against and to bind his associates must be made while he is engaged in transacting legitimate business, or made in relation to matters within the scope of the partnership business, when in fact he has no connection with it."

Van Baalen Assigns.
The voluntary assignment of Samuel Van Baalen, the shoe dealer at No. 5 West Superior street is announced and the deed of assignment has been filed with the clerk of the court. Theodore G. Freker is the assignee and Henry S. Gates & Co. are judgment creditors to the amount of $726.75. No preferences are announced, and no schedule of assets and liabilities has been filed.

Will Take a Hand.
Rev. E. O. Sharpe has shed his castor into the ring and will preach next Sunday morning on "Truths Chiniquy Dared Not Tell." He promises some surprises for those who heard Chiniquy, and says that the latter is a brave man, but circumstances prevented him from saying many things which he should have said.

Yardmaster's Convention.
Fred Dewey, yardmaster of the Northern Pacific railway, J. McNaught, of the Great Northern and D. C. Clark of the Lake Superior Terminal and Transfer company, have been elected delegates from the head of the lakes to attend the yardmasters' convention at Lincoln, Neb., next Tuesday. They leave Sunday afternoon.

Chairman Campbell Here.
Hon. W. M. Campbell, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, is in the city. He came up to attend the funeral of his old friend John J. Costello. While here he will undoubtedly take occasion to look after the interests of his party. Mr. Campbell expects to see Harrison nominated at Minneapolis, but says it is very doubtful.

The Weather.

A VETERAN INDEED

History of a Retired Soldier Who Served Uncle Sam Nearly Half a Century.

Previous to That He Had Also Spent Twelve Years in the German Service.

New Bedford, Mass., Has a Novelty in a Colored Girl Who is a Barber.

J. J. SCHWARZ.

In Boston there lives a man with a remarkable military record. His name is Jacob J. Schwarz, and he is a retired sergeant of the United States army. Schwarz has seen just four score years of life, and of these fifty-eight years have been spent in the army, forty six in Uncle Sam's service and twelve in the German service. The veteran is unable to read English, but he gets all the news from a young lady living in the same house who takes the newspapers.

Schwarz was born in Weidenhain, Germany, in 1812, and attended school until he was fourteen. When he was twenty he enlisted in the infantry, and was assigned to the unpleasant work of breaking in recruits. When Otto was made king of Greece Schwarz was one of the battalion which acted as his escort, and which marched sixty-three days continuously on that occasion. Upon the expiration of his six years' term of enlistment Schwarz concluded to serve his country another term. He came to America in 1845, and the following year he enlisted in the army in Albany. He served throughout the Mexican war, and his regiment was the last to leave the seat of trouble. He spent five years in Texas with the Second Dragoons, and in 1853 was ordered to the territory of Kansas. He was there during the exciting proslavery and free state campaigns, when a great deal of talking and considerable fighting were done. After his regiment left Fort Riley it went to Fort Leavenworth, and afterward to Fort Precher, where every one suffered greatly owing to the nonarrival of a provision train, which was burned en route. Then Schwarz was sent to Utah during the Mormon troubles, and was one of the party which built the first road from Salt Lake City to the little village of Genoa, Nev., on the California border.

When the war between the states broke out Schwarz's regiment was stationed at Fort Carney, but immediately went to the front, reaching Fort Monroe March 10, 1862, the day after the famous marine duel between the Monitor and the Merrimack. He served gallantly throughout the civil war and participated in the battle of the Wilderness and several other of the most important engagements. In 1864 he was ordered to Boston and there informed of his promotion to the rank of orderly sergeant. Thence he was sent to Fort Winthrop, on Governor's island, New York harbor, where he was married the following year. He had but one child, a daughter, who died when she was twenty years old, and the old man was so grief stricken that he left the service, and has since lived on the money received from the government as a sergeant on the retired list.

Schwarz has a remarkable memory for dates and incidents, and important occurrences which would have escaped the attention of most persons are related by him with an accuracy of detail which is little short of startling. Although eighty years old the veteran enjoys perfect health and says he can see no reason why he should not pass the century mark.

She Wields a Razor.

New Bedford, Mass., has a genuine novelty in the person of Nannie Stanislaus Prober, a colored girl who is a barber. She dresses as nearly as possible like a man without violating the proprieties. Her attire consists of an ordinary coat and vest, with the regulation linen bosom shirt, bow tie, and standing collar, but she wears a dress with a rather snug fitting skirt.

Still, as she prims her hair on the side and affects a stylish stiff silk hat, her appearance is anything but "superlatively feminine."

When she first appeared in New Bedford she created a wild sensation. But, like the wise politician, she said nothing and sawed wood, or rather shaved faces. Her manner was so quiet and unobtrusive that she speedily made friends, and those who at first went to her to be shaved as a matter of curiosity now patronize her because they have ascertained that she is a good barber and, unlike most persons who wield the shears and razor, never engages in conversation with a customer.

Nannie is a small woman of neat appearance, and is said to be the only colored female barber in that portion of New England. She speaks French fluently, and is determined to perfect herself as a violin player, and as she was for some time a school teacher it will be seen that she is a young woman of more than ordinary attainments. She barbers because she can "honestly make more at that than any other pursuit." In defense of her mode of dress she says: "When you think of the trade I follow, you will readily see that men's garments are much better fitted for it than those worn by women. I wear the shirt and collar because it gives an idea of general cleanliness, and the following manner went to Nantucket, where she remained for three years before going to New Bedford."

Miss Prober is the daughter of Rev. Robert E. Prober, who was a minister of the A. M. E. church. Her five brothers are all barbers, and it is due to their instruction that she now has a trade by means of which she is enabled to earn a good living. She is twenty-six years old and is a graduate of Store's college, Harper's Ferry. She became a country school teacher, but found there was lots of work and little money in it, and she then took up her present trade, locating first at Narragansett Pier. She did very well there, and the following summer went to Nantucket, where she remained for three years before going to New Bedford.

ford she wielded her razor at Cambridge and was the pet barber of the Harvard students.

WHIP AND SPUR.

Judge Morrow, winner of the Brooklyn handicap, only cost his owner, G. B. Morris, $4,500.

Baron Hirsch will devote the whole of his turf winnings in 1891, $35,000, to hospitals and other institutions.

The American trotter, General Scott, won the International sweepstakes of two miles at Alexandria park, London, in 5:16.

Senator Stanford will send a stable of Palo Alto bred 2-year-olds to Washington park in 1893 and race them in his own colors.

Newton's Allie Wilkes was knocked flatter than a flounder while crossing an electric car track Toledo, but completely recovered in a few hours.

The total sum distributed to owners at Guttenberg from Oct. 16, 1891, to May 14, 1892, was $311,000, the financial result of 1,038 races run in 173 racing days.

M. F. Dwyer has given General W. H. Jackson, of Belle Meade stud, the refusal of Kingston, by Spendthrift, when his racing career is over. The price agreed upon is $20,000.

The king of Italy is raising trotters. He has bought the American bred stallion Hambleton, 2:20½, foaled 1875, by Florida, dam Lady Woodhall, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, and four mares for $30,000.

At the eighth annual exhibition of the National Horse Show association at New York, Nov. 14-19, $34,000 will be distributed among classes for thoroughbreds, trotters, hackneys, draft horses, hacks, hunters, jumpers and ponies.

The grand old trotting gelding Rarus died at Mr. Robert Bonner's Tarrytown farm recently. Rarus was bred by the late B. B. Conkling, of Greenport, L. I. He was foaled in 1867 and trotted his first race at Hornellsville in 1874. Mr. Bonner paid $36,000 for him in 1879.

Dwyer Bros. have not been lucky buyers. Bolero cost them $35,000 and was sold for $2,000; Flatbush cost them $3,000 as a yearling, and was sold by them for $38; Houston was bought by them for $8,000 and sold for $300; Tea Tray cost them $10,000, and lost more than double that amount for his owners.

FADS OF FASHION.

Wide baby sashes of moire or fancy ribbon will be very much worn with summer dresses.

Breakfast jackets are made of flowered delaines and nainsook, and trimmed with Valenciennes lace and ribbons the exact shade of the pattern.

English jackets of pale chambray colored cloth are worn with pretty blouse waists of cherry silk laid in fine plaits and fastened with tiny gold buttons.

Dressing gowns are almost as pretty as tea gowns. One made of pink wool stuff has white lace about the neck, a hood frilled with lace and a girdle of white silk cord.

Victoria silk is a new, soft variety, not unlike sideline, and is much used for evening wraps. In cream white tints it is also the latest Parisian elegance for evening dresses.

A novel summer cloak to wear over a silk dress is made entirely of black lace, with large bishop sleeves and a ruffle of lace at the neck. It falls in loose folds, has no lining and reaches to the feet.

Red is to be extensively used in millinery, not only the deeper shades, but the lightest scarlet. Gilt wire bonnets are embellished with field poppies and trails of trumpet creeper and loops of red ribbon.

Many white dresses for summer are made up over yellow silk with wide yellow sashes at the belt or yellow silk girdles. Spanish yellow ribbons of either silk or velvet are used as a garniture for cream white wool gowns or those of soft silk.

A pretty trimming for white and light evening dresses consists of three rows of falling loops of white ribbon, forming a band nearly nine inches wide. With the same on the waist and sleeves, it is a very effective trimming and inexpensive.

CURIOUS CULLINGS.

Waterspouts were anciently supposed to be dragons. In the "Arabian Nights" they are spoken of as genii. Chinese sailors beat drums and gongs to drive them away.

In Burmah it is rather a suspicious thing to give money for a charitable object. It is supposed to mean that the donor has been very wicked, and is desirous to make amends.

"Always remember," said a Massachusetts high schoolman, in his rhetoric class the other day, "what a proposition to end a sentence with."

It is said that some of the Venetians—those who have never been to the mainland—have never seen a horse in all their lives. A showman once brought one to a fair and called it a monster, and the factory hands paid fifteen cents each to see the marvel.

In the kingdom of Poland there was formerly a law according to which any person found guilty of slander was compelled to walk on all fours through the streets of the town where he lived, accompanied by the beadle, as a sign that he was unworthy of the name of man.

The kitchen god in China at the beginning of every year is supposed to ascend to the supreme ruler to report on the private life of each family under his care. Lazy wives, whose housekeeping is not irreproachable, smear the god's lips with sugar just before his departure, bribing him to make a favorable report to heaven.

FLOWER AND TREE.

There are two yew trees in the Department of the Eure, in France, which are supposed to be 1,500 years old. They measure about thirty and twenty-six feet in circumference, respectively.

The results of experiments on hastening the germination of seed show that camphor and oxygenated water appear to be the most energetic excitants, not only as regards the acceleration of germination, but as affecting the vigor of the plants.

A sunflower evaporates 1½ pints of water a day, and a cabbage about the same quantity. A wheat plant exhales in 172 days about 100,000 grains of water. An acre of growing wheat, on this calculation, draws and passes out about ten tons of water per day.

The witch plant, which is the astonishment of the native Australians as well as of the foreigners, resembles our common plantain in the matter of leaf. Six or eight of these leaves, sometimes 1½ inches broad and 5 inches long, often spring from a single "stalk," which sits flat on a bare spot without the least sign of root!

Dr. Speer & Co., West Superior, Wis.

Gentlemen—According to the promise I gave I forward you a testimonial of the troubles I had.

I, George H. Thompson, make the following statement regarding the skill of Dr. Speer & Co., whose marvelous cures have won them a high reputation as successful physicians:

To whom it may concern: For a long time I had been a constant sufferer from catarrh of the bladder, accompanied by pains in the back, loss of flesh and, what is worse, that feeling of lassitude which overcomes sufferers from this disease, rendering them wholly unfit for work and making life a complete burden. I treated with several different physicians without obtaining any relief, and had almost abandoned hope, when I was prompted to seek the advice of a specialist. Accordingly, in June last, I consulted Dr. Speer & Co., placed myself in their care and now am happy to say that I am completely cured, thanks to their skillful treatment. Any further information will be gladly furnished to all who may feel interested.

Saved the Engineer.

Harry Miller, an engineer stopping at the Norris House in Duluth, has been afflicted for four or five years with loss of self-confidence, with nervousness, sleeplessness, pain in the head and back, lassitude of the muscles and cold, clammy sweats, and was, at the time he began treatment with Dr. Speer four months ago, a total wreck, both in his physical and nervous system. He is now wholly recovered and stands ready to go before any Justice of the Peace and swear to the facts above set forth. Dr. Speer's office is in the New York Block in West Superior.

CUT DOWN YOUR SHOE BILL.

Attention, Mothers and Fathers! Why not have your Shoes and Kid Gloves as well as those of your Children looking like new continually? Why have them looking worn and rough when you can avoid it?

To do this you have only to oil them once a month with Tanner's Oil. Tanner's Oil does not injure but benefits the leather. It is now prepared by us for families. It prevents leather getting hard and from cracking, keeps it looking fresh and smooth, makes it soft and pliable and absolutely water-proof. Best of all—Shoes and Gloves kept thusly in good condition—will outwear three pair worn ordinarily. One box should last a family of three one year. On ladies' and children's wear you should use it instead of Blacking.

Gentlemen can shine their shoes after using it equally as well as before. All we desire is to have you give it a trial. Shoe Dealers, Glovers, and those Dry Goods merchants who sell Kid Gloves should have it on hand to furnish up their stock that has become shopworn. It will give it an absolutely new appearance. Your youngest apprentice can apply it. Price by mail 40 cents. Special price to Dealers.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN.,
June 3.—Generally fair weather continues over all sections except the Ohio valley and lower lake region, where rain still continues and has been heavy around Lake Erie. Detroit having over 3 inches in the past twenty-four hours.Over Lake Superior the conditions have changed very little, both in weather and temperature, but an area of low pressure that is now north of Minnesota, and another forming over Colorado will soon bring a change in the temperature, as it is now over ten degrees lower than at any surrounding point, and considerably below the normal.The highest point reached by the temperature here yesterday was 51°; lowest last night, 41°.DULUTH, June 3.—Local forecast for Duluth
until 8 p. m. June 4: Fair; warmer.

COL. GRAVES A WINNER.

The battle at the primaries has been fought and the Kendall forces have been utterly routed. Reports from all along the line show that Col. Graves has won a splendid victory. His friends have carried the city by a large majority and will have complete control of the convention at the city hall tomorrow, thus ensuring the selection of a solid delegation from St. Louis county to secure Col.
Graves' nomination in the district convention.Of course the Kendall men are still making loud claims and asserting that they will have a majority in the convention tomorrow. This is on a par with their statements up to the close of the polls last night that they were going to sweep the city—from end to end. The result shows how little dependence is to be placed in their assertions about any feature of the contest. Having been beaten badly, they are now playing a game of bluff and they will keep it up until the convention
meets and elects delegates pledged to support Col. Graves for the congressional nomination. The Kendall men rest all their hopes of controlling the convention
upon securing the votes of the delegates from the Vermilion range, but there is the best of authority for asserting that their hopes in this respect will be blasted
when the delegates reach the city tomorrow. Col. Graves' friends have assurances that he will be supported by every delegate elected upon the range last evening, and this will make sure his control of the convention.The Herald congratulates the Republicans of Duluth and of St. Louis county upon this happy outcome of the contest at the primaries. It has supported the candidacy of Col. Graves because it believes that he is the best man of the
two to represent this district in congress,
and it is pleased that it has been able to contribute in no small degree to his success at the primaries. Every loyal Republican should now lend his assistance
in the fight for the nomination. Col.
Graves has a large acquaintance and
many friends throughout the district,
and he will leave no stone unturned to secure success. If the Republicans of Duluth give him the united support that he should receive his nomination will be assured.

SOME OF THE SURPRISES.

The primaries developed some surprises for both sides, but the biggest surprise was in store for the Kendall men.
They went around town during the past week, asserting that they were going to sweep the city from the Lakeside line to West Duluth. They would concede their opponents but two or three small precincts. They emerged from the contest with but half the number of delegates elected by Col. Graves' supporters, and were beaten to a standstill in quarters which were their fancied strongholds. They had counted solidly on the West End and pooh-poohed the idea of Col. Graves getting a single delegate from that section. Even the most conservative Kendall men previous to last night would not admit that but more than one precinct west of "the point of rocks" was likely to elect Graves' delegates.The returns show that they were badly fooled or were merely talking for effect. But one precinct west of Sixth avenue went for Kendall. Out of eleven delegates elected west of that point, he has but two. The Second and Third wards went solidly for Col. Graves and this was another surprise for the Kendall men who had boasted that they would carry several precincts in the East End. They were downed in every precinct by crushing majorities. They have probably carried the First ward, though one precinct is disputed, and got
two out of the four precincts in the Fourth ward. The surprise to Col.
Graves' supporters was the result in West Duluth. They had great hopes of carrying West Duluth, but the vote shows the Kendall men were better organized there.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM.

President Hyde, of Bowdoin college, Maine, has taken up the subject of the neglect of the churches in the rural districts of New England. The picture that he gives in his essay on this subject, which is printed in the June number of The Forum, confirms the fragmentary statements that have been frequently made of the rapid decline and in some places the utter neglect of churches in the country districts of New England.
So much impressed is President Hyde with this retrogression that he calls his article "Impending Paganism in New England." He quotes statistics and the statements of careful observers to prove that in not a few country places the churches have so dwindled as to have on their rolls only the names of a few women, with hardly enough men to do
the practical work of a church organization.In one county in Maine, for example,
where there are 6,987 families, 4,850 attend no church; in another county where there are 7,288 families, 4,577 attend no
church; in fifteen counties which contain 133,455 families, 67,842 attend no church. President Hyde maintains,
however, that the discouraging fact
shown by these figures is not the worst feature of the situation. Worse than this is the un-Christianlike rivalry between the several sects in many small places where there is a total church attendance hardly large enough to maintain a single organization. The cause of this decline he finds chiefly in the fact that each sect regards the other with so much jealousy that the work of the churches has ceased to be the building
up of character, and has degenerated into a scramble for membership.The problem that is presented by this state of affairs President Hyde calls
"the most serious spiritual problem that confronts American Christianity." "For its solution neither conviction, nor man,
nor money are lacking, but the one thing
needful is a plan of action whereby the forces that are now so wastefully divided may be united and applied to a high purpose." Since this decline has been caused by the preaching of a barren theology and too great insistence on pure theological doctrine, the remedy, of course, is for the practical exemplification of Christian conduct, not simply by the leaders of each church to its own members, but as between the several sects.President Hyde's discussion deserves
a careful study as the most thoughtful presentation of these discouraging facts that has been made. He himself is a clergyman, and has given much time to original investigation into the condition of the religious community from which his institution draws its patronage.

IT DID GRANDLY.

The Third ward did nobly last night.
Every precinct elected delegates favorable to the nomination of Col. Graves.
They were chosen by overwhelming majorities, which showed unmistakably
the preponderating sentiment of the people of that ward in favor of Col.
Graves. An especial fight was made in this ward by the Kendall men, who endeavored to prejudice the people against
Col. Graves by asserting that the proposed bridge from Fifth avenue west to Park Point would injure the Third ward, and that Col. Graves, being connected with the Duluth & Northeastern company, would, if elected to congress, be able to wield sufficient influence with the war department to obtain permission for the building of the bridge.The people of the Third ward refused to be misled in this manner. They showed by their emphatic vote in favor of Col. Graves that they are not so narrow-minded as the Kendall men supposed. They refused to be caught by such a cry and effectually rebuked those who sought to gain votes by arousing prejudice and ill-feeling. The Third ward did splendidly, and Col. Graves and his friends are indebted to it for its firm stand.

THE SATURDAY HERALD.

Tomorrow's issue of The Herald will contain numerous features of more than usual interest, carrying the outcome of the management to make the Saturday edition a highly entertaining and instructive newspaper.The Herald's special correspondent at Minneapolis will send a lengthy dispatch giving all the latest gossip concerning the Republican national convention and its probable action. The Herald's correspondent is a bright and gos-sipy writer, and his dispatches will be found very interesting.Bishop McGolrick's jubilee, in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, will be dealt with in an article that will interest every citizen of Duluth, irrespective of religious belief.The graduating exercises of the High school will be held at an early date, and some additional facts in relation thereto will be given in tomorrow's issue. The approaching meeting of the grand lodge of the Odd Fellows will likewise receive extended mention.Bill Nye's weekly letter is very humorous. William tells what he knows about hens, and gives some directions about the festive layer that are original in their conception and amusing in their results.
The ladies will be sure to read "The Catechism of Love," a very bright article by Mrs. Frank Leslie, in which she gives some hints to men and maids in regard to matrimonial proposals. The latestParis fashions will also be described with illustrations.George Bavaud will discuss the Democratic leaders in Chicago and relate how they are trying to make the national convention a success this year so far as details go. This article is well illustrated.The latest gossip concerning the dramatic and musical world; the movements of Duluth society, and a review of the latest books and magazines will add to the interest of the paper. The news of the day, local and foreign, will be found, as usual, complete to the hour of going to press.The editorial ostrich of the News pulled his head out of the sand for a few minutes last evening, said it was impossible to predict the result surely, and again plunged into his retreat. He will probably be heard from again Sunday morning, after the convention has been held and the agony is over.David B. Hill should follow Mr.
Blaine's illustrious example and write a letter of declination. In that way he can avoid the sting of defeat, while if his prospects of nomination brighten he can do as Mr. Blaine is doing, pull the string attached to the letter.Rev. Dr. Parkhurst is on the briny deep, en route to Europe where he will remain several weeks. It is to be hoped that the doctor will not get out after dark in Paris without a guardian. He is liable to strike a game of "leap-frog."A month ago everyone thought the Minneapolis convention would be a tame affair—a mere Harrison ratification meeting. Now it promises to be one of the most interesting conventions
the country's history.The Herald will have the most complete reports of the Republican national convention which will be published in Duluth. No other paper in the city has equal facilities for getting the news.Rudyard Kipling gets $150 for each letter that he supplies to the London Times. There is a certain letter for which President Harrison would give more than that figure.Brooklyn clergymen are trying to convince their fair evangelists that it is not necessary to marry a Chinaman in order to convert him. If he succeeds, Chinese converts will be scarce.As usual, the Tribune's prediction of
the result of the primaries in Duluth was wide of the mark. It is always safe to bet against a Tribune prediction.The Blaine boom has not reached Minneapolis yet, and some of the anti-Harrison men are getting anxious for fear it has been side-tracked.The Chicago Times thinks there is some reason to fear that Henry Watterson's goddess is going to get her star eyes blacked in Chicago.The Saturday edition of The Herald is the greater newspaper of the week in Duluth. It will be greater than ever tomorrow.The officeholders still insist that Harrison should be renominated. The disappointed officeholders still shout for Blaine."The colored troops nobly." For further proof ask those who attended the primaries last night.As goes Duluth, so goes St. Louis county in the convention tomorrow.

AMUSEMENTS.

"La Perichole."

The Jeannie Winston Opera company
made a much more favorable impression
last evening, although there was again a small audience. "La Perichole" was presented and was very well sung. The opera moved much more smoothly and livelier and the costumes were much more creditable. Miss Winston as Pequilla was very good and sang well,
although suffering from a severe cold.
Her song, "Dear Woman," in the second act, was particularly good. Miss Alice Johnson as La Perichole was quite charming and is becoming quite a favorite.
Not only does she sing excellently, but her ability as an actress is considerable.
Arthur Bell as the old prisoner was good and decidedly unique. The balance of the characters were well taken.Tonight the company will sing "Fra Diavolo" in which Miss Winston takes the leading male role in which character
she is remarkably masculine. Tomorrow afternoon the company will present that pretty and tuneful opera "Chimes of Normandy."

Carlton's Entertainment.

Will Carlton's engagement at the Lycium tomorrow night will probably be the most notable of the High School Lecture association series. In no man

HIS NECK WAS IN DANGER.

An Innocent Man Twice Nearly Hanged by a Mob.KEY WEST, Fla., June 3.—Ernesto Camero, a Cuban, twice came near being hanged by a mob yesterday for a crime he did not commit. Rena Illoker, 9-year-old negro girl, was assaulted Sunday and she was supposed to have indicated Camero as her assailant. He was arrested and arraigned before Justice Delamar, but dismissed. It was learned by the crowd in the courtroom that he had let the prisoner go through partiality, and in two minutes a rope was thrown around Camero's neck, but before he could be strung up somebody released him.Camero then rushed to the justice for protection, but Delamar was roughly handled and the rope was fixed around Camero's neck again and swung over a beam in the courtroom. As it began to tighten Camero said the guilty man was named Fernandez. He had refused the information before. Delamar recalled his decision and committed Camero to jail.Ten minutes after Fernandez was told of the fury of the mob and that his guilt was known. Alarmed at this he stabbed himself over the heart in the neck, and was dangerously hurt. He was arrested and jailed. Believing he was dying, he confessed and cleared Camero.

CYCLONE IN TEXAS.

A Town Reported to Have Been Annihilated.

CORPUSCANA, Tex., June 3.—The cyclone which prevailed Wednesday in Texas did great damage here. Peach and other fruit and shade trees, nearly as large as a man's body, were twisted off at the trunks. The damage was extremely heavy on oats and corn, as well as fruit. Corn that stood in some places
ten feet high, and was well cared out,
has been blown completely down all through the country.The cold weather that followed will greatly retard the growth of cotton and may reduce the yield. Three houses were blown down in this city, but no lives were lost. Telephone and electric light wires are badly prostrated. It is reported that the town of Angus, five miles north of here, has been wiped off
the face of the earth, but the report has not been verified.

A DISASTROUS CREVASSE.

Twenty Feet of Levee Gave Way in Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—At 9 o'clock
yesterday a disastrous crevasse occurred on the right bank of the
the river a few miles below Donaldson-ville, La. Twenty feet of levee gave way at one time and the water poured through at a terrible velocity. In one hour the crevasse had widened to fifty feet.The water from this crevasse will not only flood a half dozen plantations, but will suspend traffic on the Texas Pacific railroad which is one and a half miles back from the river. It is believed that this crevasse will prove to be the worst
one that has so far occurred.

cent on preferred stock and 6 on common were declared.

Nine Men on Trial.

FORSYTHE, Mo., June 3.—The trial of the nine men for murder will begin in earnest now as the jury has been secured.
There are over a hundred witnesses in the cases. The feeling is very high, but the sheriff has sworn in an extra number of deputies and the close surveillance of all strangers in the town may have the effect of keeping things quiet.

have been recovered from the pit of death at Pribram. It is believed that not less than one hundred are still in the mine and there is no hope that even one is alive. Even if some of the impris-

MONTANA STAGE ROBBED.

GRAVES THE MAN

He Utterly Confounds the Kendall Forces and Sweeps Everything in Sight.

Twenty-One of the Thirty City Delegates Will Support Him in the Convention.

He is Also Assured of the Support of Eighteen of the Range Delegates.

The Kendall Men With a Show of Confidence Claim the Outside Districts.

C. H. Graves will be chosen tomorrow by the Republican county convention as the candidate of Duluth and St. Louis county for the congressional nomination in the Sixth district. There isn't a doubt of it as far as the city is concerned; the voters settled it last night. The sentiment of the people was too unanimous to make possible any manipulation of the caucuses in Kendall's interest. It was tried nevertheless. The whole Kendall livery barn was out and every vehicle was loaded with "repeaters," who were rushed from one precinct to the other a good deal on the same style that Charley Kindred rushed his 500 laborers from Brainerd to Northern Pacific junction in 1882 when he was a candidate for congress in the Bloody Fifth. It was all to no purpose, however, and long before 9 o'clock the Kendall followers were confounded. They had opened the caucuses with a sublime but nevertheless suspicious confidence but their faces lengthened visibly when the votes commenced to pour in.

Col. Graves swept the city and his supporters claim twenty out of the thirty delegates in the city. The Kendall men give him eighteen. Both sides claim two of the delegates, Joseph Mannheim and Walter Murray. Both were elected without opposition. The vote was unusually large and runs over 3700. The contest in the First precinct of the Third ward was especially fierce. The Kendall men thirsted for revenge on John B. Sutphin and every energy was directed toward defeating him as a delegate but it was no purpose. The Graves ticket received 235 votes and the Kendall ticket 131. In the Second precinct of the Fourth ward the fight was close. Kendall had 203 votes to 180 for Graves. The Sixth ward was a surprise to the Kendall men. They had supposed that they would capture both precincts but in spite of Bob Kennedy Graves carried the ward.

THE DELEGATES.

List of Those who Were Elected and the Vote of Each Side.

□ The list of delegates elected is as follows:

First ward—Walter Murray, James Dingwall, Frank Bell.

Second ward—Page Morris, A. H. Holgate.

Third ward—L. H. Whipple, George F. Ash, J. H. Nordby, N. F. Hugo, J. B. Sutphin, James Ross, Camille Poirier.

Fourth ward—H. C. Kendall, E. R. Jefferson, John McKinley, Monroe Nichols, James H. Sheridan, Berry A. Lewis, Antoine Paul, George Goldsmith, Joseph Mannheim.

Fifth ward—H. Bevier, Marcus Skomars, L. Lilljander, Christ Anderson, Ed Lindsey, Gus Bergquist, J. A. Carlson.

Sixth ward—I. O. Milne, A. N. Hopkins.

The vote by precincts was as follows, the First precinct in the First ward and the Fourth precinct in the Fourth being credited to Graves, although Kendall claims the delegates:

First ward—Kendall, Graves.
First precinct..... 0 65
Second precinct..... 132 26
Third precinct..... 48 ..

Second ward—Kendall, Graves.

GRAVES HAS THE COUNTY.

He Will Have more Than Enough Delegates to Control the Convention.

Not only has the city stood by Col. Graves handsomely, but there is every reason to believe that the result has been the same in the county. The Kendall men, of course, are claiming everything and declare that the two ranges especially are solid for their favorite, but there will be a big surprise for them when tomorrow's convention opens. Eighteen of the range delegates are known to be for Col. Graves, and these, with the twenty-one delegates which the Graves men claim to have in the city, will give him a majority in the convention. Besides these some of the delegates in the other towns are Graves men. The Kendall men claim Rice Lake, Tower, Independence, Industrial and Gnesen, but Col. Graves will get more than half the delegates from these towns, although the Kendall men claim to have proxies for them.

West Duluth went for Kendall. This was probably the greatest surprise, it being supposed that it would go solid for Graves. The delegates elected so far as known are:

West Duluth—Lon Merritt, O. S. Olson, P. McDonald, H. H. Phelan.
Ontonagon—C. A. Dash.
Lakeside—W. C. Sargent.
New Duluth—B. P. Chapin.
Fond du Lac—Olaf Gullbranson.
Hermantown—Peter Fischen.
Canosia—Jeff Daniels.
Tower—John Owen.
Breitung—J. C. Morehead, W. H. Fraser, M. E. Pearce, W. P. Chum, Ely Culbert, Matt Nettel, Sol Childers, Hart Hewett, William J. West.

Juicy beefsteaks for your Sunday morning breakfast at Cash Meat Market, 213 West Superior street.

James Tonkin, Joseph Gardner and one other. Merritt, Johnson, Nichols—John Cahoon, Biwabik—A. P. Wood.

Col. Graves is Confident.

A Herald reporter saw Col. Graves today and he was feeling quite happy in spite of the claims of the Kendall men that they have forty-seven delegates out of the sixty-seven. He is very confident that he will carry the convention. "I have twenty-one of the city delegates," he said, "and eighteen on the ranges that I know of besides a few from the other towns. This will give me a good majority."

MARINE BUSINESS.

Custom House Records Show a Good Record for May.

The books of the United States customs house in Duluth show that there were 272 arrivals reported and 288 clearances taken out here during May. The Inman tug line port book, which is carefully kept, gives a total of 328 arrivals and 343 departures through the government entry. The latter book is kept for the private use of the owners and gives the arrival or departure of everything in the shape of boats which uses the government thoroughfare. The difference between the customs house and Inman books must therefore belong to Superior, which gives that port on her customs coastwise; 12 American vessels arrived from and 14 departed to foreign ports; 21 foreign vessels arrived and 20 departed, a total movement of 506 vessels.

The other department of the customs house service shows an equally gratifying statement. During May Duluth exported to Canadian ports 33,671 barrels of flour, worth $135,051, and 360,350 bushels of wheat, worth $322,223. There were some other trifling exports which swelled the total up to $458,640. The value of imports received during the same period was $14,125.

WILL HAVE A RALLY.

The Tilden Club Will Celebrate After the Convention.

The Tilden club met last evening in its regular headquarters. Geo. Giles, T. T. Hudson and Mayor D'Autremont were appointed to draft resolutions appropriate to the death of J. J. Costello who was a member. The question of securing rates to Chicago during the national convention was taken up and the secretary was instructed to find out what the railroads will offer. It was also agreed that a grand rally ought to be held immediately after the Chicago convention and an effort will be made to have ex-Governor Campbell, of Ohio, deliver an address. He will be at the convention and an invitation will be extended to him. Hon. W. M. Campbell, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, was present at the meeting.

Emigration During May.

During the month of May, according to the report of Emigrant Inspector E. H. Windom, 97 immigrants arrived here who had not previously been reported at any other port except where they left the ocean steamers. Oddly enough one of the number was bound to New York and came from the other side of the Pacific ocean via San Francisco. Seventy-eight came from Canada, 7 from Germany, 4 each from Finland and Norway, 3 from France and one from England. Of the number Montana and New York was the destination of 1 each; 8 were booked for Wisconsin towns and 87 were for Minnesota. Seventy-eight were males and 19 were females. Eight were under 15 years old, 74 over 15 and under 40, and 15 were over 40 years.

This Morning's Court.

Eight alleged drunks appeared before Judge Powell this morning. Six of them, M. Gallagher, Henry Hendrickson, Joseph Bushey, John Connors, John Mulcahy and Fred Blaaking, pleaded guilty and will serve ten days on the streets. Mrs. Annie Wright was up on a charge of drunkenness but pleaded not guilty and will be tried tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. C. Waaler was arrested on complaint of a neighbor for being drunk, but he pleaded not guilty and will be examined this afternoon. Judge Powell gave the men quite a lecture, saying that strong, able-bodied men like them ought to be able to keep at work and keep out of the clutches of the police.

"A Dress Rehearsal."

The entertainment to be given by the young people of St. Paul's church for the benefit of the building fund of the West End mission, will take place at Temple Opera House July 17. Besides the opera "A Dress Rehearsal" of which the cast has already been published, Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women" will be read and illustrated by tableaux.

Municipal Court Finances.

During the month of May there were collected in the municipal court from fines and costs an aggregate of $1440.50, according to Clerk Grady's figures. Yesterday Mr. Grady sent up $500 to the clerk of the district court as the amount of May bail money received from accused persons who were held to appear before the grand jury. The greater portion of this amount came from the "madams" who are charged with selling beer without a license.

Street Cars Busy.

The Duluth Street Railway company is anxiously awaiting the completion of the new power house in order that it may place all its cars in service. The largest day's business in the history of the company was last Monday. Memorial day, when 16,254 passengers were carried on the various lines. The largest day's business prior to that date was on June 29, 1891, a circus day, when exactly 14,000 passengers were taken care of. The "trailers" are now in use daily.

Health Office Returns.

The death of Oscar Steele, aged 4 years, from diphtheria, son of Charles and Eva Steele, at 405 West Seventeenth and a half street this morning. Eighteen births were also recorded, 11 of them females and 7 males. Male twins were born to Maise and Vilaine Latour on Twenty-sixth avenue west.

LAID HIM TO REST

The Remains of John J. Costello Are Consigned to the Grave This Morning.

City Officials and Aldermen and Members of Other Bodies Attend the Funeral.

Father Corbett Preaches an Eloquent and Touching Sermon on the Departed One.

The last sad rites of the Roman Catholic church were performed over the body of John J. Costello and followed by bereaved relatives and sorrowing friends he was consigned to the grave this morning. The remains were escorted from the family residence on Bench street to the pro-cathedral at 8:30 o'clock and the solemn burial mass was sung by Father Deby. After the mass the simple and touching burial service for the dead was said over the remains. Father Corbett delivered the funeral sermon. It was a fitting eulogy of one whom everybody honored and respected and many were visibly affected. He said: "My brethren—We assemble this morning to render the last sad rites to one whom we have known so well. As we gather around this funeral bier we stand amazed and the thought comes that life is but a dream. It is as the flower blooming in the morning and dying with the night. We saw him but a short time hence in the prime and vigor of life building up something for himself and family here below. You who knew him from his boyhood realized in him the perfection of the great American principle, man's success depends on his own efforts. A law abiding citizen, honored and respected by all, he was. In your council he upheld the standard of morality. He was imbued with natural hope, a quality not to be undervalued. Onward he walked progressing, doing his work as a citizen. But natural hope is not all. It is grand but what would it be if the soul was not imbued with supernatural hope. Supernatural hope was the spring of his life, it spurred him on. If you interest yourselves in the furtherance of civil society plunging into and doing God's will, you will have the blessing of heaven on your efforts. Behind that rough exterior there was a profound religious sentiment. He was essentially religious and religion kept before him the thought of reaching that happy home the joy of which the mind of man cannot conceive. But if he is in the face of death that his religion blossomed forth in its full strength. It was this that sustained him when he knew a month ago that his end was near and he bowed his head to God and said: 'Let Thy will be done.' Who of you can say that he has not won eternal life? The doctrine would be too cold. In man there is something besides that decomposed body, there is the spiritual and immortal soul. Weep not, dear friends. Death is the beginning of life, the glorious transfiguration of the body. Such has been the belief of all ages, yea God himself placed on our souls the thought immortality."

"What remains for us to do for our friend who has done so much in a spiritual way? Shall we bestow floral tributes, or shall we build a monument or shall we shower praises on him? No, for if he could speak to us now he would hush my lips. Hypocrites found no resting place in his noble, outspoken character. What shall we do? Dear friends, we shall pray for him; ask Almighty God to give him eternal life. He stood by this little church and helped and sustained us. His was a liberal and grand character, and we owe him a debt of gratitude. The debt is prayer. Pray God to soon take him into the eternal regions of love and be forever happy with him."

The blessing was then pronounced over the body, the candles were extinguished, and with slow and mournful music the remains were carried to the pro-cathedral. The pallbearers were: Charles Hartman, W. C. Sargent, H. Van Brunt, Benjamin Howard, Alex. Poirier and Capt. Monaghan. The bereaved widow in her mourning weeds, surrounded by her three children, daughters, followed the casket and then Mr. A. Costello and family, and other mourners. The full city council and all the city officers were present. Representing the board of directors were A. B. Chapin, W. R. Stone, R. F. Fitzgerald and W. H. Blades. President Baldwin, Secretary Thompson, and all of the directors of the chamber who are in the city were also in the funeral procession.

The attendance at the funeral exhibited the respect and honor which Mr. Costello enjoyed. The little church was crowded to the doors. Men and women of every nationality and creed, and in every walk of life, bared their heads in honor to the memory of the deceased and many a silent tear was shed. The procession to the grave was over a mile in length. Arriving at the cemetery the body was placed in the family vault.

To Change the Date.
NEW YORK, June 3.—The chamber of commerce today urged congress to change the date of the celebration of the landing of Columbus to be held at Chicago, from Oct. 12 to Oct. 21. A resolution was also adopted endorsing the movement for an international silver conference and declaring that until such conference has been held and some definite action taken silver purchases had been discontinued.

A Rumor Denied.
NEW YORK, June 3.—The rumor that the directors of the New York Baseball club were to act as manager, captain and player on the team was denied yesterday by J. W. Spalding, one of the directors. Two weeks ago Anson came out with the rumor, and the treatment he was receiving from the regular Chicago spectators. "Win or lose," he said, "I get nothing but jeers." This was given as the reason for the New York directors' action in the matter.

AGAINST THE MONOPOLY.

Decision in Boston Against the Bell Telephone Company.

BOSTON, June 3.—An important decision adverse to the American Bell Telephone company was rendered yesterday by United States Judge Colt in favor of the Western Union Telegraph company. The suit was for one-fifth of the capital stock of numerous corporations operating telephones throughout the United States. The gross amount claimed by the telegraph company is about $12,000,000.

The contract forming the basis of the suit was made in 1879 between various corporations operating telephones and the Western Union company on the one side and the Bell Telephone company on the other. The question was whether the contract required the Bell company to pay 20 per cent on all sums received or only on profits made. The case was heard by Judge Lowell as master and objection was made to an irregularity in filing his report. The report was, by agreement, withdrawn. The master refused to hear additional evidence. Thereupon the plaintiff moved to dismiss the bill with costs. This motion was earnestly opposed but it is now granted without prejudice, which gives the plaintiff the right to try its case over again.

MRS. HARRISON VERY ILL.

Too Ill to be Removed to the Cape May Cottage.

NEW YORK, June 3.—A special to the Herald from Washington says the many friends of Mrs. Harrison are alarmed at the report that she has grown worse within the last few days. The report proves to be true, but it is not believed that Mrs. Harrison is in any immediate danger. There is no doubt that she is extremely ill, so ill, in fact, that it has been deemed unwise to attempt to move her to the Cape May cottage.

It has been found necessary, in order that Mrs. Harrison should have absolute quiet, to order the Marine band, which has for years played on Saturdays in the White House grounds, to play hereafter in Lafayette park.

SHOT A FORMER LOVER.

Tragedy Committed by a Domestic in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, June 3.—Last night Miss Maggie Sullivan, a domestic employed in a residence in the western part of the city, sent a note to a former lover named Peter McCreech, at 4074 Fairfax avenue, requesting him to meet her at a point about two blocks from his home. When McCreech met the woman sheupbraided him for deserting her and marrying another woman.

After a few angry words, Miss Sullivan drew a revolver and fired two shots at McCreech, one of the bullets lodging in his brain and inflicting a probably fatal wound. The woman then fired a bullet into her night temple, killing herself almost instantly.

A SENSATION IN PARIS.

Defalcation of a Firm of Bucket-shop Brokers.

PARIS, June 3.—A sensation has been caused in private circles by the news that Blondel & Garnier, outside, or what in America would be known as bucket-shop brokers, have defaulted. The exact amount due to their customers is not ascertained, and is not likely to be, as many who dealt with them would hardly care to have the fact known.

It is believed, however, that the loss is considerable. Their place was largely a resort for lady speculators, both of the reputable and the shady classes, and they have been looked upon heretofore as dealing fairly with their patrons. The defalcation is being investigated and may result in criminal proceedings.

SINKING OF A STEAMER.

The Pilot and One-Third of the Crew Drowned.

VAN BUREN, Ark., June 3.—The steamer John Mathews, loaded with corn, bound for Pine Bluff, ran against the pier on the bridge over the Arkansas river at an early hour yesterday morning and sank. Capt. Black, the pilot, was swept away and drowned. It is stated that at least one-third of the crew are drowned.

The engineer, Hathaway, and his family consisting of three children, were rescued with great difficulty. The river is unusually high and it was impossible for the pilot to steer away from the pier.

BITTEN BY A MAD DOG.

Fifty Persons in Chicago Bitten and Two Badly Injured.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Fifty persons are said to have been bitten by a mad dog in the northwestern portion of this city last evening. Aside from possible death by hydrophobia, the injuries of the victims are in a number of cases severe.

Willie Kirchoff, aged 5, was fearfully lacerated on the head, back and arms. Fred Ristak, an adult, had both legs, arms and hands pierced to the bone and was horribly mangled. Both are expected to die.

Troops Removed.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 3.—The state militia has been removed from the river Spring rains with a view to a peaceful settlement of the troubles in the mining region.

A car of new milk cows just arrived from Iowa for sale at Michigan street and Thirtieth avenue west.

$2000 and $4000 to loan, or first mortgages bought. W. T. WYNKOOP, No. 1932 West Superior street, room 3.

Money on hand to loan. No delay. DULUTH LOAN, DEPOSIT & TRUST CO., 16 Third avenue west.

$4.30 Excursion Rates, $4.30. On June 3, 6, 7, 8 and 9, the St. Paul & Duluth railway, "Duluth Short Line," will sell round trip tickets to St. Paul and Minneapolis for $4.30, good returning until June 15. For tickets apply to A. NELSON, City Ticket Agent, 426 West Superior street, Spaulding house.

Or Union depot and Twentieth avenue station.

Take the Twenty-first avenue ferry line for West Superior. Boat every half hour.

A TERRIBLE STORM

Thunder and Lightning Play Havoc Throughout a County in Pennsylvania Today.

Three Boys and a Girl Struck by Lightning and Two Were Killed Outright.

A Girl Was Killed by a Thunderbolt When Seeking Shelter Under a Tree.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 3.—A terrible thunder storm played havoc through Lackawanna county last night. It began in the early evening and continued until 3 o'clock this morning. Three boys and one girl were struck by lightning. Two were killed outright and the others fatally injured. When the storm first came up two Polish boys, Joseph and Casimir Chonicki, were caught beneath a large oak tree in South Scranton. Casmir was part of the way up the tree while Joseph was standing beneath when the lightning struck. Joseph was instantly killed and Casmir was set on fire by the electric fluid. He caught on one of the limbs of the tree and was frightfully burned before aid could reach him. He died this morning.

In the Hyde park section a 3-year-old son of Senator Arnold was struck and his injuries are regarded fatal. At Elmhurst, seven miles east of this city, a girl named Andrews, while seeking shelter under a tree, was killed by a thunderbolt. Heavy landslides occurred on the Delaware & Hudson and the Ontario & Western roads which delayed trains until this morning.

THE STORM'S RAVAGES.

Many People in Kansas Lost all They Possessed.

HARPER, Kan., June 3.—Reports are now coming in from districts lying away from the railroads and telegraph wires which were supposed to have escaped from the ravages of the cyclone last week and it is learned that great damage was done to the wheat crop all over this part of the state. While it was generally supposed that there would be 100,000 acres of wheat in this country, it is now estimated that fully 15,000 acres have been destroyed by the storm.

The appeal for aid sent out by the mayor is already meeting with responses from the charitably inclined and several hundred dollars have been received. The loss at this place is estimated at $200,000. Many people lost everything they possessed, even their wearing apparel, and they are utterly destitute.

FIFTY MILLIONS LOSS.

Estimates of the Damage From Kansas City to New Orleans.

ST. LOUIS, June 3.—Now that the great flood of 1892 has begun to pass away, an estimate of the losses occasioned has been made from statistics gathered from various boards of trade, changes, etc., throughout the afflicted district. Where the exchange figures could not be obtained estimates from reliable correspondents have been utilized and the total reaches $69,300,000.

This estimate does not include stagnation in business among the merchants and the transportation lines. A conservative estimate of the amount of damage caused by the loss from the high waters from Kansas City to New Orleans will reach the enormous figure of $50,000,000.

HE MAY NOT ACCEPT.

Canada's Position on the Bering Sea Arbitration.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 3.—Sir John Thompson has not accepted the position of British representative in the Bering sea arbitration which has been offered to him by Lord Salisbury, and it is doubtful whether he will do so. It is felt in political circles that it would be unwise for one who is practically the chief advocate of Canada to take such a position, because if the decision of the arbitrary powers, France and Sweden, should be in favor of the United States, Canada's situation would be one of deep humiliation.

COVERED WITH MUD.

Condition of the Submerged Houses INDIANAPOLIS, June 3.—The floods which have prevailed in this locality for three days began to subside yesterday and the waters along the streams have found their way into the channels, leaving the submerged houses filled with mud three inches deep. When the occupants returned yesterday they found everything ruined, the beds, carpets and chairs covered with a thick coating of mud, the gravel streets entirely washed out and the brick pavements undermined and worthless until relaid.

The damage to the additions to the city alone is reckoned at not less than $100,000, nearly all of which must be borne by the laboring class.

RAN INTO A LANDSLIDE.

A Train Derailed and an Engineer Fatally Hurt.

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 3.—A passenger train on the Allegheny Valley railroad, due here at 6:20 last evening, ran into a landslide eight miles below this city and the engine and two baggage cars were thrown into the river. Fortunately the passenger coach remained on the track and a terrible accident was averted.

Alexander Reed, the engineer, was fatally injured and the express messenger had both legs broken. Three other employees were slightly injured.

La Fleche a Winner.

LONDON, June 3.—At Epsom Downs, today, the Oaks was won by La Fleche.

Chicago rolled roasts for 10 cents per pound, sold only at the Cash Meat Market.

Use only Ricinate fireproof paint in painting your houses. 733 W. Mich. st.

THE CHILIAN CONGRESS

Opened With a Speech by President Montt.

VALPARAISO, June 3.—Congress was opened in Santiago yesterday. There were no disorders, but ample precautions had been taken to prevent any emeute and this may have checked the malcontents. President Montt passed from the Moneda to congress hall with a large military escort. In the beginning of his speech to congress, President Montt referred briefly to the Baltimore affair. He stated that documents would be presented showing what had taken place, and added that a settlement of the matter would be had through diplomatic channels in accord with international justice, and according to the past tradition of the two countries. He lamented the attack and expressed regret at the circumstance which at one time threatened a rupture of friendly relations between the United States and Chile.

The president then outlined his policy. An amnesty law would be presented to congress in favor of the Balmacedists, immigration would be favored and he recommended reciprocity treaties with all the South American republics. The message is generally considered weak in language and not of sufficient force.

A VERY CLEVER SCHEME.

Plan to Throw the Presidential Election Into Congress.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 3.—M. F. Harrington, a prominent Democratic politician of northern Nebraska, said in an interview yesterday that orders have been issued from Democratic headquarters that Nebraska, South Dakota and Kansas must be delivered over to the People's party.

In Nebraska, he added, the Democrats will nominate no electoral ticket this year. The Democrats will have their own state ticket and will support the Alliance electoral ticket. The same will be done in the other states mentioned, and while the Democrats will gain nothing, the Republicans will lose in what has been heretofore their stronghold. The election will be thrown into the house of representatives.

AN ILLINOIS TRAGEDY.

Double Murder and Suicide Caused by Insane Jealousy.

BENTON, Ill., June 3.—A double murder and suicide occurred at Needmore, a small village in the extreme northeastern part of this county yesterday. Moses Taylor and T. Foster, own adjoining farms, and for some time Taylor has been suspicious of Foster, thinking he had been paying too much attention to his wife. The men met yesterday and hot words ensued, whereupon Taylor shot Foster dead.

Mrs. Taylor, seeing the crime committed, fled to Foster's house for protection, but her husband followed her there and shot her dead. Taylor then shot and killed himself. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor leave four children. Foster was unmarried and kept house with his mother.

PALACIO'S TROOPS ROUTED.

An Important Battle Fought by the Venezuelan Factions.

VALENCIA, Venezuela, June 3.—An important battle has been fought near this town and resulted in the defeat of President Palacio's forces. Terrific fighting occurred all along the line and the rout of the government troops was most complete. They are in full retreat towards this city. Ex-President Rojas Paul has come out openly in favor of the rebellion. He has gone to Caracas.

The Cabinet Defeated.

VALPARAISO, June 3.—At the election yesterday for officers of the chamber of deputies the cabinet candidates were overwhelmingly defeated. The cabinet will in consequence resign.

The Census Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The census investigating committee continued its inquiry yesterday. Miss Ida Creagan, a clerk in the bureau, testified that she had paid $25 a relative of Chief Clerk Childs to be retained after her three months' term expired. The money was returned, however, as Miss Creagan was not retained. Geo. M. Miller and E. W. Koch, two section chiefs, denied the testimony of Mrs. Lassez yesterday as to immoral conduct in their offices.

Perry Relief Party.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—The Perry relief party in charge of Prof. Heilprin will sail from New York for St. John's, N. F., on June 25. The departure for North Greenland will be made on the Kite from St. John's on July 2. The vessel carries provisions sufficient to last two years, in case they could not find Perry or should meet with any trouble.

Bettie Engaged Again.

CINCINNATI, June 3.—The engagement of Miss Bettie, daughter of Millionaire Fleischman, to Dr. C. R. Holmes, a local physician, is announced. Miss Fleischman recently gave the mitten to Count Dogothetti, who is now in Chicago.

A BIRD OF VALUE

Mlle. Jacquot, the Great Mimic, Prima Donna, Composer and Dancer of France.

Equipped With a Pair of Very Powerful Wings and a Fortissimo Whistle.

The Most Wonderful Parrot in the World and Certainly the Most Valuable.

One of the best mimics in France, and a prima donna and composer of considerable ability, is Mlle. Jacquot. The great obstacle in Mlle. Jacquot's road to fame as a rival of Planquette, Strauss, Offenbach, Jakobowski, Meyerbeer, Czibulka and Balfe, is that unlike these celebrities she cannot put her improvisations on paper. Neither can she get the same air, exactly alike. The mademoiselle is forty-eight years old, but gives no indication of the fact that she is more than twenty. She was born in Africa, and is of a dusky gray color. She is equipped with a pair of very powerful wings and a fortissimo whistle. In fact Mlle. Jacquot is a parrot, the property of M. Naisse, a member of the Anthropologic society of Paris. He has owned her for nearly a century.

Mlle. Jacquot.

ment she picked up while in the country, whither she had been sent for safe keeping when her master went off to the war to fight the Germans. This imitation Jacquot gives in such a truly artistic fashion that many strangers hearing it for the first time have been thoroughly startled by the piercing squeals and piteous grunts. Whenever M. Naisse goes toward the window for the purpose of raising or lowering it, the parrot perfectly imitates the sound which will ensue before her master has touched the sash. When he comes home in the evening Jacquot scents his approach at a considerable distance and notifies her mistress by calling, "Do Do" at the top of her voice. She is very familiar with her mistress, whom she calls Marie. On one occasion the bird was in the sitting room near the fire when a coal fell out in a loud tone cried for "Marie," and thus undoubtedly prevented what might have been a serious blaze.

Mlle. Jacquot is fond of dancing, and whenever she is seized with a saltatorial fit she composes her own music, and more remarkable still, although she never repeats an air twice, she invariably ends on the same key on which she began. The most pleasant feature of her performances is that she never sulks when asked to "show off." She is as proud of her accomplishments as a boy is of his first pair of boots. Jacquot does not like men and persistently refuses to be sociable with them, but to women she is the most approachable of birds. When her mistress punishes her for some misdemeanor she assumes a penitent look and moans in a way that is ludicrous in the extreme. Altogether she is undoubtedly the most wonderful parrot in the world, and certainly the most valuable, for it would take a small fortune to buy her from her present owners, who really regard her as "one of the family."

An Ancient Female Office Holder. It seems that the occupation of woman is an old story and not one of the triumphs of modern civilization. The noted scholar Haley has compiled from the cuneiform tablets discovered at El-Amara an account of an Egyptian governor of Jerusalem under Amenophis IV, 1500 years before the Christian era. At that time Palestine was in a very disturbed state, overrun by the Babylonian hordes and misgoverned by the local satraps. At this early period Jerusalem was a populous city and contained a temple consecrated to the god Adar. The bureau of the royal archives was under the direction of a woman, and as that was a highly important charge the incumbent of a female indicates that the fair sex probably had a reasonable share of offices.

To Keep Cattle from Growing Horns. A Springfield (Ill.) journalist says that a man living near that city has a scheme for making "mules" out of all breeds of cattle. He has compounded a sort of salve that he rubs on the heads of calves which prevents the growth of horns. He applies the stuff vigorously once a week from the time the calf is three months to a year old, and every one to which he has applied the salve grows up hornless. He preserves the strictest secrecy with reference to the materials that are put into the salve and as to their proportions in the compound, though it is known that he uses a large amount of patent axle grease. He won't allow any of his neighbors to experiment with the compound, for he says he wants to first satisfy himself as to its efficacy.

Food from the Sea. A statistician declares that an acre of the sea will yield more food in the matter of fish in a week than an acre of the best land will yield in a year in any edible product.

Draws a Small Salary. Mrs. Marshall Ballington Booth is said to draw just seven dollars a week for her services in the Salvation Army. She resides in a modest little home in Jersey City.

There are 413 species of trees found within the limits of the United States and territories.

MASCULINE MENTION.

Phil Armour, Chicago's great packer, was at one time a miner in a small way near Folsom, Cal.

Jay Gould carries in his purse a ten cent piece which he declares was at one time all that stood between him and a dead broke condition.

Gladstone, Salisbury and Chamberlain each has a son in parliament, but the younger men have thus far achieved reputation chiefly by being sons of their respective fathers.

Rev. Winfield Scott Baer, the new secretary of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania, and also secretary to Bishop Whitaker, is a graduate of Girard college, and was formerly a lawyer.

General Gallifet is the most popular military personage in France. He commanded a battalion of the Versailles army during the Commune, and it was owing to his energy that the insurrection was put down. Signor Crispi, the great Italian statesman, is one of the most hot tempered men on the continent. Absolute, irascible and intolerant of opposition, even old age has not softened the fire in his character.

Dr. Frederick Hermann, who died recently at Heidelberg, was for forty years surgeon to the university students, and almost daily was patching up the wounds of duellists. He is said to have been present at 30,000 duels.

Chief Justice Field, of the Massachusetts supreme court, is exceedingly fond of children, and on returning to his home in Rutland square, Boston, from judicial labors he is often to be seen romping with the children of the neighborhood.

Mr. Melvil Dewey, secretary of the board of regents of the University of the State of New York, is credited by the Albany Express with shortening his first name by dropping the final "e," some years ago, being averse to the use of unnecessary letters.

Judge Taft, one of the recently appointed federal circuit court justices, has directed that all witnesses undergoing examinations in his presence shall stand, and attorneys are required to do likewise. His reason for having witnesses stand is that a hearing is thus expedited.

T. Jefferson Coolidge, the new minister to France, is notable for his benefactions, among others being the Jefferson physical laboratory, of Harvard, which he presented to that college at a cost of $115,000, and his gift of a library and Grand Army building to the town of Manchester-by-the-Sea, at a cost of $40,000.

David Powell, the newly appointed governor of the Bank of England, is a much traveled man, with literary and artistic tastes. He is described as a tall and remarkably distinguished looking man of about fifty, with well cut features, large dark eyes and almost white hair, beard and mustache.

A. B. Crowell, of Virginia, has presented to Secretary Blaine a unique case. The rod is of Georgia pine taken from one of the Libby prison joists. The head is formed of knots of roots from the battlefield of Seven Pines and in them are imbedded three bullets which were picked up on the battlefield of Fair Oaks.

President Harrison is not easily disconcerted on state occasions, but when Hassan Ben Ali, the World's fair commissioner from Morocco, in an interview at the White House prostrated himself in true oriental style and refused to rise until the president had left the room, General Harrison hardly knew how to deal with his visitor.

Prince Massimo, whose superb old palace at Rome was the scene of a dynamite outrage, is one of the grandest and aristocratic nobles in Italy. He traces his descent to the Fabius Maximus of the earliest Roman times. His mother was a princess of the house of Savoy, now reigning in Italy, while his wife is the half sister of the late Comte de Chambord.

What is pronounced by the London papers a perfectly satisfactory substitute for ivory is now being produced by using in combination the precise materials of which the natural article is composed, namely, trisphosphate of lime, calcium carbonate, magnesia, alumina, gelatine and albumen.

A Frenchman has been making some interesting investigations concerning the temperature of gas jets at various points in the flame. At one-half inch above the burner the temperature was only 925 degs., rising rapidly to 2,100 degs. at the commencement of the luminous zone, and to 2,500 near the top of the flame.

A modern compilation of engineering maxims states that a horse can drag, as compared with what he can carry on his back, in the following proportions: On the worst earthen road, three times; on a good macadamized road, nine; on plank, twenty-five; on a stone trackway, thirty-three; and on a good railway, fifty-four times as much.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

Our railroads get $22,000,000 a year for carrying the mails.

A deed recording the transfer to the Pennsylvania Railroad company of the Philadelphia and Seashore railroad has been filed in New Jersey. The consideration recited is $185,250.

The Jerusalem and Jaffa railroad will not enter the former city, but will have its terminus about three-quarters of a mile outside the city limits. It is expected that a town will grow up around the terminus.

Engineer Harry S. Bolton, of the Baltimore and Ohio, made a run on the road of 400 consecutive days from April 15, 1894, to April 23, 1895, making twenty-five days of overtime in the year and on seven different engines.

C. P. Huntington is quoted at New York as saying the Southern Pacific will soon build, at a cost of from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000, a line from Santa Barbara to Marguerita. This will give it a coast line and another connection between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

S. M. Felton asked $50,000 a year salary when he left the Erie to take the presidency of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, and he required a written contract for five years too. The company gave it, and although he has been superseded and is but a vice president now, he gets $50,000 a year and has three years longer on that contract.

WHY IS THE
W. L. DOUGLAS
$3 SHOE CENT?
THE BEST SHOE IN THE WORLD FOR THE MONEY?
If a man's shoe, with no thanks or vote, is thrust to him by the feet, made of the best fine calf, stylish and durable, and because he wears more shoes of this grade than any other manufacturer, it equals him in the shoe business.
$5.00 Genuine Hand-sewed, the finest calf shoe ever offered for $5.00; equals French imported shoes which cost from $10.00 to $12.00.
$4.00 Hand-sewed Welt Shoe, fine calf, stylish, comfortable and durable. The best shoe ever offered at this price; same grade as custom-made shoes costing from $6.00 to $8.00.
$3.50 Police Shoe: Farmers, Railroad Men and Letter Carriers all wear them; durable, seamless, smooth inside, heavy three soles, extra wide, this price.
$2.50 fine calf no better shoe ever offered at this price.
$2.00 and $2.50 Workingmen's shoes are very strong and durable. Those who have given them a trial will wear no other make.
Boys' $2.00 and $1.75 school shoes are on their merits, as the increasing sales show.
Ladies' $2.00 Hand-sewed shoe, best quality, durable, stylish, equals French imported shoes costing from $10.00 to $12.00.
Ladies' 2-20, $2.00 and $1.75 shoe for Misses are the best fine Dongola, stylish and durable.

Do you want to buy a Suit today or tomorrow? Yet that isn't the whole thought we want to get to you. When you buy one is less in our thoughts than—if you buy a Suit, whenever that may be, do you want to buy the best suit that can be bought? What are the other stores doing in that way? What are we doing? Look look, look well. It is a mistake to dress tastelessly and pay enough to buy tasteful clothes. If you want the latter sort of suits, pick your store.

We have between two and three thousand of them. Possible the most striking item about them is that they are so wholly different from any other store's that it is difficult to compare them. The difference begins with the clothes; the other differences have no end. We make most of them from imported cloths. For upper sort of dressing, $30, $35, $40; for most, $15, $18, $20, $25 get fine enough. We have Cheviots and Serges, too, for $10 and $12. Nobody's better. Do you want one of these suits today or tomorrow?

By getting ahead of the others in selling Boys' Suits for $3.50, $4 and $5, we've sold an immense quantity during the last two weeks.

HAYTHE WEALTH

A Party of Capitalists Representing Many Millions go up on the Range.

They are Stockholders of the Minnesota Iron Company and Iron Range Road.

Two Engines Collide on Rice's Point and a Fireman Has His Leg Broken.

At 9:30 o'clock this morning a special train, in charge of Conductor Cleary, consisting of eight business and private cars rolled into the city on the Omaha road and were at once transferred to the Iron Range tracks. The Duluth & Iron Range business car was attached and at 10:30 o'clock the nine cars started up the road for the most thorough inspection of the mines and the lines of road which has yet been made by the owners. The new ore docks, the Mesaba branch, the Ely extension, grading, cutting and filling, and the new steel rails will all be looked carefully into and the mining developments will also receive careful attention. The party will remain on the ranges until Sunday, when they will return to this city for the annual meetings of the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company and the Minnesota Iron company, which will be held here Monday afternoon. There are about sixty-five persons in the party and among them are Benjamin Brewster, A. R. Flower, H. H. Hollister, H. H. Porter, Marshall Field, David Dows, Jr., J. C. Morse, J. H. Chandler, Col. Ely, President Carpenter and General Manager Groatiering. The party represents controlling interests in some six lines of railroad, three vessel lines, a very large amount of Standard Oil interests and at least $400,000,000 of capital. They will spend Sunday afternoon here in sight-seeing, and it is quite probable that a number of them will take one of the big lake carriers at Two Harbors and come to Duluth. A number of the party will attend the Republican national convention at Minneapolis on their return from the range and after the business meeting.

ENGINES COLLIDE.

A Smashup in the Yards in Which a Fireman is Hurt.

At an early hour this morning a collision occurred at the end of one of the "Y" switches in the Northern Pacific yards at Rice's Point between a Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic passenger train and a switch engine. It was the same old story of two trains on a single track, and Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic engine No. 104 is pretty well demolished. Her right side, from pilot to tank, is scraped pretty clean and her cab is a total wreck. Switch engine 39 is a little bit disfigured and will need a slight rest in the shops. Engineer Elstrom is slightly cut and bruised but he stayed with his engine and his escape from severe hurt is somewhat miraculous as his side of the cab is completely gone. Fireman Sipchen jumped as soon as he saw the danger ahead and he has a broken leg and some other bruises. A couple of other train employees were somewhat shaken up and bruised but not enough to keep them from work. The railroad people are investigating the trouble and several employees are expecting a long holiday.

THE BLAINE SPOOK

thiasm to cheer them than there was at Chicago four years ago.

Senator Quay, who has made his headquarters at the Nicollet, called upon Gen. Clarkson shortly after, and after Mr. Fassett had been called in the trio went into a conference that is progressing at this writing. Senator Hisscock arrived at 2 p. m.

A report has been circulated pretty freely that the South Dakota instructions for Harrison did not instruct but simply endorsed. Delegate Lightner, from that state, this morning denied the report as without a shadow of foundation, and in regard to the statement that Congressman Pickler had expressed such an opinion, said: "Pickler was with me at the time and I know he believes no such thing." This controversy in regard to the action of the South Dakota delegation absorbs nearly all of the political discussion this morning, as it is likely to be the first instance when the Blaine men will bolt Harrison instructions in the event of a conference. The Blaine leaders are trying hard to effect this break in the South Dakota delegation in the hope that the precedent being once established delegates from other instructed delegations will break to Blaine on the argument that Harrison instructions were only obtained on the supposition that Blaine would not be a candidate, and that the strong Blaine sentiment in their state justifies them in ignoring the instructions given under a misapprehension.

Rule committee national committee, which includes Messrs. Clarkson, Fassett, Conger and others, have decided to hold a mass meeting in the convention hall next Tuesday evening. This the night of the opening of the convention, but it has been arranged that there will be no evening session on that day. J. B. Foraker, who has already been selected as one of the speakers. Others are yet to be chosen. It is intended to make this a big demonstration which shall include all the state and the hosts of strangers within the city's gates. To that end special trains will be run on nearly all lines leading from the two cities.

Hon. J. K. Gowdy, chairman of the Indiana state central committee, today gives out a long statement refuting the assertion that the second term movement is unpopular in this country. "The sides 'Washington,'" said Chairman Gowdy, "there have been ten cases in which the president was nominated for a second term. On six of these occasions he was re-elected, and each time by a large electoral and popular vote. In his first race, Jefferson had 75 electoral votes at the first election and 148 at his second; Madison received 121 at the first election and 128 at the second; Monroe received 183 the first and 232 the second time; Jackson received 178 at the first election and 213 the second; Lincoln 180 the first time and 213 the second; Grant had 214 the first election and 300 the second."

HARRISON HAS A LETTER.

And Consul General New Says it is Satisfactory.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 2.—A friend of Consul General New says that the latter told him just before leaving for Minneapolis that President Harrison was not at all worried by the efforts of Blaine's friends to force him upon the party as a candidate, and that Harrison has a personal letter from Blaine that would settle the matter in a moment if he should make it public.

New said Harrison would not give it to the press because he believed he would be nominated without a struggle and it was unnecessary to inject any personal matters into the campaign for the nomination. Besides he feels that he is entitled to an expression from the convention unbiased by any such influences and he proposes to stand or fall by his record.

New also said that the letter reiterated Blaine's denunciation not to be a candidate, and that the friends of Blaine, about it, for he had seen and read the letter. "The Harrison men say that the president sustains a very different relation to the convention from that of other supposed candidates, for, if Algeo or Sherman might feel it a compliment to be nominated even after Blaine had secured the plum and thrown it from him, Harrison could not afford to do so for it would make him the laughing stock of the country."

ARE ON CORDIAL TERMS.

A Perfect Understanding Between Harrison and Blaine Stated.

NEW YORK, June 3.—A Washington special to the Herald says its correspondent yesterday obtained from a gentleman close to the president the inside of Mr. Harrison's and Mr. Blaine's relations with each other. Before Mr. Blaine came to New York he called on the president and in substance said to him: "In connection with my visit to New York you will probably hear that it has a political meaning, the construction may be put on it that I will please neither you nor me. I wish to say to you that I am not a candidate for the nomination and I hope you will not credit any of these stories that are flying about."

To these words Mr. Harrison is said to have replied: "I am much gratified at your open dealing with me. I have supposed you felt this way toward a nomination, although some persons have tried to persuade me differently." The interview between the president and his secretary of state was not a long one and they parted in the most friendly manner.

BLAINE SURE TO ACCEPT.

So Says Senator Hale, One of His Closest Friends.

NEW YORK, June 3.—A special dispatch to the Herald from Washington says that Senator Eugene Hale, of Maine, a close friend of Secretary Blaine, told its correspondent yesterday that Mr. Blaine will certainly accept if nominated. The secretary of state, Mr. Hale declared, will remain passive and allow things to take their own course.

FORECAST FOR JUNE 3.

Local forecast till 8 a. m. tomorrow: Fair; warmer.

WHEAT ROSE ONE CENT.

Rumors About the Crop Conditions Caused the Advance.

The wheat market opened unchanged this morning on July and a trifle weaker on spot wheats. Before noon, however, July wheat had gone up one cent. The best demand of the early session was for cash wheat, and the bulk of the trading in cash wheat was before noon. Early news was of a bearish nature, but later a report that the government report for June would show a bad condition of the crops had a bullish effect and prices advanced. The close was dull but steady at 1c to 1 1/2c above yesterday. Following were the closing prices:

No. 1 hard—Cash 87, June 87, July 88 1/2, September 84. No. 1 northern—Cash 84 1/2, June 84 1/2, July 85 1/2, September 82. No. 2 northern—Cash 77 1/2, No. 3, 71 1/2. Rejected 60. On track—No. 1 hard 86, No. 1 northern 84 1/2. Car inspection today, 54. Receipts—Wheat, 64,871 bus; flax, 462 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 23,225 bus. Cars on track, 79; last year, 62.

Outside Markets.

CHICAGO, June 3.—The close: Wheat, June, 84 1/2; July, 85 1/2; September, 82 1/2. Corn, June 54 1/2; July, 50 1/2; September, 49 1/2. Oats, June, 33 1/2; July, 33 1/2; September, 32 1/2. Rye, July, 80 1/2; September, 80 1/2. Lard, July, 56 1/2; September, 56 1/2. Ribs, July, 56 3/4; September, 56 1/2.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 3.—Wheat: June closed at 82c; July opened at 83 1/2c and closed at 83 1/2c; September opened at 80c and closed at 80 1/2c; December opened at 81 1/2c and closed at 81 1/2c. On track—No. 1 hard 84 1/2; No. 2 northern, 79 1/2; No. 3, 71 1/2.

BLAINE RESIGNS.

He Tendered His Resignation as Secretary of State Shortly After Noon Today.

President Harrison Promptly Accepted It. In Accordance With Mr. Blaine's Desire.

This Seems to Make Blaine a Full Fledged Candidate Before the Convention.

Hon. Charles E. Littlefield of Rockland, Me., Selected to Present His Name.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Secretary Blaine has resigned the secretaryship of state and the resignation has been accepted by the president. The correspondent explains itself.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4, 1892, 12:45 p. m.—

To the President: I respectfully beg leave to submit my resignation of the office of secretary of state of the United States, to which I was appointed by you on March 5, 1889. The condition of public business in the department of state justifies me in requesting that my resignation may be accepted immediately. I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

(Signed) JAMES G. BLAINE. EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, June 4, 1892. To the Secretary of State: Your letter of this date, tendering your resignation of the office of secretary of state of the United States, has been received. The terms in which you state your desires are such as to leave me no choice but to accept your wishes at once. Your resignation is therefore accepted. Very respectfully yours, (Signed) BENJAMIN HARRISON.

To Name Blaine. NEW YORK, June 4.—A special to the Press from August, Me., says: "A private despatch from the Maine delegation, which is on its way to Minneapolis, says that the Hon. Charles E. Littlefield, of Rockland, has been chosen to present Mr. Blaine's name to the convention. This action was the outcome of a conference held by the delegation."

BLAINE'S BOOM GROWS.

Chauncey I. Filley Changed Today From Harrison to Blaine.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 4.—The friends of President Harrison and such of the delegates on the ground as were elected in his interest and who retired last night serene in the belief that another day would dispose of what little had been manifested of the Blaine movement, awoke this morning in the flesh. They also awoke in the spirit to realize that "politics are mighty uncertain." Less than twelve hours ago they were certain that the Blaine movement would collapse if not from inherent weakness, then certainly from generally accepted conclusions, based upon his own statements that the secretary of state could not, and would not ever again undertake the labor and responsibility of the temporary depression of yesterday and to give them cheer and inspiration for the battle of next week. The people who for the past few days have been insisting that Clarkson has known all along precisely where he stood are saying this morning "I told you so" with great unanimity and exceeding good will. Many of the Harrison people, however, are not willing to admit that the situation has changed or that the friends of the president have weakened or those of Mr. Blaine gained strength since last night. The men to whom the latest statements regarding Blaine's intentions are attributed are, they say, no more entitled to be regarded as semi-official mouthpieces than the men who have made themselves the sponsors for similar statements for a month past, and whose declarations, now that the eve of the convention is approaching, are regarded as of no more weight than those of any private in the ranks.

No matter what Father Cronin or Congressman Boutelle may think or say; no matter what family telegrams may have passed between Washington and Emmons Blaine at Chicago and no matter what deductions may be drawn from such opinions and such telegrams, the fact remains, they hold, that until Mr. Blaine comes out and either declares himself a candidate or places himself in the hands of his friends and announces as much, the convention in choosing its standard bearer must be governed by his February letter to Clarkson. The letter, they maintain, is still very much in evidence and it must be withdrawn or qualified as a condition precedent to the naming of its writer in the national convention.

Mr. Clarkson, however, is pleased with the situation. Speaking of Mr. Blaine's statement that he would write no more letters, he said: "I think it will nominate him." In answer to a question he said: "I don't suppose that Mr. Blaine will be formally placed in nomination but I cannot tell." Mr. Clarkson said that it was possible that some of the state delegations would put forward favorite sons. There are several stories afloat about the plans of the Blaine men. It is said that they will not put Mr. Blaine in nomination for fear the Harrison men will lay his letter to Clarkson before the convention. Instead of putting his name forward they will perfect an understanding with the delegations to cast their ballots for him, starting as they hope with the solid vote of Alabama, Arkansas or California. Mr. Blaine's friends are assuring the instructed delegates that the instructions were given at a time when Mr. Blaine was not considered a possibility and that the changed conditions warrant them in exercising their own judgment.

Another plan discussed by the anti-Harrison people is to put Blaine formally before the convention and split the vote of the delegates leaving the balance of power in the hands of some one like Alger to whom the anti-Harrison people could turn from Blaine. But the feeling that there is more pro-Blaine than anti-Harrison sentiment in the convention, makes this plan seem weak to many of Mr. Harrison's enemies.

Chauncey I. Filley, the national committee man and delegate-at-large from Missouri, made another lightning change last night. When he reached Minneapolis the Harrison sentiment seemed very strong. Mr. Filley immediately announced that under instructions from the Missouri convention he would vote for Harrison. Last night, the Missouri boom received a lively impetus and this morning Mr. Filley is going to vote for Blaine in spite of his instructions. "When instructions were given for Harrison," he said, "they were given under the impression that Blaine would not accept the nomination. There were 137 office-holders in the convention who instructed us for Harrison, but Blaine is the choice of the people of Missouri." Mr. Filley adds that all of the district delegates from his state will vote for Blaine.

Col. Powell Clayton, the national committeeman from Arkansas, says: "I think it is not safe to nominate Blaine. I have always been a Blaine man, but I believe he meant every word he said when he wrote that letter, when he said he would not accept, but there is not a man who will say he has declared he would take the nomination." If the Washington correspondent of the St. Paul Globe is telling the truth though, there is such a man. A special to the Globe from Washington published this morning says: "Father Conlin, editor of the Catholic Union of Buffalo, had an extended conference with Secretary Blaine this evening. He came here upon the latter's invitation. At the conclusion of the conference he said: 'Blaine will accept the nomination beyond a doubt. His mind is positively made up. There is only one thing which gives him any uneasiness. It is whether he ought to resign his seat in the cabinet. Mrs. Blaine has had a great deal to do with his determination to accept. She and he are confident that his health is strong enough for him to make the contest. He will not only accept the nomination—he fully expects to receive it. He sent for me fearing that his letter to Father Dukey might be the means of alienating the Roman Catholic vote and wanting my opinion. I told him that the Roman Catholics would not be influenced by the letter, nor will they. The real reason he refused to accept the nomination four years ago was because he feared that the Republican party would suffer defeat. He does not think so this time. He believes that the Democrats will nominate Cleveland, and he feels sure that he can defeat him or any other candidate of the Democratic party may select.'"

West Virginia, says that the district delegates from his state who were elected for Harrison are still for Harrison. West Virginia was for Blaine in 1884 and again in 1888. This year, he says, the people of his state have taken Mr. Blaine's letter as final and they are for Harrison. Mr. Hart directs attention to the fact that though West Virginia is a Southern state, there is not a federal office-holder in the delegation. Gen. Alger is not going to be behind in the matter of headquarters. He has telegraphed to W. E. Steele, chairman of the accommodation committee, to have the old Minneapolis club house opened for the entertainment of his friends. A familiar story which the friends of Mr. Cleveland will recognize was started in one of the Minneapolis papers this morning by an anonymous "Blaine man."

He was quoted as saying that the beautiful badges which the Harrison men are wearing are made of English silk and as insinuating that they were brought into this country duty free. The Harrison men, of course, flatly deny this story. The arrival of Boutelle, of Maine, Blaine's intimate personal and political friend, is anxiously awaited by adherents of Harrison and of Blaine. The impression has got abroad that he is coming with a message from the secretary of state. Warner Miller is another man who is being anxiously looked for and influence among the uninstructed element. Chauncey Depew, another of the heavyweights of the delegation from the Empire State, will be in by noon ready to commence work in his own quiet and effective way in behalf of the president's nomination. The Harrison element is relying largely on Depew's influence with the New York delegation and believes that he will be able to bring it into line for the president, Platt and Fassett to the contrary notwithstanding.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

Nitro-Glycerine Can Exploded in a Pittsburg Store.

Two People Were Instantly Killed and a Woman Received Fatal Injuries.

The Owner of the Store was Blown Through the Roof of the Building.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 4.—A terrible explosion occurred about 1 o'clock this morning at Kensington, fourteen miles from Pittsburg on the Allegheny river. Two people were instantly killed and another fatally injured. The explosion occurred in the jewelry store of J. K. Turner on Fourth avenue. The building was completely wrecked and then caught fire.

Miss Sheppier, of Emmenton, Pa., who occupied a room in the building, was instantly killed. Mrs. Sarah Wilson, occupant of another room, was fatally injured. G. K. Turner, jeweler, was blown through the roof of the top of a 3-story building adjoining, and his mangled body dangled over the edge of the roof until the building burned down.

Both buildings were quickly destroyed by the fire which followed the explosion. It is thought to have been caused by nitro-glycerine.

IRON EXCHANGE BANK.

Duluth's Latest Financial Addition in Successful Operation.

The Iron Exchange bank of Duluth which opened its doors to the banking public last Wednesday is a new and needed addition to the financial world in this section and the list of officers is a guarantee of strength and solidity. The cash capital is $100,000 and Leonidas Merritt is president. J. T. Hale is vice president and Thomas H. Phillips formerly of Black River Falls, Wis., is cashier, and C. E. DeWitt is assistant cashier. The directors are Leonidas Merritt, A. E. Humphreys, Moses E. Clapp, Alfred Merritt, Cassius C. Merritt, Roswell H. Palmer, Donald Grant, N. B. Merritt, Elijah C. Gridley, James T. Hale, Andrus R. Merritt, Thomas H. Phillips.

The bank's quarters are in the easterly storeroom of the Chamber of Commerce building and are admirably situated as regards location and convenience of appointment. Within the bank vault is one of the latest makes of the Mosler Safe company's double screw door safes, with an independent time lock on each door, the only safe of the kind in this section of the country. The bank furniture and fittings are a dainty mahogany, with grained iron work, copper mounted, and the dealing plates are marble, the base of the fittings also resting in marble. The Phoenix Manufacturing company, of Eau Claire, Wis., furnishes the fittings. The Hodgson & Leary electric light furnishers did the wiring for electric lights and it is a very fine piece of work. The tellers' bookkeepers' cages are very richly though plainly finished, and there are a number of convenient mahogany desks along the west side of the room for the convenience of patrons.

The bank already has a much larger list of depositors than was looked for for some time to come, and their correspondents elsewhere are among the best institutions of the kind in America. Among the list are the Chase National bank, of New York city; the Continental National bank, of Chicago; the Merchants National bank, of St. Paul; the Security Bank of Minnesota, of Minneapolis, and others equally as strong. Leonidas Merritt was formally presented by the people of Duluth as glad to welcome the Iron Exchange bank to the list of Duluth's solid financial institutions.

The Lantern Presented. There was a pleasant gathering of Masonic people in Palestine lodge rooms last night. The stereopticon lantern described in The Herald a few days ago was formally presented by the Howard brothers to the lodge, one of the brothers making the speech. Some twenty-five or thirty of the views accompanying the lantern were shown, commencing with the time of the building of Solomon's temple and running rapidly up to the time of the Duluth temple.

DULUTH SOCIALLY

A Number of Causes Interfere and Make the Week a Very Dull One.

The High School Graduating Exercises are Exciting Considerable Interest in Society.

A Few Brief Bits of Social Gossip Showing What Duluth People Are Doing.

Social matters have been greatly interfered with during the past week owing to a multitude of causes, prominent among which may be noticed the death of one of Duluth's foremost citizens, the heat of a local political campaign, and the near approach of the national Republican convention. The appearance of the great actress, Rhea, which in Duluth is always looked upon as somewhat of a social event by reason of that distinguished woman's large large personal list of lady and gentleman friends is somewhat enlivening, and additional interest is lent to the presence of the great actress by the knowledge that she makes her last appearance in America in Duluth, as on May 11, four days after appearing here, she sails from New York to open the summer at her beautiful home in Paris, which a few of Duluth's leading people have received cordial invitation to visit. The high school graduating exercises are also regarded as something of a social event, and the interest in the class' exit from the roof of learning is universally shared. The wedding of Joseph Watson and his fair young fiancée in Ireland, is also talked about and much interest is felt in the event, although the Atlantic ocean and several thousand miles of distance intervene between Duluth and the scene of the interesting ceremony.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH.
 Entered at the postoffice at Duluth, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

The Weather.
C. S. WEAVER, DULUTH, MINN.,
 June 4.—A storm of considerable energy has developed over the Southwest and is now central over Colorado accompanied by light rain all through the Southwest and extending as far north as Dakota. The temperature remains stationary around western Lake Superior but has risen in all surrounding places. It is 107
 at Duluth than at Marquette, St. Vincent or St. Paul, and 115 colder than at Moorhead.
 Clear, cold weather is reported from the Northwest, and cloudy and warm over the South and West.
 While the storm now over Colorado may advance towards this section and rain, yet there is only a slight chance of its doing so, but local showers may be expected tonight at any time,
 over eastern Minnesota.

DULUTH, June 4.—Local forecast for Duluth
 until 8 p. m. June 5: Fair; probably followed by rain tonight; slight change in temperature;
 northeast winds.

B. H. BRADSON,
 Observer.
 WASHINGTON, June 4.—Forecast till 3 p. m.
 Sunday: For upper Michigan and Wisconsin,
 generally fair; easterly winds today and Sunday. For Minnesota: Generally fair weather;
 westerly winds.

THE CONVENTION NEWS.

Much space is devoted in this issue of The Herald to the presidential campaign, because it is believed it is the most interesting topic at this time, in view of the proximity of the Minneapolis convention. The lengthy dispatch from The Herald's special representative at Minneapolis will be found to contain an excellent account of the present status of affairs. During the coming week this correspondent will keep the readers of The Herald advised regarding the probable action of the convention.

The Herald office is now connected by wire directly with the United Press headquarters in the convention hall, and the full reports of that great news-gathering
 association, prepared by a large force of experienced political reporters, will be received here simultaneously with all
 the leading newspapers of the country.
 The Western Associated Press has also detailed a number of its ablest reporters
 to this work, and their complete reports
 will also be received by The Herald.
 No other paper in Duluth owns both franchises of these two great press associations, and the convention reports in
 The Herald will therefore be unequalled here for promptness, completeness and reliability.

AN UNDERGROUND TROLLEY.

The overhead trolley system of electric street railway has several disadvantages that must eventually cause it to give place to some other system,
 whenever a thoroughly tested one has shown its efficiency. There have been many experiments with the storage battery system and there are several short lines upon which it is now used, but the general opinion among electrical engineers appears to be that its practicability has not yet been demonstrated. The best substitute for the overhead trolley,
 and at the same time one that is at least equally as good, has therefore yet to be found.

Recently an underground trolley system has been receiving some attention
 from those opposed to the overhead system and the reports are that all experiments made with it have been very successful. An underground trolley system would remove all the dangers incident
 to the overhead system and would free the streets from the present mass of unsightly wires. The principal objects of this system are: First, to insure the presence of a continuous and uniform
 current throughout the entire length of an underground conduit in the operation of an electric motor; second, to maintain the conductor for conveying the current through the underground conduit substantially dry and free from moisture, in order that electric leakage may be obviated.

It is claimed that the system has been examined and carefully investigated by several of the leading experts and by those who have had practical experience
 in the distribution of electricity by underground conductors, and that they speak in the highest praise of the system, owing to its many practical or commercial features. Several underground systems have heretofore been advocated
 as practical, but trial or experience
 therewith has proven the contrary, because of imperfect or unsatisfactory insulation obtained, and further because of the inability to obviate condensation and other analogous defects therein. Many people have asserted, in consequence,
 that no underground trolley system is feasible. If the new system to which reference is made is demonstrated to be practical, everyone can rejoice because
 the end of the dangerous and unsightly
 overhead wires will have been reached.

THE UNIQUE IN POLITICS.

In another column will be found an article, written by W. N. Severance, of Appleton, Minn., who is now stopping in Duluth. He has taken an active part upon the Republican platform in nearly all the campaigns, from Lincoln's first to the present; served three years in the army to the close of the war, and has been conversant with all the public issues and many of the public men of his time, and, as he amplifies it in his article,

 he considers the present political situation
 the most unique in his experience.

The Herald is confident the article will be read with interest. Mr. Severance writes, of course, from a Republican standpoint, but throughout the article he discusses the situation in a fair-minded manner, and though all the readers of The Herald may not agree with his statements, they cannot but appreciate the force of his conclusions regarding the unique features of politics at this time. Mr. Severance was trained in the Indiana school of politics, and for years took an active part in the old
 "bloody Ninth" district.

THE FIGHT GROWS HOT.

President Harrison has received a letter from Mr. Blaine, but it is not the letter that was anxiously awaited. It was of a different tenor. It tendered Mr. Blaine's immediate resignation as secretary of state and it was accepted at once.
 Mr. Blaine is now an open candidate for the nomination at Minneapolis. Gen.
 New says President Harrison will stay in the fight to the close. It will be a hot convention.

The unit rule seemed rather incongruous recently, when applied by a Tennessee Democratic convention to its delegation to the state convention. The delegation consisted of one man. There are no reports as to whether he enforced
 the unit rule.

The Republican county convention is in progress this afternoon, and from the indications at this writing it appears that Mr. Kendall's friends will have control and will elect a solid delegation in his favor.

THE COUNTY BOARD.

Alfred Merritt Has Resigned His Position as Commissioner.
 County Commissioner Alfred Merritt
 presented his resignation to the county board at its meeting yesterday afternoon.
 Mr. Merritt has served nine years and his resignation was a surprise. It was at once laid on the table, but he insisted
 and it was finally accepted, but very reluctantly. Mr. Merritt would not wait until the expiration of his term, but insisted on retiring at once, saying that personal business demanded all his time and attention. A resolution of thanks for his continuous service of nine years
 was adopted by the board.

The regular monthly bank statement was read and it was found that the county had not been credited with the last 25 per cent dividend declared by Assignee Markell of Bell & Eyster.
 Treasurer Crosse explained that he had the check, but was holding it until the first of next week to accommodate Mr.
 Markell. This satisfied the board. The amount in the county's deposit is $27,599.55 and the dividend will increase it $9,199.85. County Treasurer Crosse's monthly statement
 showed the following deposits, the total receipts for the month being $67,334.85
 and the disbursements, $712.57:

American Exchange bank, New York	$ 1,370 10
First National bank	828 20
Marine National bank	34,311 47
National Bank of Commerce	24,129 20
Security bank	31,227 20
State bank	28,044 00
Union bank	35,189 11
American Loan and Trust company	4,983 16
Bank of Ely	9,953 27
First National Bank of Tower	10,000 00
Commercial Bank of Duluth	1,448 70
Bell & Eyster	27,209 85
Cash on hand	11,294 98
Total	$368,102 69

Commissioners Jefferson, Poirier and Butcher were appointed as a committee to confer with the committee of the city council and committees from other municipalities in relation to the purchase of a right-of-way for railroads
 through the city of Duluth.

Forty-nine residents of township 58-17
 petitioned to be organized as the town of Mesaba Mountain, and June 22 was set as the day for the first election. Stephen Enfield's petition for a license to sell liquor at Mesaba station was rejected, a protest being received.

The board experiences considerable trouble in deciding upon applications
 for abatement of taxes Auditor La Vague was directed to publish notices in the papers of the county notifying all taxpayers to make their protests before the local boards of review and have them corrected.

The reports of the county physician
 and superintendent of poor were read.

UNIQUE FEATURES.

A Trenchant Review of the Present Situation From a Republican Standpoint.

Elements of a Unique Character That Enter Into the Aspect of Affairs.

The Entry of the Delegates to the Minneapolis Convention Discussed at Length.

The situation, as regards the policies
 of the two great parties, is unique.
 Neither can claim that the masses of their rank and file are of a satisfactory,
 or even safe singleness of purpose upon
 the pivotal questions of the day—the tariff and silver. Eminent leaders in both parties differ radically as to which
 of these is the pivotal point, while others
 vehemently maintain that a free vote and a full count without regard to color or previous condition is indispensable to the existence of a Republican form of government or its peace and prosperity.
 The Republican position as a party is in favor of the American system of protection, by laying a duty on such articles
 as we can produce or manufacture so that, after paying the higher American wages, the American article will yield
 as much profit as the foreign article,
 after paying their lower wages and the tariff duties. As a party, the Republicans are in favor of the remonetizing of silver, but opposed to the free coinage
 of silver at its present depreciated value,
 thus making our country the dumping ground of silver for all nations, to the exclusion of gold, and our great loss.
 At least a large and powerful minority of the Republican party demand that representation shall be apportioned
 among the states so far as federal elections are concerned, upon the basis of that portion of the voting population that is not protected by tariff and have their votes legally returned.
 The Democratic party is by no means
 a unit on the tariff and silver questions.
 They are a party undoubtedly favor free trade and free coinage of silver, though
 a powerful minority are opposed to both,
 but on the existing methods of conducting elections in the South, recent votes
 in congress show a very united determination to continue close control with regard to actual majorities.
 Another very potent element of the unique—decidedly unique—is the Alliance party, or the People's party, or the Workmen's party. What their affirmative position is let him tell who knows.
 Their program is to abolish the tariff, to show them to be the party of negation, whatever that may mean, and it has been forcibly demonstrated that it can be made to mean much. Whether it, or they, be a power of aggregation or a power of disintegration, it is not hard to manifest that they had leading parts in the top-sit-turvy landslide which closed
 the last congressional and state campaigns, in which the then dominant Republican party hardly kept out that they were in the fight—doing but little more than to save a few landmarks, such as McKinley as governor of Ohio and McKim of Maine and Lind of Minnesota
 in the house of representatives.

The other features of the unique,
 which appears to me to be manifesting itself that might be termed, for short one-termism. It must be noted that Grant was our last president to succeed
 himself, and that occurred sixteen years ago, and it may never occur again. The reason for this may not be so readily found in patriotic and unselfish self-service reform, as in the more potent selfishness and pure personalism of politics—the "outs," whose only chance is in a change, outnumber, as about ten
 one, the "ins," and their disposition and
 capacity to work in party harness is fully
 proportionate to their numbers.

In the matter of candidates the unique features are lacking. President Harrison surprised friends and adversaries
 during his campaign by the happy telling speeches he made to the almost
 numberless visiting delegations of all
 sorts and conditions of men and societies, and very potent element of the unique—the "outs," whose only chance is
 in a change, outnumber, as about ten
 one, the "ins," and their disposition and
 capacity to work in party harness is fully
 proportionate to their numbers.

 telling speeches he made to the almost
 numberless visiting delegations of all
 sorts and conditions of men and societies, and very potent element of the
 unique—the "outs," whose only chance is
 in a change, outnumber, as about ten
 one, the "ins," and their disposition and
 capacity to work in party harness is fully
 proportionate to their numbers.

vic with Democratic orators in the assurances that the South was not a "Solid South," that things were all in proper shape and conduct, but after his act, fully awakened to his delusion,
 he made his truly famous "Augusta
 speech," a genuine Republican speech,
 especially regarding the peculiar methods obtaining in the "Solid South," had he made this same speech fifteen days before
 at Buffalo he had doubtless been elected in spite of the Democrats and Burchard's
 "Run, Romanism and Rebellion." In the midst of his presidential campaign
 he brought an action for slander against an Indianapolis newspaper, but Benjamin Harrison as his attorney, and after the election and his defeat dismissed the action, and by a letter which he gave to the public remarked so uncomplimentarily upon the people, the parties, of Indiana that one could not think he would ever again submit his name for their suffrages. As an eminent diplomat he recently uncloseted his domestic skeletons in so free and reckless a hand as to place himself and family at the mercy of his ex-daughter-in-law, and yet the very unique fact remains—the clean,
 able, firm and patriotic administration of President Harrison is, with a vast number of Republicans, under the shadow of the brilliant statesman from Maine, his chosen secretary of state, his closest political confidant.

Both the unique is not confined to the Republican situation. Ex-President Cleveland, who until within a few months
 was the sole pride and chief of his party,
 has, like so many other politicians, written too many letters, and sadly divided his following on the silver question, and his rival, the Governor of New York, Hill,
 aided and abetted by the Brice-Gowan Tammany combine, has perpetrated a "mid-winter convention," which it is to be hoped is and ever will be high water
 mark in American machine politics.
 The defeated, and of course actively opposed, and outraged Democrats of the state of New York, have convened, resolved, elected another set of delegates, and the
 fight is on, for the finish,
 with the prospects of both sides, the contestants being knocked out by the people, their every hope being to throw the election into the Democratic house.
 This breach of felicity seems deep and bitter, but perhaps it were not well for Republicans to proceed on the basis of the hypothesis of its being remediless. Our Democratic friends have a custom, peculiar to themselves, of embracing and commingling their tears, beards and grease at most unexpected times, and then, in wholly satisfactory manners,
 The Republican party was founded upon the well matured and clearly defined principle, that ours was a free and not a slave-holding nation. Its first campaign in 1860 was a campaign of education. Lincoln was comparatively unknown. One, at least, of the leaders of his party, Seward, confidently expected to be president de facto, with "Abc" as president de jure. No American party has been so free of personalism, his foundation tenet of monarchies, as the Republican party. No party has staked so confidently upon the patriotism and intelligence of the people as the Republican party, and run its campaigns upon the educational, progressive plan. The party has elected no president upon issue
 ballots, or Burchard frauds, and with victory or defeat, they must continue as they have been, or cease to be of the grand old Republican party. Its policy and supporters saved the Union.
 resumed specie payment, and has adopted
 and proposes to maintain the American system of protection to and preference for Americans.

It is clear that the situation demands of the delegates to the Minneapolis convention their utmost coolness and wisdom
 in their deliberation and pure unselfish patriotism in their action. This article reveals no personal, political or party
 secrets—it is simply a little brief, historical resume and outlook, which, in its full scope of kindred topics, too numerous to mention here, should be candidly considered by those having the shaping of current events, especially in view of the very evident Democratic plan of campaign that is to throw the election into the house of representatives, thus securing a Democratic victory over the people.

As to the plausibility of this, count
 first on a "solid South." If the election bill were now a law, which, be it to his credit as a fearless and consistent Republican, President Harrison did what he should to have passed, it might be different. Recent state and city elections
 show a recuperation of Republicanism.
 They are digging out from under the landslide of 1890 hopefully. But their course is by no means clear, or results certain. The pivotal portion of the campaign of 1892 will be in the West;
 probably even west of the Mississippi.
 The St. Louis and Omaha convention of the People's and Alliance parties manifest a great unknown quantity. Already the Democrats are forming their alliances with the great dissatisfied, to give state offices to them, and secure for them the electoral tickets, thus despoiling the Republicans in Republican states and defeating an election in the electoral college and throwing it into their hands in the Democratic house. Any scandal, and all issues of any practical value
 can be raised by the Republicans can count on as having to meet, especially in the West. The manifest benefits of the McKimley bill will be shifted to the good crops and good prices. The changes will be rung on "gold," "monopoly,"
 "free silver," "free trade," "war taxes"
 and "force bills." Donnelly will assure the poor that the Republicans have grown rich and powerful by robbing them, and that the People's party will pay off their mortgages if they will vote their ticket, and the leaders of the Alliance
 will see proud positions and diamonds
 in their future if the Republicans are beaten.

The last Republican congress, after being delayed by a capitious, and at times insurrectionary Democratic minority, passed the McKimley bill but thirty-four days before the state and congressional elections. From the candy shops of the frontier to the importing houses of New York prices were marked up fraudulently and charged to the Republican tariff. European manufacturers, British Cobden clubs, and Democrats, joined in the fight, aided by the People's and Alliance parties, the great but misled and honestly dissatisfied. No Republican argument could stand such statements then, and the landslide came.
 It served its purpose. What next in the catalogue of political legerdemain, remains to be seen, but they can be relied upon for something interesting if circumstances give them an opportunity.
 I am not clear as to who should be nominated at Minneapolis. A candid, broad-gauged, patriotic conference can

Deep Sea Soundings.

Some interesting facts about the "depths"
 of ocean" appear in the recently published official report of Captain Aldrick, commander of the British surveying ship Egeria. During 1880-81 the captain, while on a cruise which was undertaken for the purpose of searching for reported banks
 on the south of the Friendly islands, obtained two remarkable soundings. The first gave a depth of 4,266 fathoms, and the second 4,499 fathoms. The first was taken in lat-tude 24 degs. 37 min. south, longitude 175
 degs. 8 min. west, the other twelve miles farther south. They are something like 100 fathoms deeper than any heretofore taken in the southern hemisphere, and are only surpassed, as far as yet known, by three other ocean basins—one of 4,655
 fathoms, off the northeast coast of Japan, discovered by the Tuscarora, of the United States navy, and another, since which shows a depth of 4,561 fathoms, this last being south of the Ladron island, a discovery of her majesty's ship Challenger.
 The United States steamer Blake also discovered a remarkable basin north of Porto Rico two years ago, the line showing a depth of 4,561 fathoms.

Genuine Poems of Imagination.

Barry Cornwall wrote many stirring poems of the sea, yet he never dared go on board a vessel, and it is said that though Longfellow was the author of a fine poem about the Bermuda he never visited those islands. Not long before his death he was called upon by the Misses Trimmingham,
 who were among the wealthiest people of Bermuda. They sought him out in his Cambridge house, and though at that time
 he denied himself to most callers the poet welcomed the ladies quite cordially. As he conducted them to the door at the end of a pleasant chat he paused in saying
 and said, as if in reverie, "Bermuda, Bermuda: how I have longed to go
 there, but now I never shall!"

Making Over Girls' Dresses.

Of course there is always a good deal
 of making over and remodeling that has to be done at home for the sake of using all the pieces, but if mothers
 could buy their girls' dresses as they do
 the boys' clothes it would be a real saving. There would be no spoiled garments, and the time thus gained would be more profitably employed in stopping
 the leaks in the other departments, particularly the kitchen. One good dress,
 two ordinary outdoor, two wash dresses
 and a loose wrapper for mornings are enough for a girl when kept in order,
 and many of the daughters of our millionaires have no more at a time.

The Located Squirrel.

A boy went into an Auburn store Thursday and asked the price of a squirrel cage
 that was in the window. The proprietor told him, and then inquired, "Have you got a squirrel?" "No," said the boy, "but I have got one in a hole down in New Auburn. So I thought I would find out what a cage would cost, and if I had money enough to buy one I would go back and catch him."—Banger Commercial.

THE BOOK CORNER

A Glance at the New Books That Have Just Been Issued By Publishers.

Some of the Interesting Contents of the June Numbers of the Magazines.

Rudyard Kipling and Walcott Balestier's New Novel to Be Issued in Book Form.

Outing for June is as pure and refreshing as the shades and breezes of the woods and waters it loves so well. It is pre-eminently a magazine for the home circle, and richly deserves its great success, for matured and growing minds are alike benefited by its honest teachings, which ever point the way to the safest of all earthly sanctuaries—nearest to nature's heart. The number is superbly illustrated, the frontispiece (famous white-winged Gleaner) and many other engravings being artistic gems. The contents are as follows: "Through Muskoka Marvel Lands," by Ed W. Sandys, illustrated; "Inter-city and International Cricket in America," by Thomas Wharton, illustrated; "Experiences in Amateur Photography," "A. H.," by Wm. Hinckley; "Evolution of the Forty-Six Footer" (concluded), by Geo. A. Stewart, illustrated; "By Wheel From Havre to Rouen" (concluded), by J. W. Fosdick, illustrated; "June Rides," by Jessie F. O'Donnell; "Harry's Career at Yale" (concluded), by John Seymour Wood, illustrated; "Saddle and Sentiment" (continued), by Venona Gilman, illustrated; "The Maryland National Guard," by Hanson Hiss, illustrated; "From the German Ocean to the Black Sea" (continued), by Thos. Stevens, illustrated; "Nova Scotia as a Summer Resort," illustrated; "Miscellaneous Jumping," by Malcolm W. Ford, illustrated; and the usual editorials, poems, records, etc.

The June number of the Forum has for several years been in an especial sense an educational number, and this year there are two notable educational articles—one by President Dwight, of Yale university, explaining the recent action of Yale in admitting women to its advanced courses of instruction; and the other by one of the masters of Eton (England), who writes an interesting description of this historical school for boys. There are two articles, also, of more than usual religious interest—one by Dr. H. K. Carroll, special agent of the census, who presents the results of the census of the churches, which contains some of the most interesting facts about the rapid growth of new, important sects during the last ten years; and the other by President Hyde, of Bowdoin college, Maine, on "The Impending Paganism" in the New England country districts because of the appalling neglect of the churches. This state of things, President Hyde declares, presents the most important problem that today confronts American Christianity. Two other articles of interest are: "Shall we Have Endowed Opera in America," by Prof. J. K. Paine, of Harvard, who discusses our musical development in an instructive way; and "What the Coming Man Will Eat," by Prof. W. O. Atwater, of Wesleyan university, who has made more experiments than any other American chemist into the nutritive quality of food. He indicates, among other things, that in the choice and preparation of food there is need of revolution, and that Americans can improve their health and vigorous physical and intellectual development through a proper selection of food.

One of the interesting literary announcements of the spring season is that of a new novel by Dorothea Gerard, the popular author of "Orthodox," etc., and the joint author of "A Sensitive Plant" and "Reata." The new book, which bears the striking title of "A Queen of Curds and Cream," will be published shortly in Appleton's Town and Country library.

The twenty-seventh volume of the Magazine of American History closes with the June issue, bringing its customary elaborate index to the benefit of scholars. Edward F. de Lancey writes one of the best articles in the current number, on King George's personal policy in England, which forced his subjects in America, against their wishes, into a successful revolution. The illustrated article which opens this handsome June number, "Historical Reminiscences of Our New Parks," very cleverly written by Fordham Morris, will interest readers in all parts of the country. "The Relations Between the United States and Japan," a translation by Rev. William Elliot Griffith, D. D., of Boston, and "Lieutenant-General John Mansuelli, 1724-1795," by Rev. Mansuelli Van Rensselaer, D. D., are both informing and exceptionally valuable papers. "America Must Be Called Columbia," comes with a sharp point from Edward A. Oldham, of Washington. "An Hour With Daniel Webster," by Hon. Horatio King, treats of the great orator as a poet, quoting some delightful specimens of verse from his marvelously ready pen. The departments are well filled, and the index illustrates the remarkable success of this magazine in its choice of precious material for permanent preservation. Subscription price, $5 a year. Published at 745 Broadway, New York.

An interesting fact not generally known is that the unprecedented demand for Miss Humphrey Ward's "Robert Elsmere" was due primarily to Gladstone's very striking characterization of it. The case of Blanche Fearing's latest book, "In the City by the Lake," published by the young women publishers, the Misses Seale and Gordon, of Chicago, promises to furnish to this incident a striking American parallel, since Professor David Swing, a stranger to the author, has awarded it the highest and most hearty commendation.

The change in the condition of the unmarried woman that has come about in the last ten years is the subject of an interesting letter on "The Self-Supporting Woman" in the Argonaut of May 30. It is from the pen of "Van Gryse" and describes the newspaper women, the art and medical students, the sick nurses, the teachers, the bookkeepers, typewriters and the other women workers who are so numerous in New York, preferring a hall bedroom and independence to the grudging bounty of rich relatives.

"The Naulahka," the novel by Rudyard Kipling and Walcott Balestier, now running in the Century magazine, will be issued in book form by Messrs. Macmillan & Co. immediately after its completion of the story.

To this editor of the story Mr. Kipling has added a number of rhymed chapter headings, some of which are very noticeable bits of his characteristic verse.

The frontispiece of The Review of Reviews for June is the most interesting picture of Mr. Blaine that has been published in a long while. It is from his very latest photograph, made by a distinguished German diplomatist at Washington, who happens to be an ardent amateur photographer. It represents Mr. Blaine sitting on his porch at Bar Harbor, and was secured last fall. In connection with a very readable article entitled, "A Glance at Mr. Blaine's Commercial Policy," there is also a fine, spirited drawing of Mr. Blaine by the artist Garibaydoff, besides excellent etched portraits of John W. Foster and William E. Curtis, both of the department of state, and both peculiarly identified with Mr. Blaine's South American and reciprocity policies. This article on Mr. Blaine's policy is attributed to "a supporter of the Pan-American idea," and it would seem to bear some of the marks of William E. Curtis' facile pen. It is a well-informed, straight-forward statement, not entering into elaborate details.

In the June Arena the editor gives one of the most vivid pictures of the nineteenth century inferno which has ever appeared in a paper, entitled "The Democracy of Darkness." He takes us through the under world and lets us behold glimpses of what he has witnessed in Boston. He next notices the problem in all our great cities, notably New York city, giving facts and figures of great value to social students. From this he discusses the cardinal causes which produce the democracy of darkness, and further advances a comprehensive plan for the amelioration of misery and an effective educational agitation. Among the leading papers in the June Arena are "Automatic Writing," by B. F. Underwood; "The Right of Children," by Rev. M. J. Savage; "Newly Discovered Properties of the Ether," by Professor A. E. Bolbear; "The Rock of True Democracy," by A. C. House; "English Poets," by Louise Chandler Moulton; "The Lake Dwellers of Switzerland," by W. D. McCrackan, A. M.; Mr. Garland's story, "A Spoil of Office," comes to a close in this issue.

Roswell Smith, the late president of The Century Co., is the subject of a number of contributions to the June Century. There is a frontispiece portrait, a poem by Edmund Gosse, a biographical sketch by Rev. Dr. Gladstone, and editorial in "Fogles of the Time," with brief statements of Mr. Smith's connection with the Tract society, the Congregational club, and Berea college, Kentucky. The leading illustrated article of this number is by Dr. Albert Shaw, whose timely and interesting papers in other numbers on modern municipal government will be remembered. In this paper he describes the rise of a new metropolis—"Budapest." The paper is brightly and profusely illustrated by Joseph Pennell. A paper also of timely interest in view of the approaching presidential campaign is Joseph B. Bishop's article on "Early Political Caricature in America," which is illustrated by facsimiles of caricatures which were famous in their day. Some of the pictures have been made from the original drawings. A striking feature of this number is the beginning of a new serial called the Chateleine of La Trinite, by Henry B. Fuller, author of the book so much praised by James Russell Lowell and Prof. Norton, "The Chevalier of Pensieri-Vani." Mr. Fuller's first book dealt with Italian subjects in a novel and charming manner, the scene of the present one is laid in Switzerland. Mrs. Foote's story of "The Chosen Valley" is continued in this number, as are also Kipling's and Balestier's "Naulahka," and Dr. Wier Mitchell's "Characteristics." In the way of short stories a new writer makes his appearance in The Century, Will Payne, with a story entitled "A Simple Case," accompanied with pictures by E. W. Kemble. Viola Roseboro' has a story called "The Girl and the Problem," with pictures by Du Mond, and Mr. Edwards illustrates his own "Thumb-Nail Sketch"—"The Clavacin, Bruges."

Model Locomotive Engines.
The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has placed in service on its Chicago division three new passenger engines, built at the Baldwin Locomotive works after new designs furnished by the general superintendent of motive power of the Baltimore & Ohio company. The engines weigh 115,000 pounds, having driving wheels 6 feet 6 inches in diameter, cylinders 19 by 24 inches, and are without doubt the finest passenger locomotives running into the city of Chicago today. Companions of these new engines have been developed wonderful power and speed in hauling the famous Royal Blue Line trains, which run between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, over the Philadelphia division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The Baltimore & Ohio has added over forty new, high-class engines to its motive power equipment within the last sixty days, and others are under construction. While constantly adding engines of approved designs and highest grade to its motive power, and passenger coaches of Pullman standard to its rolling stock, the Baltimore & Ohio is also expending large amounts for additional second and third tracks and sidings, and improved facilities at terminal points. By the time the World's fair is opened for the reception of visitors the Baltimore & Ohio will be well equipped to handle, expeditiously, the large volume of passenger traffic which will naturally seek this picturesque route from the Atlantic seaboard to Chicago.

A New Jobbing House.

The Phoenix Electric company, which was the pioneer institution of its kind in Duluth, has recently added a couple of branches to its rapidly increasing business. The company's office and headquarters is at 465 West Michigan street, and H. H. Fisk, jr., is president and J. M. Anderson is secretary and treasurer of the company. They furnish electric lighting and wiring, gas and electric fixtures, electric bells and repair work, and light and power motors and furnish estimates on all classes of electric work, but their latest departure is the adding of a wholesale department of electric supplies and they are also Northwestern agents of the Phoenix Glassware company of Pittsburgh, one of the pioneer houses in this line. They are now enabled to supply the Northwestern trade with all classes of electric goods at or below Chicago prices and will keep several traveling men constantly on the road. The Phoenix company was the first house of its kind in the city and their large patronage only proves the wisdom of their choice in locating here. They are fully prepared to meet any demands upon them for any kind of electric work, and they employ none but the very best class of electrical workers. They have already wired and equipped a large number of the best of the newer buildings in Duluth and have a number of heavy contracts on hand which are nearing completion. The house stands high in the community on account of their previous business record, and their new departure will probably be an added success.

AT THE THEATERS

Will Carleton, the Famous Poet Orator and Lecturer, Will Be at the Lyceum Tonight.

The Lyceum Will Be Closed Next Week Except for an Amateur Entertainment.

This week has been well taken up with attractions at the Temple and six performances will have been given there when the Jeannie Winston Opera company closes its engagement tonight in "Prince Methusalem," one of the best of their repertoire. The company has not been very successful in Duluth and yet it cannot be from a lack of advertising. It is, on the whole, a very creditable summer opera company and has labored under difficulties here and at West Superior. Manager Condon will do well if he comes out whole on the engagement as he had given the company a good guaranty. The "Spider and Fly" filled the Temple to the doors Monday evening but there is not much of anything in the show except the specialties. Take them out and it would have to be retired very quickly. The Lyceum has been closed all week.

Next week the Temple will have Mlle. Rhea who has appeared in this city several times. Rhea has a warm place in her heart for Duluth and has many friends here who always entertain her while she is in the city. The Creoles are also coming and will undoubtedly fill the bald-headed row and pack the gallery if nothing more. The Lyceum will have nothing this week but the Y. M. C. A. entertainment Monday evening.

POET, ORATOR AND LECTURER.

Will Carleton Will Appear at the Lyceum This Evening.

Will Carleton, orator, poet and lecturer will be heard at the Lyceum this evening. Everybody knows Carleton's poems, and at this entertainment they will be heard in a most interesting and eloquent manner. He has spent weeks of study upon his poems before venturing to read them in public. Mr. Carleton reads them as the one who has studied and felt them before they were written. The ludicrous and pathetic are so deftly mingled in the poems he selects for public reading that, to quote a competent critic, "laughter and tears struggle for supremacy," and not one of his productions but has a moral and elevating tendency and makes all who hear it wiser and better for having done so. Mr. Carleton is also an orator of the first rank, and often intersperses with his poems glowing passages in prose, full of eloquence and wit—fact, to quote a distinguished statesman: "There isn't a lull in the interest, a pause in the variety, or a single dull minute during the whole blessed time he is on the platform."

A GRAND ACTRESS COMING.

Mlle Rhea Will Appear in Duluth Tuesday Next.

Mlle Rhea begins an engagement of two performances in this city at the Temple on Tuesday afternoon, June 7. At the matinee, she will play the comedy "Gossip," in which she is said to present a character new to the stage. The plot of the piece turns upon the chatter of a garrulous French countess, whose tendency to scandal-mongering involves all the characters, including herself, in a complex situation. On Tuesday evening this charming artist will be seen in the grand historical drama entitled "La Czarina, Empress of Russia." This play is an adaptation of a drama written by that most prolific of play-wrights, Eugene Scribe.

The plot is romantic and relates to one of the love affairs of the empress of Russia with a nobleman of the court. The play is said to give a well-studied picture of Russian court life at the time of Peter the Great. Rhea has always been the most exquisitely dressed woman on the stage. In "La Czarina" Rhea's dressing will be especially superb. Her gowns in this production are facsimiles of those worn by the present Russian empress at the state ball last winter. When Rhea wears her crown and holds the scepter she is more royal even than history makes the woman she portrays. The following well-known people comprise Rhea's company this season: Hardy Kirkland, William Beach, Lauren Rees, J. R. Amory, Burr Carruth, M. C. Bowers, E. L. Walton, Miss Una Abell, Miss Belle Jordan.

Dramatic Gossip.

Dan Sully will star next season in a new play called "Tammany Hall."

Author Charles H. Hoyt is enjoying himself at his pretty home in Charlestown, N. H., by writing a new play to be finished by September.

Fanny Davenport closed her prosperous season in Chicago on Saturday, and will take a rest for eight weeks.

Mrs. James Brown Potter and Kyrle Bellw are soon to appear at the Shaftesbury theater, London, in "Hero and Leander."

Mrs. Bernard Beere, who will next season make an American tour under the management of Marcus R. Mayer, is playing "Masks and Faces" in Australia, where she has been very successful.

Madame Modjeska and her husband have gone to their ranch in California for the summer.

J. K. Emmet is quite as enthusiastic a horseman as was his father. He is now exercising three good saddle horses as in July he proposes to ride from New York to William Muldoon's place in Belfast, N. Y., the distance being some 360 miles and is now organizing the party.

Fanny Davenport, during her thirty-three weeks' season, has averaged $7500 each week and her receipts for one week amounted to $8100. She has cleared $80,000 on her season's work and she has been wise enough to continue next season under Mr. Mayer's management.

Agnes Huntington, after a profitable

thirty-three weeks' season, will start for London, June 18. She may return next season under the management of Marcus R. Mayer with a new opera, but will meanwhile appear in London at a new theater which has been offered her.

The fourth generation of the Wallack family in America was increased on Monday last by the presentation to Mr. Arthur Wallack of a bouncing twelve pound boy, to be known through life as Lester Wallack.

Emma Juch is singing in "Pinafore" at San Francisco with J. Charles Davis as manager.

Charles Frohman has secured the American rights to Oscar Wilde's play "Lady Windermere's Fan."

Wilson Barrett's next American tour will be under the management of John R. Rogers, Minnie Palmer's husband.

Lillian Durell has made a success in Boston as Mignon. Her voice is somewhat phenomenal in the top register, and she electrified her audience in the aria of the second act by taking the G above with a certainty and purity of tone seldom heard in these days.

Sol Smith Russell's play, "Edgewood Folks," has been purchased by Albin Haywood who will star in it next season.

John H. Russell, manager of "The City Directory," was married on Tuesday morning last to Amelia Glover, the dancer. They sailed for Europe the same day.

Will Carleton, Lyceum theater, June 4.

RINGLING BROTHERS' BIG SHOW.

This Great Circus, Menagerie and Hippodrome to Exhibit Here June 27.

Monday, June 27, has been finally fixed upon as the date of the Ringling Brothers' circus in Duluth this season.

The great satisfaction given by the exhibition last year, insures a pleasant day for the public and a financially satisfactory day for the show. The Ringling Brothers' circus is a favorite in Duluth, and no other show has given the same general satisfaction here. This season the exhibition has been greatly enlarged and many new and striking features introduced. Especially notable are the new parade features. Circus day this year will be signalled by the largest and most magnificent procession ever set upon the streets of this city. Not only will there be more elephants, more open tens of performing wild beasts and more beautifully caparisoned high bred horses exhibited free upon the public thoroughfares, but there will also be shown the startling spectacle of a complete section of the parade drawn by a mammoth highway locomotive running without the aid of tracks, while from a gorgeous golden reproduction of Moscow's Kremlin tower will peal entrancing melodies from a chime of music-making bells. All this will be but preliminary to the most extensive exhibition ever seen under canvas, displayed under the largest tents ever erected, and so constructed as to be absolutely impervious to the elements. The Herald cordially welcomes the Ringling Brothers back to Duluth.

INGERSOLL NAMES BLAINE.

The Famous Speech at the Cincinnati Convention of 1876.

Massachusetts may be satisfied with the loyalty of Benjamin H. Bristow; so am I, but if any man nominated by this convention cannot carry the state of Massachusetts, I am not satisfied with the loyalty of that state. If the nominee of this convention cannot carry the grand old commonwealth of Massachusetts by 75,000 majority, I would advise them to sell out Faneuil hall as a Democratic headquarters. I would advise them to take from Bunker Hill that old monument of glory.

The Republicans of the United States demand as their leader in the great contest in 1876 a man of intelligence, a man of integrity, a man of well known and approved political opinions. They demand a reformer after as well as before the election. They demand a politician in the highest, broadest and best sense—a man of superb moral courage. They demand a man acquainted with public affairs, with the wants of the people; with not only the requirements of the hour, but with the demands of the future. They demand a man broad enough to comprehend the relations of this government to the other nations of the earth. They demand a man well versed in the powers, duties and prerogatives of each and every department of this government.

They demand a man who will sacrificially preserve the financial honor of the United States; one who knows enough to know that the national debt must be paid through the prosperity of this people; one who knows enough to know that all the financial theories in the world cannot redeem a single dollar; one who knows enough to know that all the money must be paid, not by law, but by labor; one who knows enough to know that the people of the United States have the industry to make the money and the honor to pay it over just as fast as they make it.

The Republicans of the United States demand a man who knows that prosperity and resumption, when they come, must come together; that when they come they will come hand in hand through the golden harvest of the hand in hand by the whirling spindles and the turning wheels; hand in hand past the open furnace doors; hand in hand by the flaming forges; hand in hand by the chimneys filled with eager fire-greeted and grasped by the countless sons of toil.

This money has to be dug out of the earth. You cannot make it by passing resolutions in a political convention.

The Republicans of the United States want a man who knows that this government should protect every citizen at home and abroad; who knows that its defenders and protect its protectors is a disgrace to the map of the world. They demand a man who believes in the eternal separation and divorce of church and school. They demand a man whose political reputation is spotless as a star; but they do not demand that their candidate shall have a certificate of moral character signed by a confederate congress. The man who has in full, heaped and rounded measure all these splendid qualifications is the present grand and gallant leader of the Republican party—James G. Blaine.

Our country, crowned with the vast and marvelous achievements of its first century, asks for a man worthy of the past and prophetic of her future; asks for a man who has the audacity of genius; asks for a man who is the grandest combination of heart, conscience and brain beneath her flag. Such a man is James G. Blaine.

For the Republican host, led by this intrepid man, there can be no defeat. This is a grand year—a year filled with the recollections of the Revolution; filled with proud and tender memories of the past; with the sacred legends of liberty; a year in which the sons of freedom will drink from the fountains of enthusiasm; a year in which the people call for a man who has preserved in congress what our soldiers won upon the field; a year in which they call for the man who has torn from the throat of treason the tongue of slander; for the man who has snatched the mask of Democracy from the hideous face of rebellion; for the man who, like an intellectual athlete, has stood in the arena of debate and challenged all comers, and who is still a total stranger to defeat.

Like an armed warrior, like a plumed knight, James G. Blaine marched down the halls of the American congress and threw his shining lance full and fair against the brazen forehead of the defamers of his country and the maligners of his honor.

For the Republican party to desert this gallant leader now is as though an army should desert their general upon the field of battle.

James G. Blaine is now and has been for years the bearer of the sacred standard of the Republican party. I call it sacred because no human being can stand beneath its folds without becoming and remaining free.

Gentlemen of the convention, in the name of the great republic, the only republic that ever existed upon this earth, in the name of all her defenders and of all her supporters; in the name of all her soldiers living; in the name of all her soldiers dead upon the field of battle, and in the name of those who perished in the skeleton clutch of famine at Andersonville and Libby, whose sufferings he so vividly remembers, Illinois—Illinois nominates for the next president of this country that prince of parliamentarians—that leader of leaders—James G. Blaine.

CONGRATULATIONS NOW.

One of the Best Known Hair-dressers in Boston.

Mr. Harrington Appears Before His Friends in a New Role.

Time Was Not Long Ago When They Anxiously Inquired About Him.

For more than a score of years Mr. A. O. Harrington, whose place of business is 3 Congress Sq., has been known to the bankers and brokers in the State street district, says the Boston Globe.

Mr. Harrington is one of the best-known, as he is one of the most excellent barbers in the city, and his reminiscences of the prominent men of Boston who have frequented his shop would make a very interesting story. At present Mr. Harrington is receiving congratulations of his friends. For almost ten years he has carried a cane which he has frequently walked only with the aid of a crutch. It was in November last that his crutch disappeared, and soon afterwards he went about his work and walked to and from his shop without the aid of a cane. Yesterday he told a Globe reporter that he didn't expect to have to use them again.

"I have done more work myself since November," said Mr. Harrington, "than I had done before for two years. I'll tell you all about it. Ten years ago I began to have rheumatism, and for ten years I suffered with it. I was laid up in bed as often as once in six weeks, and up to last September I had been attended by all kinds of physicians, had tried electricity and all manner of things, but I was without any permanent relief. I could not stand on my feet long at a time, and had to leave my business principally to my men."

"In November, for the first time, I began to take Paine's celery compound. I had taken just four bottles when I was able to walk and work like a new man. I left my crutch at home and dropped my cane, and leave it to you if I don't look like a well man. It is not flattery to say that Mr. Harrington would never be suspected of ever having carried a crutch in his life. A year ago, as scores of prominent business men know, he was a very different looking man. He laid up so long about the time that his friends used to anxiously inquire for him."

"Today," said Mr. Harrington, "I am a well man, and Paine's celery compound has cured me. I freely recommended every one similarly afflicted to try it."

"My friends ask me what I have been doing that I am so 'smart,' and I am glad to tell them that I have been taking Paine's celery compound. A number of my customers are now taking it, on my recommendation, and it is doing them good. I shall be pleased to see anyone who is suffering with rheumatism at my place of business, and shall be glad to answer their questions."

A well-known insurance man who had overheard a part of the conversation, told the Globe reporter that he remembered the day he first met Mr. Harrington last winter, walking without his cane, and remarked that he was so interested in the case that he had taken home a bottle of Paine's celery compound to a member of his own family, who had chronic rheumatism. "It has, as I believe, completely cured her. We are never without it in the house."

Paine's celery compound is an honest remedy. It is not a patent medicine. It is taken by the rich and poor. It is prescribed by physicians. Medical journals have reported time and again the cures it has effected. There has been this spring an unprecedented demand for it. As Mr. Harrington says, it is doing good.

LIKELY KENDALL

The Republican County Convention Is Now in Session at the City Hall.

An Immense Crowd Present, the Council Chamber Being Packed To the Doors.

On a Test Vote For Temporary Chairman, Kendall's Men Had Forty-Four Votes.

Several Disputes Over Proxies to Be Decided By the Committee on Credentials.

The Republican county convention opened at the city hall today shortly after 2 o'clock and the largest crowd that ever assembled in the council chamber was present. The city convention last winter was no comparison and it was practically impossible to get in or out of the room. There was an anxious air of expectancy in the entire assembly and for an hour before the convention opened delegates and others were gathered around the city hall and each side was marshaling its forces. Both sides were confident and each was determined to have fair play. Col. Graves occupied a seat outside the railing and his opponent, H. C. Kendall, was also on hand, but as a delegate.

Chairman Monroe Nichols of the county committee called the convention to order and asked J. B. Douglas to act as secretary until an organization was effected. The call for the convention was then read by the secretary.

The chair announced that temporary organization was in order. H. C. Kendall immediately nominated Lon Merritt, C. A. Towne offered as second, and Mr. J. B. Douglas as third. A wrangle then ensued over the method of voting. Kendall moved to vote by call of precincts. "By ballot?" asked Mr. Towne. "This is not the motion," replied Mr. Kendall. Mr. Towne then amended that it should be by precincts by ballot.

Chairman Nichols thought the only way to settle it would be to take a ballot to determine the method of balloting.

The vote finally came and it was the first test of strength. The question to determine was whether the vote for temporary chairman should be secret. One thing which developed during the voting was that John Owens, of Tower, held Joe Mannheim's proxy. Owens is a Kendall supporter and both sides had claimed to have him. J. C. Morehead of Breitung held proxies for the other delegates of his town, besides himself, thus having twelve votes. When independence was called, C. A. Towne offered a vote and Fred Chipman also. Each claimed to have a proxy and both votes were held out. When Rice Lake was reached two proxies were also presented and both were likewise thrown out. One was held by L. Perrault and the other by Bert Partridge.

The result brought a howl from the Kendall men. The vote was on the amendment to vote by precincts by ballots. The result was 43 against to 23 for it.

The Kendall men were jubilant and declared that this indicated the strength of the forces in the convention. After some preliminary talk Joseph Mannheim announced that John Owens had voted his proxy without authority. The original motion was then put and carried and the vote was cast by precincts.

It resulted in a decided victory for the Kendall faction, the vote being as follows:

The Kendall men then howled themselves hoarse as Lon Merritt took the chair. The appointment of a committee on credentials was called for and Lon Merritt pulled a piece of paper out of his pocket and read off: John Owens, H. H. Phelps, E. R. Jefferson, J. B. Douglas and Fred Chipman. C. A. Towne immediately jumped up and wanted to be on the committee also if Chipman was there. The chair substituted B. A. Lewis.

J. B. Sutphin arose and said that the Graves men came into the convention to abide by its decision and ought to be at least allowed representation on the committee on credentials. "You're giving it out too flat altogether," said he, but the committee retired just as a Herald dispatch was read announcing the resignation of Blaine from the state department which immediately created quite a sensation and the cheers for Blaine were deafening.

THERE IS A SCRAMBLE.

Ore is discovered in 61-19 and Every-body is After Lands.

Unless something very unexpected happens there will be a rush to a new (iron) El dorado in the Vermilion range. Explorers have lately arrived here with samples of ery iron discovered in 61-19. The deposits show both hard and soft ore as easy of access as the recent discoveries on the Mesaba range and also of great extent. A number of filings were made there yesterday and more today. A most determined effort has been made to keep the matter quiet in order that the selected friends might have the first pick of the new lands, but it has leaked out and there is every prospect that a big rush for the new fields will be made in a few days. The adjoining town 61-18 is also said to be very rich in ore of the best grades.

The land officers this morning received a number of swamp land decisions, all of which are against the state. The claims of the state in the following cases have been finally cancelled: Otto Klenert, John Reichart, John Fischer, Daniel Van Baalen, D. W. Nelson, F. G. Brown, Archibald Robertson and Olaf Knutson. The state claims against the lands sought to be acquired by Andrew Herrala and Alexander Jamison are held for cancellation. The petition of Swan & Smith for the re-vesting of the entry of Frederick Schinazork is denied on a number of grounds.

PERSONAL.

A. Johnson, of Red Wing, is in the city.

Arthur Hill, of Saginaw, is at the Spalding.

Gus H. Beaulieu, of St. Paul, is in the city today.

Dr. Fannie E. Holden left this morning for Detroit to attend the American Medical institute.

A. E. Humphreys and wife returned from Charleston, S. C., this morning. While away he also visited Cincinnati and other points. William Boyd, of Ripley, O., and Frank Cox returned with him.

E. L. Warren, of St. Paul, deputy United States marshal, is in the city.

C. D. Knapp, of the Duluth Dry Goods company, has returned from the East.

F. B. Chew, who has been at Washington, sailed from New York today for Paris to visit a nephew for about two weeks.

Mrs. Charles Luddington, of Morley, Mich., is in the city the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyd.

Miss Mamie Murphy, of Minneapolis, will arrive tomorrow to spend the summer with her cousin, Miss Mae Murphy.

H. R. Fish, Jr., of the Phoenix Electric company, has returned from a flying trip to New York city and Boston.

Wheat Higher.

The Duluth market opened higher this morning advancing 3/4c above yesterday before noon. The market was very dull in the afternoon and prices weakened. The close was irregular at 3/4c higher for futures, 1/2 to 1c higher for track wheat, and a decline in lower grades of cash. The cars on track today number 166; last year, 25.

HIS SCHEME.

He Unfolds It to Mr. Spoteash, but There Are No Returns.

Mr. Spoteash sat in his private office. There came a knock at the door and a man entered.

"This is Mr. Spoteash, is it not?" he asked.

"It is."

"My name is Ardup—Orville Ardup."

"Well, sir, what can I?"

"Well, I am the inventor of a device that will require a little original to develop it, but there is a big fortune in it, and I am willing to go shares with any man that will furnish the money. I have come to you first, because of your well known."

"Skip all that. Come to business."

"Yes, sir. Briefly, Mr. Spoteash, I have hit upon an idea which, if carried into practical effect, will prevent trousers from bagging at the knees. It will absolutely and forever do away with the unsightly"

"Pshaw!"

"Hear me out, Mr. Spoteash. The great disfigurement of masculine attire today is baggy kneed trousers. Every tailor, every man of fashion, every person who has given the subject any thought whatever will tell you the same thing. Witnesses the efforts made by well dressed men to overcome this defect. Observe how carefully some of them pull up the garment at the knees when they sit down. See what pains others take to retain the fore and aft crease up and down the legs. Candidly, Mr. Spoteash, do you admire creased pants—I beg pardon—trousers?"

"Why?"

"Of course you do not. Four or five years ago a man with a pair of creased trousers would have been blackballed by any club and would have been steered into a back seat by the usher at any fashionable church as a second rate chap who wore hand-me-downs. How is it now? I know men personally, Mr. Spoteash, who make a practice of folding their trousers at night and placing them under their mattresses so that the crease shall be there in the morning. Others put ironing boards or long wire stiffeners inside the legs of the garment for the same purpose. But it doesn't work, sir. It is only a makeshift. It merely puts off the catastrophe. The baggy knee is inherent in the garment itself as now made. Mark me—I say as now made. My plan is to attack the evil in the beginning—to destroy the possibility of baggy knees by making the fabric of something that will not bag."

"That is simply preposter!"

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Spoteash. It seemed so to me at first. But nothing is impossible to a man of energy and resources. The idea occurred to me at first of fastening small elastic rubber bands or strips on the inner side of the knees, but I soon saw this would not do. Then I thought of the plan of weaving the rubber into the cloth itself, but this would be equally objectionable. It would make the cloth wrinkle unequally and look odd. Finally the idea struck me of having the fabric itself woven more tightly at the knee than anywhere else, so it could not give. You see the philosophy of the thing. There is more strain at the knee than any other portion of the garment. Make it absolutely unyielding at this point, and the question is solved. To do this of course will require special machinery applied to the looms now in use, and this is where the expense"

"But look here!"

"I know what you are thinking of now. You are wondering why the rest of the garment could not be shrunk in making, so it would expand more than the knees."

"I am not thinking of anything of the kind, sir. I have now given you five minutes of my time and I have no more to spare. Your invention or device, Mr."

"Ardup, sir—Orville Ardup."

"Is impossible, ridiculous, preposterous and there is no reason why this interview should be prolonged another minute. I have no money to invest in any crack brained, nonsensical schemes, sir."

"I had thought of suggesting $10,000," said the caller, "as a suitable amount to spend in experimenting, but I am willing to come right to bedrock. Will you lend me $1.75 on the idea?"

"I will not, sir."

"Say a quarter of a dollar."

"If you don't get out of here!"

"Shall we say fifteen cents?"

"James!"

"You needn't call anybody, sir," said the visitor, with offended dignity. "I scorn to debase myself by any further application. I shall not come down another cent. I am now going across the way."

He added, moving toward the door, "to lay a business proposition before the firm of Gettup & Howell, and when you see me again, sir, I shall probably be riding in a carriage with a pair of stumpy sailed roans in front and a side whiskered English coachman on the box."

With a look of imperial scorn he went out, slamming the door behind him.—Chicago Tribune.

Hon. W. M. Campbell returned to St. Paul this noon.

NYE'S HEN IDEAS

William Gives Some Valuable Directions and Learned Advice About the Festive Layer.

The Hens Differ From Human Beings In That They Have No Teeth.

This Brings Up the Dentist Industry—The Case of a Mad Hen.

[Copyright, 1892, by Edgar W. Nye.] There has recently been placed in my hands a volume entitled "Twenty-five Years in the Poultry Yard." I bought the book thinking that it was full of hairbreadth escapes and thrilling experiences. I was misled regarding the work, for I was led to believe that it was something like "Field, Dungeon and Escape," or "How I Put Down the Rebellion and Boarded Myself."

The book is extremely tame reading, though written in a neat and grammatical manner. "Twenty-five Years in a Poultry Yard" is no doubt a valuable work, but those who purchase it thinking that it resembles "Twenty Years in Congress" will shed many a bitter tear before they get through with it. Last evening I read aloud to my family and to a titled nobleman from Kinnick, Minn., who is visiting us this summer while waiting for an opening in Dr. Fletcher's tanyard at this place, a chapter on "Frosted Comb and Wattles," also one entitled "Inducements for a Hen to Sit." This part of the volume is of interest only to those who feel an interest in such things.

Mr. Howells would like the realism which the author introduces into the description of how to deal with a hen in trying to get her to sit and remain seated long enough to become a parent. The author states that a warm stove lid when shoved under the average hen will almost immediately induce her to sit down and take her things off.

To ascertain whether the hen really feels a tendency to sit, one should watch her closely, and especially observe her temperature. Induce the hen to take about eight inches of a physician's glass thermometer into her throat for two to five minutes. Do not say anything funny to her while thus arranged, for she might laugh and thus break the thermometer with her teeth.

Feel the pulse of the hen at the same time. If the pulse—which you will find just over the instep—is rapid or irregular, coupled with a leaden eye, coldness of the bridge of the nose, moth patches, together with acidity of the crop on rising in the morning, fretfulness, peevishness or sudden flashes of heat and cold, there is a tendency toward a sedentary life. Purchase a sitting of most any expensive eggs. The Indian Game I have found to be a good general purpose fowl, furnishing an afternoon's amusement on a rainy day and a chicken pie for dinner at the same price. The Indian Game at twelve weeks of age weighs three to four pounds, which is mostly breast and forearm. One gets good results in a short time, and unless rearing fowls for a boarding house the Indian Game, aside from being a fearless and brave fowl, is excellent for all around entertainment both before and after death.

Some like the Derbyshire Redcaps, some the Black Minorcas. Others like the Cochins, the Marshal Niel and the Early Rose, but the Indian Game, as I say, for a general purpose hen, seems "to meet my demands" as a quick grower, prompt and careful layer, a good mother and the nucleus of as fine a gravity as I ever laid a lip over. Her husband is a quiet but manly fowl, with shoulders well thrown back, dark, flashing eyes, is a good half back, and in death, with his broad, tender bosom padded with summer savory and a dash of onion, he makes those who cluster about him almost forget the sorrowful circumstances under which they are met together.

The hen of this species is also obliging and cheery in the matter of laying. While some hens hang back and require a good deal of coaxing, claiming that they have come away and forgotten their notes and that they did not expect to be called upon, the Indian Game hen cheerily asks what sort of an egg you want, and while you are getting your sherry ready she makes the arrangements for the egg.

Sherry and egg, or egg flip, may be made by a very slight effort, and either will be found nutritious to a remarkable degree. Physicians unite in the opinion that this wonderful co-operation—hen co-operation, as one may say of man and the hen—to make a soothing, nutritious and easily digested food for the invalid is one of the most wonderful of nature's great phenomena.

The hen differs from man largely in her failure to grow teeth. Man succeeds in raising from two to five crops of teeth by natural means, and Mr. Foster, a friend of mine who has dangled teeth all his life, tells me that in the realm of artificial teeth there are 1,800 different molds of teeth to fit and match the mouths of those who have outlived their original teeth. There are twenty-five standard shades of artificial teeth and 6,000 variations in constant use by the oldest and most reliable dental house in America.

This is a fact, and I have been to a good deal of trouble to look up this matter, as I know that even the most careless reader would like to know about it. Many of these shades are remembered by number by the trained salesman, but to remember the whole 6,000 would be out of the question.

It may be of interest also to know that these large tooth works at Philadelphia make a perfectly black tooth for use in those countries where the teeth are blackened by the people who regard themselves as the fine qua non of society. American people lead the world in the manufacture of teeth and supply every quarter of the globe with good dentistry. The success of our American dentists is in the months of the nobility of all nations. In Paris our American minister is brought into constant social contact with an American dentist from Michigan, and one minister resigned because this dentist played against one of his receptions in Paris with a musketeer of his own. In London, an American dentist was the only American guest at the marriage of the Duke of Fife and the granddaughter of the queen. His name was Dr. Evans, and he showed me the card of invitation one Sunday upon the Thames and afterward gave me a bite of the wedding cake. When I tell you that Minister Lincoln and I stood outside making a willow whistle in the churchyard and waiting for Dr. Evans to come out and give us points on the wedding, and when I tell you that Mr. Lincoln, Consul New and I, three men whose names are household words, stood at the gateway with our dinners in a large tin pail and saw Dr. Evans, our American dentist, coming out and leaning on the arm of the queen, even going so far as to upbraid her team from the fence and drive it around to the front door and help Victoria in, you will agree with me that the dentist of our own fair land is no slouch.

For certain Asiatic countries this big dental house makes a pure white tooth. This is really as odd looking as the black, for no human tooth is a pure white. It is as ghastly as a perfectly white skin. The factory makes one grade of blue white, or pearl white, in this country for use among the people who die their hair a dead black or wear fawn skin wigs. Elderly orphans wear these teeth, and smite them together while smiling on those they love. It is sad to see these frosted cake teeth nestling among the deep dyed whiskers of a decayed old bachelor or a new-made widow. These teeth are also used for gnashing purposes.

Teeth made recently are filled with gold in order to make them look more lifelike, and so artificial teeth can be made to fool the closest scrutinizer. A dentist does not listen very closely to what you say, but as you talk he watches very carefully to see what sort of teeth you wear, just as the bootblack keeps his eye all the time on the feet of the people who go by him.

Mr. Foster was very polite to me while I was in Atlanta and tendered me the hospitality of his horse. He has a horse that has outlived eleven grooms. He came very near outliving me.

The hen is a biped, indigenous to all temperate countries, and often tempts people who wish to make a livelihood without heavy work to go into the egg business. Also into the growth of broilers for the New York market. Do not try to raise eggs and broilers in a flat, for the other tenants might not like it. Hens need room. If you crowd your hens they will die off by the score.

This is my third effort in the direction of supplying the metropolitan market with eggs and broilers. Generally the metropolitan market is kind enough to supply me.

I need to have a very handsome henry and a small book regarding hen culture, and on a still day, after reading extensively from the old Greek poets, I might have been seen temporizing with a sorrel hen and trying to get her to try sedentary pursuits. In the fall had hatched, by means of my new incubator and the aid of friends, among them the teacher who boarded at our house, eighty-seven dear little downy chicks, at an expense of $193. I had just figured up the cost and assets when one of my incubators in the dead of night was knocked over by a colored man who had formerly been my butler and the henry set fire to. By this means I lost my entire seed.

CAME FOR A MUCH NEEDED REST. son's work and my buildings. What my ex-butler was doing around the incubator at the dead of night I do not know. He says that he came there to where he could pray by himself, but I do not believe it, and I find that there are many others in our country who hesitate also to accept this theory.

I had one hen that began to sit on a common humming bird that belonged to one of the boys, and other hens came and laid an egg a day for six weeks in the same nest, so that while the bald-faced hen was striving till she got purple in the face to hatch out a whole toy and notion store she got a large collection of eggs from other hens and all of different ages. The result was that ere long she began to turn out a chick per day for me to be a father to until I had eighty-three of them to bring up on the bottle, and she still struggling with the eggs which had been contributed by others.

She was mad! Reason had deserted its throne. She no longer recognized friends. The mental strain was too much for her. We bound her and took her away and put her in a cell with another hen who had hovered all summer over a hot croquet ball while eggs were $7½ cents per dozen, and there she shrieked the hours away.

The two lived on for a month or two, but after a short visit from a man who came to our house to obtain much needed rest in accordance with the advice of his physicians, it was noticed that they had gone somewhere, and the cook tells me that they figured on the menu one evening while he was here.

I noticed one evening that the table seemed to groan more than usual under its load of delicacies, and perhaps that was the time.

Bill Nye

Squaring Things.

Softly is so regarded of people's feelings that when in company he always ends his speeches about persons with, "present company excepted, of course."

The other night, while talking with Miss Becky Sharpe on the intellectual difference between men and women, he said:

"But, after all, I think women are superior to men intellectually—present company excepted, of course."

"Well, I don't know," said Miss Sharpe thoughtfully, "I've met some very intelligent men—present company excepted, of course."—New York Press.

Life.

After the dinner he looked at his wife, who glared back at him, but for once he made bold to say to his male guest:

"My dear fellow, suppose we go out on the roof for a smoke; you know, in these small flats there are no verandas."

When they arrived on the roof he turned, held up a warning finger and said:

"Shoo! Don't give me away, will you?"

"Why, what's up now?"

"I'm after information. Will you answer everything without equivocation?"

"Go ahead."

"Did you notice the bird in the cage?"

"I did."

"Did it appear happy?"

"It did. It had fresh cuttlefish and fresh water."

"Did you notice that the pet poodle had apparently been given fresh meat, and that there was no paper scattered around the floor?"

"That was about it."

"Did you notice that the children all had on shoes and stockings?"

"They did."

"That the hired girl had the soup-hot?"

"She did."

"That my wife addressed me as 'my dear Billie'?"

"She did, three times; and each time she smiled sweetly."

"And—that that once she said, 'Oh, you dear fellow, you are just too good for anything.'"

"She said that, too, and she coyly pulled your whiskers as she did so."

"Is it possible?"

"It is that."

"Well then I am lost for good. Excuse me, kind sir, while I shed a pearly tear."

"On my neck," said the other man, as they embraced in the moonlight.

"You understand, old fellow?" sobbed the first man as he clung tighter.

"I do that, yes, of course."

"And you won't leave me for a long time?"

"No, never, for I am a married man myself. I know the symptoms which have frightened you. But take my advice, old fellow. It is your only chance now."

"In heaven's name, tell me!"

"Sneak down stairs, crawl stealthily along the hall, then suddenly burst open your door, bound into the room, whom like a wild Indian, roar out for your hat and coat, bowl out something about off for the Black Hills and farewell forever; then, wildly dash down the fire escape and join me here on the corner. I will take care of you for the next two weeks."

"And in the meantime?"

"In the meantime, dear old chappie, she may have forgotten."—New York Recorder.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

The New Asylum Being Erected By Golden Gate Commandery in San Francisco.

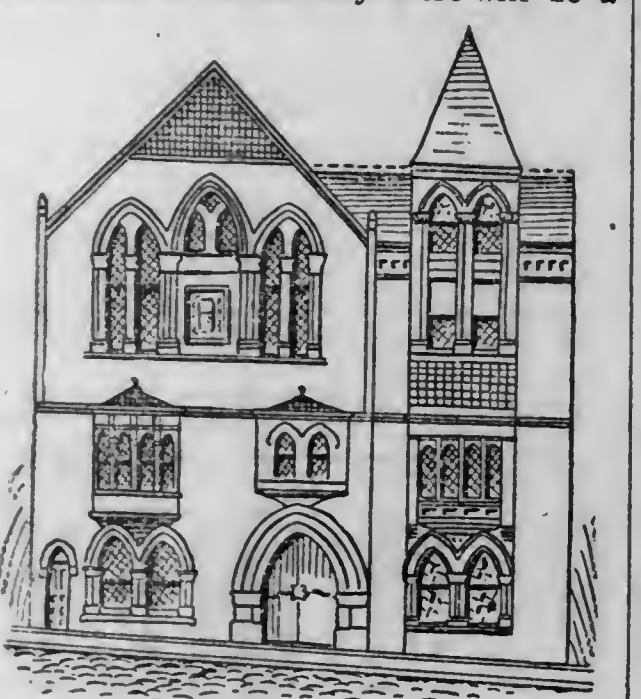

Growth of the Red Men in the State of Pennsylvania in Ten Years.

Splendid Showing By the Knights of Pythias in Wisconsin—Odd Fellows' Gossip.

The cornerstone of the new asylum of Golden Gate commandery, Knights Templars, of San Francisco, was recently laid with impressive ceremonies.

The ground floor story will be devoted to small lecture halls and a large assembly hall, while the two upper stories and the mansard story will be reserved exclusively for the members of Golden Gate commandery, No. 16.

The facade is to be of buff colored Roman brick, with stone and terra-cotta trimmings to match. The stained glass windows under the large gable will light the asylum, and those immediately beneath them will afford the necessary light to the commandery banquet hall. The main entrance, with heavy oaken doors, will be in the center of the building and is intended for public use, while the side entrance on the west will be used by Knights Templars only.

Stone steps will lead to the main entrance, and the hall, 15 feet wide by 35 feet 7 inches long, will be laid in fancy tiles. On the left of the hall is to be a ladies' assembly parlor. To the right is to be a similarly arranged parlor for gentlemen. At the end of the hallway there will be a large assembly hall, with a stage and dressing rooms across the south side. This public amusement place, which is to seat 1,000 people, will have a gallery around three sides and an open trussed roof.

On the second story, reached by a broad staircase in the rear of the small assembly room for gentlemen, there will be an armory on the east side with lockers and other conveniences for the knights. Two-thirds of the floor space will be required by the banquet hall, kitchens and pantry. The dining apartment will be handsomely fitted in hard wood. The public assembly hall on the ground floor will rise through two stories.

On the third floor the eastern portion is to be devoted to the commandery gymnasium, a fine apartment fitted with all the paraphernalia required by the order of Knights Templars. Gothic is to be the rigid rule of the interior fittings of the asylum. There will be an organ loft and other accessories. On the west of the hall a series of small parlors and dressing rooms will be arranged, and in this respect the building will be a model of what Templar requirements demand.

The finish throughout is to be natural woods, the heating will be by furnaces and the building is to be electrically wired for lighting purposes. A rough estimate of the cost is $400,000. The commandery will bear the entire outlay.

RED MEN.
Pennsylvania's Growth in Ten Years.

During ten years there have been 34,224 pale faces admitted in Pennsylvania; 1,914 members have died and 19,056 have been suspended for nonpayment of dues, as the following table will show:

Great Sun.	Adoptions.	Died.	Suspended.
201	2,726	155	1,127
202	2,015	123	1,198
203	3,179	143	1,485
204	2,107	171	1,385
205	2,415	129	1,364
206	3,211	105	1,736
207	3,440	104	1,832
208	3,853	227	2,157
209	4,534	265	2,569
210	5,284	258	2,961

The number of pale faces admitted during the above Great Sun is greater than the present membership of the order in the state.

The Wampum Belt makes the increase in membership in Massachusetts during the past three moons 636.

in securing new members are as follows: Texas has sent to the supreme reporter 140 applications during the past four weeks; New York in the same time, 61; Louisiana, 52; Indiana, 47; New Jersey, 31; Pennsylvania, 28, while Connecticut and Massachusetts sent 35 each.

Grand Protector Williams, of Massachusetts, is an active, painstaking and popular official.

The membership Jan. 1 was 71,325. There were 794 deaths last year.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

A Splendid Showing in Wisconsin—Helmet Gilt.

On Dec. 31 last there were 5,103 Knights of Pythias in Wisconsin. A year ago there were 4,311. Since Jan. 1 the additions received will make the net gain 900 or 1,000. Eleven new lodges were instituted during the year and 1 lodge reinstated, making at the present time 81 lodges in the state.

The order paid out last year $36,385. The receipts for the year were $37,934. The cash balance on hand is $12,081, and the amount invested is $34,017. During the last year the order paid out for sick benefits about $2,000; funeral expenses, $1,500; for other relief purposes to widows and orphans of deceased members, $1,000.

Texas will send 1,000 uniformed men to the encampment.

Nearly every lodge in the jurisdiction of Utah has sent the G. K. R. S. H. H. Geiger, a check for $10 for the Hines memorial.

A circular issued by H. O. Case, G. K. of R. and S., of Connecticut, shows the total membership in that state to be 4,800, with 48 lodges.

The Knights of Pythias rank third among the secret organizations of the world, enrolling nearly 400,000 men in its ranks. The convocation of the order is held in the even years. In the past it has assembled in Toronto, Cincinnati and Milwaukee, and this year it will meet in Kansas City, beginning Aug. 24. An organized and earnest effort will be made by the Washington knights to send delegates to the Kansas City convocation bearing arguments and inducements that will attract the convocation of 1894 to their city.

Every brigade in the Pythian army will be well represented at Kansas City.

The grand chancellor of Texas reports an increase of 2,500 members for the past term.

The latest reports show the membership of the uniform rank to be over 34,000.

A new Pythian hall is to be erected in St. Louis.

The largest division of the uniform rank in the world was recently instituted in St. Louis. The chapter list contained over 200 names, and James W. Cook was elected Sir Knight captain.

There will be 3,000 tents pitched for the accommodation of the Sir Knights at the coming encampment at Kansas City.

The increase in the membership of the order in the past year was 44,443.

Georgia has a membership of 3,955, a gain of 1,041 members during the year. The total loss for the year by suspensions, deaths and withdrawals was only 52.

Waterloo, Ia.'s New Twenty Thousand Dollar Hall—Gossip of the Order.

Waterloo, Ia., now has a new and complete Odd Fellows' hall, which cost the order about $30,000 furnished. The income from rents, with free use of the hall for the various branches of the order, is $1,625.

In Concord, N. H., the Odd Fellows have a mutual relief association, and its members pay each to any of its members taken sick 5 cents per week for a period of fifteen weeks. This, in addition to the benefit derived from the lodge, makes a fair amount of benefit.

The value of property of the lodges in Philadelphia amounts to $2,500,000. The debt is a little over $800,000.

The Odd Fellows of Toronto will soon have their new temple completed. It will have lodgerooms, business places and everything that modern taste and architecture can suggest in the way of elegance and comfort.

National lodge, No. 39, of New York, charges $300 initiation fee. It has less than 40 members. Though small in membership it is large in funds. Its bank account and other assets reach nearly $40,000.

The Pennsylvania Odd Fellows' home project is being pushed vigorously.

A St. Louis paper stated that at a meeting of archbishops it was decided that Odd Fellows could be admitted to the sacraments of the Catholic church. This has brought forth a positive denial from one of the attending bishops, who pronounces the statement false in all particulars.

Bro. Samuel Berry recently celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as a member of Wayne lodge, of Philadelphia.

A lady seventy-two years of age was one of the fifty candidates who received the Rebekah degree in Crescent Rebekah lodge in Sunapee, N. H., on the night of its institution.

St. Louis has one lodge with $100,000 in its treasury.

Idaho is to have an Odd Fellows' home. The ground selected covers 300 acres.

The Way the Brethren Unite to Appose Distress—Notes.

Newton lodge, of Kansas, conferred the junior degree on a candidate, who, while on his way to receive the workman degree was killed in a railway accident. By permission of grand lodge a subscription list was opened and $1,416.90 soon realized—Bro. Riddle, of The Workman, heading it with $100.

Total deaths in the Illinois jurisdiction since its formation up to Jan. 1 last, was 1,743, on which $3,492,073.49 were paid to beneficiaries.

Death rate in the A. O. U. W. for the year 1891, as shown by the monthly reports, 9.37 to a thousand, and assessment rate of $8.59 for each $1,000 protection.

There are 25,000 members of the order in Missouri.

The official report of the supreme recorder shows a membership of 279,694 in good standing on March 1, the distribution to the widows and orphans of deceased members during February of $363,321.90, during the past twelve months of $5,355,867.22 and since the organization of the order of $39,467,528.87.

Montana had one assessment for March. Four hundred and ninety-four new members were gained last year, and in February 102 new certificates issued.

Dr. Speer & Co., West Superior, Wis. Gentlemen—According to the promise I gave I forward you a testimonial of the troubles I had.

I, George H. Thompson, make the following statement regarding the skill of Dr. Speer & Co., whose marvelous cures have won them a high reputation as successful physicians:

To whom it may concern: For a long time I had been a constant sufferer from catarrh of the bladder, accompanied by pains in the back, loss of flesh and, what is worse, that feeling of lassitude which overcomes sufferers from this disease, rendering them wholly unfit for work and making life a complete burden. I treated with several different physicians without obtaining any relief, and had almost abandoned hope, when I was prompted to seek the advice of a specialist. Accordingly, in June last, I consulted Dr. Speer & Co., placed myself in their care and now am happy to say that I am completely cured, thanks to their skillful treatment. Any further information will be gladly furnished to all who may feel interested.

CUT DOWN YOUR SHOE BILL

Attention, Mothers and Fathers! Why not have your Shoes and Kid Gloves as well as those of your Children looking like new continually? Why have them looking worn and rough when you can avoid it? To do this you have only to oil them once a month with Tanner's Oil. Tanner's Oil does not injure but benefits the leather. It is now prepared by us for families. It prevents leather getting hard and from cracking, keeps it looking fresh and smooth, makes it soft and pliable and absolutely water-proof. Best of all—Shoes and Gloves kept thus in good condition will outwear three pair worn ordinarily. One box should last a family of three one year. On ladies' and children's wear you should use it instead of Blacking. Gentlemen can shine their shoes after using it equally as well as before. All we desire is to have you give it a trial. Shoe Dealers, Glovers, and those Dry Goods merchants who sell Kid Gloves should have it on hand to furnish up their stock that has become shopworn. It will give it an absolutely new appearance. Your youngest apprentice can apply it. Price by mail 40 cents. Special price to Dealers.

A CENSUS OF LOVE

Mrs. Frank Leslie Suggests a Catholism In Regard to Matrimonial Proposals.

Every Woman Has, It Is Claimed, Received at Least One Offer of Marriage.

Manual For Proposals Which Would Without Doubt Fill a Long Felt Want.

IT is often said, truly or not, that every woman has, in the course of her life, received at least one offer of marriage, and like a good many other questionable statements this one is often accepted as truth because of its frequent assertion. But is it true, and how or where to determine whether it is true or not? Suppose we petition the legislature for a law compelling every woman to veraciously answer some such catechism as this:

1. Did you ever have an offer of marriage?
2. What was the form and mode in which it was made?
3. Did you refuse or accept?
4. Why?

Really it does not seem to me more important to ask such questions than those which men with books and pencils and an abrupt manner are legally empowered to ask all the time from house to house. In the time of the war they asked every housekeeper how many spoons and forks she had, and how much they weighed. I have myself been obliged to declare the value of my personal jewelry and ornaments, not to mention pertinent questions of custom house officers. So really it would be nothing more personal to ask the four little questions I have suggested, and only think what a fund of useful and entertaining history would thus be opened up; also what valuable hints to men, maids and widows upon the best and most effective mode of conducting their little operations.

If these reports could be printed and put into general circulation, do but fancy the revolution that would take place founded upon positive data instead of vague theory. A man about to propose goes to the city or town library and asks for the last edition of "Offers of Marriage" for New York state or Maine or California or Wisconsin, as the case may be. There it stands, alongside of the directory, the census report, the "Solid Men of Gotham," and the other works for which people pay so much money in order that they may gain a little knowledge of their neighbor's affairs, and our lover or suitor sits down to his morning's labor. After reading some three or four hundred cases, with especial reference to queries two and four, he turns to the tabulated totals at the end of the book and deeply meditates over the style of proposal most often successful, and the reasons why certain other styles did not succeed.

Two hundred and sixty-four thousand men were refused between the months of January and December, 1891. Of these seventy-eight used an identical form in making their offer; in fact, so identical a form as to suggest that it was taken out of some manual like—

"Courtship Made Easy."
"How to Woo a Widow."
"Forty Methods of Popping the Question."

"Nothing Venture, Nothing Have," or "The Handbook of Courtship." Of course the student makes a memorandum, mental or in his notebook, that he will on no account go about his errand in that style. Then he studies the successful cases, but here he finds a bewildering variety, and selecting a few specimens he turns to the cases referred to, as, for instance, when among the successful offers he reads:

"Put it on if you want it," and turning to the case reads:
"Mary Jones, born Mary Smith, states that she has only received one offer of marriage. This was from Samuel Jones, who calling upon her one evening, took a ring—gold band set with three imitation pearls—out of his waistcoat pocket and showing it to her said: 'See here, this is an engagement ring.' Deponent replied: 'Well, what of it?'"

"Whereupon Jones handed it to her, saying, 'Put it on if you want it,' which was, as she considers, his offer. She accepted because she wanted to marry somebody, and liked him as well as anybody else."

Finding this form a little crude our student reads the next report, which runs thus:
"Birdie Bowers, born Birdie Lovering, states that she has received 'forty-seven' offers, and would repeat as many of them as the auditor cared to hear, but that to-day, as she calls her husband, only said:

"Itty Birdie want to be Toffy's ownie Birdie? Div him twenty twenty tins, den."

"She accepted him because he was the funniest old darling she ever saw, and she loves him dearly."

"That's a little too soft for me," comments the student, and tries another.
"Kate March, born Kate Burr, says she will go to prison for contempt of court or pay a fine or anything else she could have power to inflict, but as for going back on the men she has refused, she won't do it. The only offer she ever accepted was Tom March's, and the way he made it was in driving, when he said:

"Don't you think, Kate, you and I might drive pleasantly in double harness?" to which she replied:

"I dare say, if you didn't undertake to make it a tandem team, with your own horse on the lead." And they were engaged. She accepted him because she liked him."

"Too horsey for me," remarks the student, and tries another.
"Angela Loftus, born Angela Airey, says she had two offers. The first was from Tom March, who said, when she had been singing 'Swing Low, Sweet Chariot,' to him one Sunday evening:

"Say, Angie, let me drive that sweet chariot, and you go passenger?" Angie thought this irreverent and said no, but she did not suppose she was going to drive the poor man to despair and make him marry Kate Burr, as he did, in three weeks. As for Mr. Loftus, he was her clergyman, and when she knew that Tom was engaged she felt so sorry and afraid that she had done wrong that she went to her clergy about it, and he took her by the hand and said:

"Angela, you are worthy of a higher destiny than to marry Tom March. Be the partner of my soul, Angela."

"And she said she would, because she thought it right to do as her minister said."

Next comes—
"Elizabeth B. Bullion, born Elizabeth Tattersall. Had no other real offer except her husband's, but was expecting every day that Arthur Montague, a gentleman on the stage, would offer himself. One day, however, Mr. Bullion called to see her and said:

"I have come on the 8:30 train and ought to return by the noon train to take up a note for $10,000 which otherwise will go to protest. I have left myself just an hour and a half in which to become engaged to you, and I have brought this ring on approbation. It is worth as much as the note, and if it is not returned to the jeweler today he will not take it. Now it remains with you to lose me $20,000 or to save it, for I shall take the noon train unless I leave the ring on your engagement finger."

"Of course," pursues Mrs. Bullion, "I didn't want to make the man lose $20,000, so I slipped the ring on my finger and he went back on the noon train."

Pursuing his researches our student finds that one gentleman remarked that he had for a long time felt himself to be a stray half of a pair of scissors, but recognized the lady addressed as the other half.

Another suitor invited his chosen one to drive, and asked her if she had any prejudice against fried onions, and upon her assuring him that she had not, he confessed that his favorite dish was beefsteak smothered in onions and wound up by saying:

"And if you'll see that I get five mornings in the week for breakfast at sharp, we'll buy a barrel of onions tomorrow."

Seventeen widowers, in slightly varying forms, are found to base their offer upon the need of some one to look after their "motherless little ones" all seventeen used that exact phrase, and I have noticed that widowers usually do. Also, I have occasionally wondered whether "motherless little ones" is considered so "fete-chic" while "motherless young ones" would be quite the contrary.

Two doctors confessed that they would get more and better practice as married than as single men, while one clergyman who had cherished thoughts of celibacy makes the startling announcement that "the world, the flesh and the devil have conquered my better nature and you must become my wife."

It is pleasant to note that the young lady responded that she did not wish to go into the firm whose style he had quoted, and should by no manner of means become his wife. Shortly after, the same sensible girl received an offer from a young man who told her that she showed herself so good a daughter that he was sure she would be a good wife, and wanted her for his wife. Him she accepted because she thought he would make such a good son-in-law.

It is recorded of one couple, that having gone with a party from one city to another to pass an evening at the theater, they lost the last train home and were obliged to spend the night at a hotel. There being no married lady in the party it was proposed that one of the girls should get married, and so materialize the rest; lots were drawn to decide which of the young men should become a benedict, and he who drew the longest straw stepped up to a girl he had been introduced to some three weeks before, and said:

"You and I might as well be the victims, Sally."

Sally assented, a justice of the peace tied the knot between two sleepy yawns and Sally matrimonized the party.

If you think that story too extravagant I will assure you that Sally told it to me herself, and added that "her folks were real provoked" about it, and she rather thought Jim and she would go through the court and make another start, for he hadn't any way to support her and had a real ugly temper.

Closing our big blue book, we look into our own experiences, we women, and mentally smile as we rehearse the forms and methods in which men have made known to us the fact that they wished to marry us, for I take it for granted that most of us have received at least that "one offer," whether we accepted it or not.

My own impression is that the most effective offers are the most unrepeatable, consisting more of looks, half sentences, significant pauses, a timely gesture, a half suppliant, half peremptory caress, which if accepted seals the bargain, and if rejected carries with it a rejection in toto.

Of course most American women have heard more domestic than foreign offers of marriage, and certainly men's manners differ as much in this as in any other national custom. The American and the Englishman sincerely respect woman. They perceive that her mental and moral powers, if not identical with their own, are quite as important to the common weal; they consider that in offering marriage they ask for fellowship and intelligent sympathy, and an added strength and power in their lives; while the Continental, the Italian, the Frenchman or Spaniard prostrates himself in extravagant homage at the feet of the woman he would win, and when once she is won treats her as a toy, a slave or an irresponsible child, to be petted, governed and suspiciously watched, but never trusted with affairs of importance.

In such a state of society it is doubtless better that marriages should be arranged between the parents or guardians of the contracting parties than between themselves. A girl brought up in such an atmosphere is, I dare say, really incapable of deciding upon the true merits of a suitor, and a man trained under such conditions would never know how to make a really manly, self respecting and respectful offer of his true and whole life to a woman whom he would not consider capable of appreciating it.

If the English language is not the language of love, it has certainly proved itself the language in which the best offers of marriage can be made.

MRS. FRANK LESLIE.

PARIS FASHIONS.

A New Reign of Modified Directoire Styles Presided.

I think it is certain now that we are to have a new reign of the Directoire styles, but they will be modified to a certain extent and the chief Directoire effect will consist in the ruffs at the sleeves, the fichus, the revers and the hats and that general ensemble that is indefinable and yet is unmistakable.

The races always call forth that which shall reign in general, and two of the present leaders of Paris fashions were toilets that were the envy of all beholders, and since then Directoire has fairly bristled everywhere.

NEW DIRECTOIRE TOILETS.

One of the toilets was of reseda faille, cut en fourreau form in the skirt, which had a rose plaiting of the same around the bottom only one inch wide. The corsage was a marvel. It was a Spencer waist with a metal belt studded with large imitation rubies and emeralds. There was a figaro jacket braided solidly with gold, and from this laid back wide white satin revers and these edged with white Van Dyke lace worked in with silver thread and a ribbon was laid flat on them worked with silver. At the neck the bengaline spencer was drawn in a puffed ruff. The forearms of the sleeves were of white silk embroidered with silver. A white silk and chiffon parasol, the chiffon edged with silver, and a beige straw hat completed this ravishing toilet. What is Directoire about it? Why, the revers.

The other was of Nile green bengaline and striped silk, trimmed down the front with a narrow edge of black silk grolots and with a mull fichu, with a full ruff of embroidery. The belt and accessories were of moss green velvet; and the Directoire hats? The fichu, of course, and the ruffles at the wrist.

Today I was told by a leading modiste that the present prospect for fall silk is for the richest brocades that can be woven, and those with even more pronounced chameleon effect than ever. And I heard, too, that dress velvets will be made with a sort of twist beneath the pile which will show iridescent effects as we lights change. Terry velvet, with very heavy cord, will be presented in cloakings and for combinations and trains. It will be in all evening shades and pure white. This will be much liked for bridal costumes, as it is incomparably rich.

A Rope Duster.

To make a rather stiff duster suitable for use in the corners of upholstered furniture, or on woolen table and piano covers, get three pieces of fine rope, cut three quarters of a yard long. Braid them very tightly in the middle, leaving a few inches unbraided at each end. Fold the braided part together, forming a stiff loop, the handle of the duster, and tie the ends of the rope with twine. They will remain wavy and grow soft and pliable with use.

The duster is finished with a bow of yellow ribbon, tied around where the twine is wound. This makes a pretty duster to keep in sight in sitting room, hall or chambers.

ROUTING IN A ROOM.

WAR TO THE END.

The Blaine and Harrison Forces Are Determined to Fight to the Finish.

Friends of the Man From Maine Think They Can Stampede the Convention.

Harrison Men Confident That the Hurrah Plan Will Not Move the Delegates.

Fassett and Gen. Horace Porter Will Fight for the Temporary Chairmanship.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—Will the Republican convention be simply a ratification meeting or a long drawn bitter contest? Can the president develop sufficient additional strength within the next two days to ensure his nomination on an early ballot, if not on the first, or can the man from Maine attack the enemy and rout it in the preliminary skirmish? These are the questions that are being asked on the eve of the great convention and they are being answered according to the particular predilections of the delegates or visitors.

It was noticeable this morning that the friends of the administration seemed considerably more serene and confident than they did yesterday, although they profess that their mood has not changed a whit and that it is the other people and not themselves that are worried. Nevertheless some of those who on Saturday and yesterday were expressing the view that it was going to be a bitter fight and that, in their private judgment, the president was as strong as some of his managers believed, were free to say this morning that a later view of the situation hardly justified their previous doubts and fears and that they were now satisfied that calculating what it is certainly expected to accomplish between now and Thursday morning there was no need of any alarm on the part of the president's friends either here or elsewhere.

Very much the same tenor was the talk at the various places where the Blaine boom has a habitation. The cause of the ex-secretaire, it was declared, was stronger this morning than on Saturday night although no figures would be given. The Blaine people have a roster of the delegates with the way that each man is expected to vote on the first ballot and a second roster showing how the Harrison adherents, many of them at least, would be certain to turn when the proper time comes. They were not making the document public property for the other side, however. It was freely charged that the Harrison element was making many statements that were not founded on fact and laying claims that would certainly fail to be verified. The statement of Harrisonians, for instance, that they have been visited by several members of the Michigan delegation who had voluntarily promised to support the president's renomination, although counted as for Blaine, was pronounced a yarn out of the whole cloth and the methods of Depeew, New, Michigan and the others simply a gigantic game of bluff.

Notwithstanding their protestations of absolute confidence, however, the Blaineites started in this morning to make Rome howl, and the proposition to keep up the noise until the balloting is reached. It is to be Blaine or nothing, but Blaine so far as brass bands and badges and pictures and all other outside paraphernalia of a political campaign is concerned. The idea is to impress the strangers from all parts of the country, who are already here or will come in today or tomorrow, with the idea that nobody but Blaine is being thought of or talked about. The badges, pictures, music, etc., can be had for the asking, "without money and without price." Blaine clubs from a number of points in Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin and other states will bring reinforcements to a total of several thousand shouters during the day, and every man will be expected to use his lungs for all they are worth.

In one of the big buildings of the city there are stored away 500,000 plumes, as many showy uniforms, several wagon loads of flags and banners and pictures of Blaine and the outfit for a band of sixty pieces. This afternoon according to present plans this stock in trade is to be turned loose on the streets for the benefit of the citizens and visitors already on the ground and of new arrivals. The whole aim and idea is to have such a gigantic howl, such an internal din and racket and to keep it up so long as to make people believe even against their own will and sober thought that no such man as Benjamin Harrison is being thought of or talked of and that James G. Blaine has everything about his own way. If it is possible to accomplish a stampede by this kind of campaigning the stampede is going to come.

But the president's advisers in the present crisis say they are preparing for any emergency of this kind. There can be any stampede in the convention. Presidents are not nominated nowadays by the clamor of a disorganized mob and the bluster of a few would-be leaders. It is either possible or probable that such methods can prevail against the personal influence or the wise and prudent counsel of such men as Depeew, Mason and New, who have guided the party to success through many a storm. Hence they say nobody will be either scared or deceived, no matter how great the din or appalling the noise.

Will Stay to the Finish.
WASHINGTON, June 6.—It is authoritatively denied here that the president has telegraphed Senator Cullom or anyone else to withdraw his name unless he was nominated on the first ballot. The president will be "in it" to the finish.

MORE BLAINE FORCES.

Arrival of Two Hundred Young Republicans From Ohio.
MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—The Blaine forces were re-inforced at noon by the arrival of a large contingent from Cincinnati, headed by the Young Men's Blaine club of that city, two hundred strong, tall fine looking men in black suits, white hats and carrying red, white and blue umbrellas which attracted a great deal of attention. All of them wore a round badge nearly the size of a breast plate and bearing an excellent picture of Blaine. A big crowd representing a half dozen states was at the depot to meet them. Ex-Governor Foraker, who was also on hand and rode in a carriage between the ranks, was given an ovation all along the route, being greeted several times with cries of "Our Next Vice President," in response to which he smiled and shook his head. When the club filed into the West rounda three cheers for Blaine were called for and given twice over.

Somebody called for cheers for the president and the response was equally hearty and with a picture of the president attached to the stars and stripes waved over the heads of the Blaine men the uproar was something frightful. Foraker was called for and made a brief address in which he said if Harrison was the nominee the young Republicans of Ohio would give him their hearty support, for they had never yet sulked or carried a razor. On the other hand if the nomination fell to the people's choice, the Republicans of Ohio would outdo themselves. (Great applause.)

Other arrivals of the morning included the Maryland Republican club, who came in shouting for Harrison and a large delegation from Iowa, also equally divided in sentiment between the president and Blaine. There was a scene of great enthusiasm.

A DRAMATIC EPISODE.

Harrisonians Enraged at the Action of a Blaine Indianaan.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—One of the most dramatic and sensational episodes of the gathering of the clans that have yet occurred took place this morning. It was precipitated by the arrival of an anti-Harrison Indiana delegation from Fort Wayne, headed by R. G. McDonald, a wealthy politician of that city who opposed Harrison four years ago on account of some personal grievances. McDonald came in this morning at the head of the "Indiana Blaine club" which he had brought on a special train at his own expense. They bore aloft a picture of the man from Maine.

On their arrival at the West McDonald himself proceeded to hang the picture alongside the Harrison pictures outside the Indiana headquarters. This bold defiance exasperated the Harrisonians beyond measure.

Rhody Shiel shouted to somebody to "cut the rag down." Others urged that McDonald and his people be thrown out and were dared to make the first move in that direction. Half a dozen people made a dash for the banner, but at a moment it was placed in the hands of a little girl who was hoisted over the heads of the crowd and so it kept out of reach. The Fort Wayne contingent had by this time received reinforcements and hustling Shiel into a corner they shook their fists in his face and threatened him with personal violence. The Harrison people realizing that a big mistake had been made raised shouts of "peace." But the blood of the anti was up and they refused to be mollified, declaring in language loud and strong that it was now war to the knife.

Finally the banner was hung up in triumph over the headquarters of the Harrisonians within sight of the regular Indiana room and full length lithographs of the man from Maine were hung up, wherever a picture of Harrison could be found.

CLARKSON AGAIN CHOSEN.

Iowa Delegates Re-elect Him to the National Committee.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—The Iowa delegation has unanimously re-elected Mr. Clarkson a member of the national committee for the state. E. E. Max of Storm Lake was selected as chairman of the delegation.

Already the fight for tickets to the convention has begun and there is a great deal of bitterness among local people about the distribution of these favors. There are claims that tickets have been sold.

The bad blood between the sister cities is beginning to show. The Minneapolis papers claim that emissaries from St. Paul are meeting the arriving trains and representing to travellers that they better stop at St. Paul as Minneapolis cannot accommodate the crowd. They also claim that trains are being held in St. Paul fifteen minutes or more without reason.

The fight in the Minnesota delegation over the position of national committeemen between Hon. R. G. Evans of Minneapolis and Judge Stanford Newell of St. Paul, is animated but good natured. It will be settled this evening.

The Massachusetts delegates elected W. W. Crapo chairman and Murray Crane member of the national committee. Oregon delegates chose C. W. Fulton as chairman. Joseph Simon was elected national committeeman.

The caucus of the Illinois delegation selected ex-Congressman Joseph P. Cannon as its member of the committee on resolutions; J. C. Kilgeway on that of permanent organization. The delegates will take an informal ballot on president tomorrow morning.

Rusk Not a Candidate.
WASHINGTON, June 6.—In regard to the published statement that an effort had been made to induce Secretary Rusk to accept second place on the presidential ticket, he gave the following explanatory card to the press today: "There is no truth in the statement whatever. My name cannot be used either singly or in combination against the president, and no friend of mine will suggest such use."

Additional dispatches on pages four, five and eight.

ELOQUENT GIANTS.

Noted Speeches Delivered by the Leading Orators of the Republican Party.

The Glorious Old Days of Joint Debates When Lincoln and Douglas Spoke.

Occasions When Injudicious Speeches
Have Caused the Abandonment of Well Laid Plans.

The success or failure of the various candidates at the coming national nominating conventions will depend in large degree upon the eloquence of the gentlemen who present their names for consideration, yet it must be admitted at the start that since 1876 the most magnificent oratorical efforts have been made on behalf of those who failed to secure the banner of party leadership. Ingersoll in 1876 and Frye in 1880 championed Blaine, and in the latter year Roscoe Conkling battled for Grant while Garfield upheld the cause and claims to advancement of Senator John Sherman.

On the other hand, there have been numerous occasions when injudicious speeches have knocked the foundations from beneath carefully arranged programs and impelled the delegates almost to tumble over each other in their eagerness to abandon a plan to which the night before they had sworn eternal fidelity. Everybody familiar with American politics knows the effect produced on the chances of a certain aspirant when one of his ardent supporters from Texas cried out, "What are we here for if not for the offices?" And again, the consequences of Dr. Berchard's "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" are matters of permanent history.

These are but two among the many blunders of public speaking. Tom Corwin made a famous one when opposing the declaration of war against Mexico, and Tom Marshall absolutely fled rather than reply to the fierce invective showered upon him by "Harry of the West."

But to the self poised, thoroughly informed and earnest orator there come triumphs which for the moment are greater than any achieved by the monarch whose power is absolute for life or death, or by the warrior who rides victorious over a field red with the blood of slaughtered foes. The true orator is the master of something more than mere existence. He sways the minds and impulses of his hearers. He is the ruler of their hearts and intellects. Like Antony he can tear down a conspiracy at the moment of its culmination, or like Luther he can compel the world to accept a new creed.

I was a mere lad when, for the first and last time, I saw Stephen A. Douglas. He was then making his famous campaign against Abraham Lincoln, and the speech I heard was delivered at Chicago in the presence of at least 15,000 people. The orator threw his head back, inflated his mighty lungs to their full capacity and talked slowly. As a consequence, every word reached the ears of the most distant listener in solemn, stately cadence, forceful with dignity and power. Then followed the immortal "Rail Splitter," a contrast in every way to the "Little Giant." His tall, ungainly form, his mournful face and cavernous eyes attracted attention where the solid frame and Roman massiveness of his competitor had demanded deference. Douglas' voice had roared forth like the boom of minute guns; that of Lincoln seemed as mellow as the sweet and silvery tones of a bugle call, and each in turn moved the vast audience by the magic of his genius.

Those were the glorious old days of "joint debates" in the west, and I remember with even more distinctness than the Lincoln-Douglas controversy, the verbal duel waged in the campaign of 1864 by John A. Logan and T. Lyle Dickey. The former was fresh from the scene of war, with all the glories of a victorious general clustered about his brow. "The slogan of the iron hearted Logan" had sounded on many a stricken field, and the Republicans of Illinois swore by him then, as they continued to do until the hour of his lamented death. He spoke as he had fought. He regarded grammatical rules as little as he had previously revered the book of tactics, but he had won on the battlefield and he won on the stump, for he hit straight from the shoulder, and his tremendous earnestness overcame all opposition. Yet it was restful and charming, though not convincing, after one of "Black Jack's" sledge hammer speeches to drink in the graceful, scholarly and often sarcastic remarks of Dickey. He wielded the delicate but piercing blade of Saladin, while Logan's weapon was the big two handed sword of Richard the Lion Hearted.

However, the political speeches that are to live in the history of the Republican party were yet to be delivered, and as I have before noted they have been made on behalf of the vanquished and not of the victors. Who that witnessed it can ever forget the electric enthusiasm produced by Ingersoll's advocacy of Blaine at the Cincinnati convention of 1876? "Who," asked some one near the reporters' table, "is that Illinois man, Ingersoll?" A Chicago scribe answered, "He's a Peoria lawyer who doesn't believe in God and who can talk like an angel." "Gosh!" was all the comment made by this unknown victim to the power of eloquence.

Again a Republican nominating convention, and again a struggle of giants:

time, 1880; place, Chicago. So vividly is it impressed on my memory that I can close my eyes and see it all once more. Up the aisle strides Roscoe Conkling, tawny mated as a lion, lustreous eyed as a tiger, as determined to win as a bulldog, and yet suavely courteous in that haughty way which seemed part and parcel of his splendid physique and masterful intellect. Then the speech and the fight of the 306, as stubborn as any of the contests Grant's soldiers waged for him in the Wilderness. I can also see Garfield enjoining Sherman and pleading with the delegates to "hear him for his cause." Later on, the climax and the tragedy. State flags waving over the head of the chosen man from the Western Reserve; election, inauguration, Guitau, Elboron, the tomb.

"Although I listened to Lockwood's speech nominating Cleveland in 1884, and to the eloquence poured out on behalf of the various candidates at the Republican convention of 1888, I shall always recall most vividly that great political battle of 1880 when Ulysses S. Grant first suffered defeat in peace or war."

Viewed from nearly any standpoint, one who studies the subject must arrive at the conclusion that oratory is a product of the American soil; men seem to spring full armed with eloquence from the earth like the fabled warriors of old. And the long speeches are not what survive. The heart of the patriot thrills rather at the repetition of some sentence that stands for courage, loyalty or high purpose. Hence we love to apply the old school statesman's term to the state and stripes and refer to our banner as "Old Glory;" to remember that Dix said, "If any man attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot;" to cherish Lincoln's assertion that this is "a government of the people, by the people and for the people," and to keep in mind Garfield's famous utterance when Booth's bullet had done its work, "God reigns and the government at Washington still lives!"

FRED C. DAYTON.

CONKLING'S GREAT EFFORT.

His Speech Nominating Grant at Chicago in 1860.

And when asked what state he hailed from, Our sole reply shall be, He hails from Appomattox.

And the famous apple tree, Obeying instructions I should never dare to disregard, I rise in behalf of the state of New York to propose a nomination with which the country and the Republican party can grandly win. The election before us will be the Austere of American politics. It will decide whether for years to come the country will be "Republican or Cossack." The need of the hour is a candidate who can carry doubtful states, north and south; and believing that he more surely than any other can carry New York against any opponent, and carry not only the north, but several states of the south, New York is for Ulysses S. Grant.

He alone of living Republicans has carried New York as a presidential candidate. Once he carried it even according to a Democratic count, and twice he carried it by the people's vote, and he is stronger now. The Republican party, with its standard in his hand, is stronger now than in 1868 or 1872. Never defeated in war or in peace, his name is the most illustrious borne by any living man; his services attest his greatness, and the country knows them by heart. His fame was born not alone of things written and said, but of the arduous greatness of things done, and dangers and emergencies will search in vain in the future, as they have searched in vain in the past, for any other on whom the nation leans with such confidence and trust. Standing on the highest eminence of man distinction, and having filled all lands with his renown—modest, firm, simple and self poised—he has seen not only the titled but the poor and the lowly in the utmost ends of the world rise and uncover before him. He has studied the needs and defects of many systems of government, and he comes back a better American than ever, with a wealth of knowledge and experience added to the keen common sense which so conspicuously distinguished him in all the fiercest light that beat upon him throughout the most eventful, trying and perilous sixteen years of the nation's history.

Never having had "a policy to enforce against the will of the people," he never betrayed a cause or a friend, and the people will never betray or desert him. Vilified and reviled, truthfully aspersed by numberless presses, not in other lands, but in his own, the assaults upon him have strengthened and seasoned his hold upon the public heart. The ammunition of calumny has all been expended; its force is spent, and General Grant's name will glitter as a bright and imperishable star in the diadem of the republic when those who have tried to tarnish it will have moldered in forgotten graves and their memories and epithets have vanished utterly.

Never elated by success, never depressed by adversity, he has ever in peace, as in war, shown the very genius of common sense. The terms he prescribed for Lee's surrender foreshadowed the wisest principles and prophecies of true reconstruction.

Victor in the greatest of modern wars, he quickly signaled his aversion to war and his love of peace by an arbitration of international disputes which stands as the wisest and most majestic example of its kind in the world's diplomacy. When inflation, at the height of its popularity and frenzy, had swept both houses of congress, it was the veto of Grant which, single and alone, overthrew expansion and cleared the way for specie resumption. To him, immeasurably more than to any other man, is due the fact that every paper dollar is as good as gold.

With him as our leader we shall have no defensive campaign, no apologies or explanations to make. The shafts and arrows have all been aimed at him and he broken and harmless at his feet. Life, liberty and property will find safeguard in him. When he said of the black man in Florida, "Wherever I am they may come also," he meant that, had he the power to help it, the poor dwellers in the cabins of the south should not be driven from the homes of their childhood and the graves of their fathers. When he refused to receive, Denis Kearney he meant that lawlessness and communism, although it should dictate laws to a whole city, would everywhere meet a foe in him, and, popular or unpopular, he will how to the line of right, let the chips fly where they may.

His integrity, his common sense, his courage and his unequalled experience are the qualities offered to his country. The only argument against accepting them would amaze Solomon. He thought there could be nothing new under the sun. Having tried Grant twice and found him faithful, we are told we must not, even after an interval of years, trust him again.

What justification does not such a fallacy involve? The American people exclude Jefferson Davis from public trust. Why? Because he was the apostle of treason and would be destroyed. And now the same people are asked to ostracize Grant and not trust him. Why? Because he was the arch preserver of the country; because, not only in war, but afterward, twice as a civic magistrate, he gave his highest, noblest efforts to the republic. Is such absurdity an electioneering jugglery or hypocrisy's masquerade?

There is no field of human activity, responsibility or reason in which national beings object to Grant because he has been weighed in the balance and not found wanting, and because he has had unequalled experience, making him exceptionally competent and fit. From the man who shoes your horse to the lawyer who pleads your case, the officers who manage your railway, the doctor who heals you, the minister who gives you life, the minister who seeks to save your souls, who now do you reject because you have tried him and by his works have known him? What makes the presidential office an exception to all things else in the common sense to be applied to selecting its incumbent? Who dares to put fetters on the free choice and judgment which is the birthright of the American people?

Can it be said that Grant has used official power to perpetuate his plan? He has no place. No official power has been used for him. Without patronage or power, without telegraph wires running from his house to the convention, without electioneering contrivances, without effort on his part, his name is on his country's lips, and he is struck at by the whole Democratic party because his nomination will be the deathblow to Democratic success. He is struck at by others who find offense and disqualification in the very experience he has gained. Show me a better man. Name one and I am answered. But do not point as a disqualification to the very facts which make this man fit beyond all others. Let not experience disqualify or excellence impeach him.

There is no third term in the case, and the pretense will die with the political dog days which engendered it. Nobody is really worried about a third term except those hopelessly longing for a first without bureau, committee, officials or emissaries to manufacture sentiment in his favor, without intrigue or effort on his part, Grant is the candidate whose supporters have never threatened to bolt. As they say, he is a Republican who never wavers. He and his friends stood by the creed and the candidates of the Republican party, holding the right of a majority as the very essence of their faith, and meaning to uphold that faith against the common enemy and the charlatans and guerrillas who from time to time deploy between the lines and forage on one side or the other.

The Democratic party is a standing protest against progress. Its purposes are spoils. Its hope and very existence is a solid south. Its success is a menace to prosperity and order. This convention is master of a supreme opportunity, can name the next president of the United States and make sure of his election and his peaceful inauguration. It can break the power which dominates and milder the south. It can speed the nation in a career of grandeur eclipsing all past achievements. We have only to listen above the din and look beyond the dust of an hour to behold the Republican party advancing to victory with its greatest marshal at its head.

FLOWER AND TREE.

One of the largest orchards in the country is at Tremont, Kan., where Judge Wellhouse has 1,073 acres of fruit trees growing.

The city of Paris has 67,655 trees in its streets, and each tree represents a cost to the city of 185 francs. This makes the total number $3,000,000 worth of trees in the streets.

Several species of wild clover are eaten by the Indians of North America generally. When the blossoms appear the inhabitants of whole villages may be seen squatting in the clover meadows plucking and eating the flowers to satiety.

From the evidence adduced by botanists of high standing it seems highly improbable that wheat has been found growing persistently in a wild state although it has often been asserted that such was the case by poets, travelers and historians.

PAUPERS IN JAPAN.

It is not the rule to regard Japan as a particularly prosperous country, and yet it is a fact, backed up by the most carefully compiled statistics, that in all the Japanese empire, with its population of 327,000,000, it is estimated that there are fewer than 10,000 paupers.

SUGGESTIVE.

An Englishman traveling in California was much impressed by a specimen of American humor.

He was going down a dangerous mountain road in a coach when he saw these ominous words branded in black letters upon a white board nailed to a wayside tree:

How would you like to have a Broken Neck and a Dirty Shirt on? Go to the PIONEER LAUNDRY. —Youth's Companion.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Whereas, on the thirtieth day of October, 1890, Eliza A. LaForte made, executed and delivered to the Clover Hill Land Company her certain mortgage, bearing date on said day, which was thereafter duly filed in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 29th day of December A. D. 1890, at four o'clock p. m. in book 127 of mortgages on page 127, which mortgage was given to secure the payment of three hundred dollars ($300) and interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, according to the conditions of two certain promissory notes, bearing even date therewith, and interest coupons thereto attached, for the principal interest thereon; and whereas, it was provided and stipulated by said mortgage that if default be made in any of the conditions of said mortgage, it should be lawful for said mortgagee to declare the whole sum therein specified to be due; and whereas, upon such default the said mortgage was thereby authorized and empowered to sell the mortgaged premises hereinafter described, at public auction, and to convey the same to the purchaser in fee simple, according to the statute in such case made and provided, and out of the moneys arising from such sale, to retain the principal and interest due on said mortgage and notes, together with all costs and charges, and also the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25) as attorney's fees, and pay the overplus, if any, to the said mortgagor, her heirs, executors, administrators or assigns; and whereas, default was made in the payment of the sum of one hundred fifty dollars ($150.00) principal, which became due and payable on said notes and mortgage, on the thirtieth day of October, 1891, and whereas, said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house of said St. Louis county in the city of Duluth, Minnesota, on Saturday, July 2nd, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m. of said day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit: Lot number (9), in block number seven (7), in Clover Hill division of Duluth, according to the plat thereof on file and record in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis county, Minnesota; in which county and state said premises are situated, will be hereinafter sold and conveyed by said mortgagee at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and twenty-five dollars attorneys fees as stipulated in said mortgage and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the sheriff of St. Louis county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house of said St. Louis county in the city of Duluth, Minnesota, on Saturday, July 2nd, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m. of said day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dr. Speer & Co., West Superior, Wis.:

Gentlemen—According to the promise I gave I forward you a testimonial of the troubles I had. To whom it may concern: For a long time I had been a constant sufferer from catarrh of the bladder, accompanied by pains in the back, loss of flesh and what is worse that feeling of lassitude which overcomes sufferers from this disease, rendering them wholly unfit for work and making life a complete burden. I treated with several different physicians without obtaining any relief, and had almost abandoned hope, when I was prompted to seek the advice of a specialist. Accordingly, in June last, I consulted Dr. Speer & Co., placed myself in their care, and now am happy to say that I am completely cured, thanks to their skillful treatment. Any further information will be gladly furnished to all who may feel interested.

The Manner in Which the Eloquent Garfield Named Sherman at the 1880 Convention.

The Celebrated Nominating Convention of 1880 Where Conkling Shone.

Senator Spooner's Splendid Advocacy
of Jerry Rusk, Wisconsin's Favorite Son.

Following is the eulogy of Sherman delivered by James A. Garfield at the convention of 1880, which finally nominated Garfield:

I have witnessed the extraordinary scenes of this convention with deep solitude. No emotion touches my heart
more quickly than a sentiment in honor of a great and noble character. But as I sat on these seats and witnessed these demonstrations it seemed to me you were a human ocean in a tempest. I have seen the sea lashed into a fury and tossed into a spray, and its grandeur moves the soul of the dullest man. But I remember that it is not the billows,
but the calm level of the sea from which
all heights and depths are measured.

When the storm has passed and the hour of calm settles on the ocean, when sunlight bathes its smooth surface, then the astronomer and surveyor takes the level from which he measures all terrestrial heights and depths.

Gentlemen of the convention, your present temper may not mark the healthful pulse of our people. When our enthusiasm has passed, when the emotions of this hour have subsided, we shall find the calm level of public opinion below the storm people are to be measured,
and by which their final action will be determined. Not here in this brilliant circle where 15,000 men and women are assembled is the destiny of the republic
to be decreed; not here, where I see the enthusiastic faces of 756 delegates waiting to cast their votes into the urn and determine the choice of their party, but by 4,000,000 Republican firesides, where the thoughtful fathers, with wives and children about them, with the calm thoughts inspired by love of home and love of country, with the history of the past, the hopes of the future, and the knowledge of the great men who have adorned and blessed our nation in days
gone by—there God prepares the verdict that shall determine the wisdom of our work tonight. Not in Chicago in the heat of June, but in the sober quiet that comes between noon and the melancholy
days of November, in the silence of deliberate judgment, will this great question be settled. Let us aid them tonight.

But now, gentlemen of the convention, what do we want? Bear with me a moment. Hear me for this cause, and for a moment be silent that you may hear. Twenty-five years ago this republic was wearing a triple chain of bondage. Long familiarity with traffic in the bodies and souls of men had paralyzed the conscience of a majority of our people. The useful doctrine of state sovereignty had shackled and weakened the noblest and most beneficent powers of the national government, and the grasping power of slavery was seizing the virgin territory of the west and dragging it into the den of eternal bondage.

At that crisis the Republican party
was born. It drew its first inspiration from that fire of liberty which God has lighted in every man's heart, and which all the powers of ignorance and tyranny
can never wholly extinguish. The republican party came to deliver and save the republic. It entered the arena where the beleaguered and assailed territories
were struggling for freedom, and drew around them the sacred circle of liberty which the demon of slavery has never dared to cross. It made them free forever. Strengthened by its victory on the frontier, the young party, under the leadership of that great man who, on this spot twenty years ago was made its leader, entered the national capital
and assumed the high duties of the government. The light which shone from its banner dispelled the darkness in which slavery had enshrouded the capital, and melted the shackles of every slave and consumed, in the fire of liberty, every slave pen within the shadow of the Capitol.

Our national industries, by an improving policy, were themselves prostrated, and the streams of revenue flowed
in such feeble currents that the treasury itself was well nigh empty. The money of the people was the wretched notes of 2,000 uncontrolled and irresponsible state banking corporations, which was filling
the country with a circulation that poisoned rather than sustained the life of business. The Republican party changed all this. It abolished the babel of confusion and gave the country a currency
as national as its flag, based upon the sacred faith of the people. It threw its protecting arm around our great industries and they stood erect as with new life. It filled with the spirit of true nationality all the great functions of the government.

It confronted a rebellion of unex-
ampled magnitude, with slavery behind it,
and under God fought the final battle of liberty until victory was won. Then,
after the storms of battle, were heard
the sweet, calm words of peace uttered
by the conquering nation, and saying to the conquered foe that lay prostrate at its feet, "This is our only revenge: that you join us in lifting to the serene firmament of the constitution, to shine like stars for ever and ever, the immortal principles of truth and justice, that all men, white or black, shall be free and stand equal before the law."

Then came the question of reconstruction, the public debt and the public faith.
In the settlement of the questions the Republican party has completed its

twenty-five years of glorious existence,
and it has sent us here to prepare it for another triumph of duty and of victory.
How shall we do this great work? We cannot do it, my friends, by assailing
our Republican brethren. God forbid that I should say one word to cast a shadow upon any name on the roll of our heroes. This coming fight is our Thermopylae. We are standing upon a narrow isthmus. If our Spartan hosts are united we can withstand all the Persians that the Kortex of Democracy can bring against us. Let us hold our ground
this one year, for the stars in their courses fight for us in the future. The census taken this year will bring reinforcements
and continued power.

But in order to win this victory now
we want the vote of every Republican,
of every Grant Republican and every anti-Grant Republican in America, of every Blaine man and every anti-Blaine man. The vote of every follower of every candidate is needed to make our success certain; therefore I say, gentlemen and brethren, we are here to take calm counsel together and inquire what we shall do. We want a man whose life and opinions embody all the achievements of which I have spoken. We want a man who, standing on a mountain height, sees all the achievements of our past history and carries in his heart the memory of all its glorious deeds, and who, looking forward, prepares to meet the labor and the dangers to come. We want one who will act in no spirit of unkindness toward those we lately met
in battle.

The Republican party offers to our brethren of the south the olive branch of peace, and wishes them to return to brotherhood on this supreme condition,
that it shall be admitted forever and forevermore, that, in the war for the Union, we were right and they were wrong. On that supreme condition we meet them as brethren, and on no other.
We ask them to share with us the blessings and honors of this great republic.

Now, gentlemen, not to weary you, I am about to present a name for your consideration—the name of a man who was the comrade and associate and friend of nearly all those noble dead whose faces look down upon us from these walls tonight; a man who began his career of public service twenty-five years ago, whose first duty was courageously done in the days of peril on the plains of Kansas, when the first red drops of that bloody shower began to fall which finally swelled into the deluge
of war. He bravely stood by young Kansas then, and returning to his duty
in the national legislature, through all subsequent time his pathway has been marked by labors performed in every department of legislation. You ask for his monuments. I point you to twenty-five years of national statutes. Not one great beneficent statute has been placed in our statute books without his intelligent and powerful aid. He aided these men to formulate the laws that raised our great armies and carried us through the war. His hand was seen in the legislation of those statutes that restored
and brought back the unity and married calm of the states. His hand was in all that great legislation that created the war currency, and in a still greater work that redeemed the promises of the government and made the currency equal to gold. And when at last called from the halls of legislation into a high executive office he displayed that experience, intelligence, firmness and poise of character which have carried us through a stormy period of three years. With one-half the public press crying "crucify him," and a hostile congress seeking to prevent success, in all this he remained unmoved until victory
crowned him.

The great fiscal affairs of the nation,
and the great business interests of the country, he has guarded and preserved,
while executing the law of resumption
and effecting its object without a jar
and against the false prophecies of one-half of the press and all the Democracy of this continent. He has shown himself able to meet with calmness the great emergencies of the government for twenty-five years. He has trodden the perilous heights of public duty, and against all the shafts of malice has borne his breast unharmed. He has stood in the blaze of "that fierce light that beats
against the throne," but its fiercest ray
has found no flaw in his armor, no stain on his shield. I do not present him as a better Republican or as a better man than thousands of others as honor, but I present him for your deliberate consideration. I nominate John Sherman of Ohio.

FRYE'S SPLENDID PLEA.
Made in Behalf of Blaine at the Convention of 1880.

I once saw a storm at sea in the night-
time: an old ship battling for its life
with the fury of the tempest; darkness
everywhere; the winds raging and howling, the huge waves beating on the sides of the ship and making her shiver from stem to stern. The lightning was flashing, the thunders rolling; there was danger everywhere. I saw at the helm
a bold, courageous, immovable, commanding man—in the tempest calm.
In the commotion quiet, in the danger hopeful. I saw him take that old ship and bring her into her harbor, into still waters, into safety. That man was a hero. I saw the good old ship of state,
the State of Maine, within the last year,
fighting her way through the same waves, against the dangers. She was freighted with all that is precious in the principles of our republic—with the rights of the American citizenship, with all that is guaranteed to the American citizen by our constitution. The eyes of the whole nation were on her, and intense anxiety filled every American heart.
The grand old ship, the State of Maine, might go down beneath the waves
forever, carrying her precious freight, with her. But there was a man at the helm: calm, deliberate, commanding,
sagacious, he made even the foolish man
wise; courageous, he inspired the timid with courage; hopeful, he gave heart to the dismayed, and he brought that good old ship safely into harbor, into safety;

and she floats today greater, purer,
stronger for her baptism of danger.
That man, too, was heroic, and his name was James G. Blaine.

Maine sent us to this magnificent convention with a memory of her own salvation from impending peril fresh upon her. To you representatives of 50,000,000 of the American people, who have met here to counsel how the republic can be saved, she says, "Representatives of the people, take the man, the true man, the staunch man, for your leader, who has just saved me, and he will bring you to safety and certain victory."

SENATOR SPOONER FOR RUSK.
Eloquent Advocacy of Wisconsin's Favorite Son in 1888.

The rank and file of the Republican party look trustfully to this convention
for wisdom, and they will tolerate no mistakes. They demand for leaders those who have walked the mountain ranges
in full view of men, who have kept their feet out from the swamps and the bogs
of life, whose shoulders afford no ambush ground for the enemy, whose adherence to the principles of the party have been "without variableness
or shadow of turning," who are strong in the robust and attractive qualities of leadership; men who came from the ranks of the people, who have borne the burdens of life common to the people;
men whom the people may cheerfully
and without mental or moral protest,
follow to the end for what they have done and for what they are and for what they may be reasonably expected to do. We bring you such a man.

Tell men: some crowned, who live above the fog,
in public duty and in private thinking.

Is it against him that he does not come from a doubtful state? I deny that fidelity to Republican principles has undergone such deterioration as to diminish the availability of one's candidacy in proportion as the unyielding Republicanism of the state in which he finds his home has placed her above suspicion of defection. If in this, however,
I claim too much, if the voice of Wisconsin must fall upon unwilling ears because of the steadfastness of her political faith, so be it; but "by the same token," your candidate should not come from Maine or Pennsylvania or Ohio or Illinois or Michigan or Iowa.

Holding therefore to the highest standard of party duty and demanding the subordination of all personal ambition to party welfare, bowing in advance to the decree of this convention, the Republicans of Wisconsin with enthusiastic unanimity have instructed their delegation to name to you as their choice for the first place one who, by a long life of conscientious public service
in diverse fields of effort, has proven his right to stand the peer of any man in stainless character, in patriotic devotion to the best interests of the country, in political sagacity, in merriment judgment
of men, in heroic courage—many times
shown amid the rush and whirl of battle
—and in extraordinary executive capability. His name is not unfamiliar to the country. It is Jeremiah M. Rusk, the honored governor of Wisconsin.

SHARP SWINDLERS.

Some of the Hindoo's Methods for Defrauding the Sufferers.

It is doubtful if any race of swindlers
are so quick as the Asiatic, says a recent writer. The smile, which is childlike and bland, of the accomplished Chinaman,
often masks a profundity of cunning and a dexterity in fraud that the Caucasian cannot rival. Even the Hindu has a faculty for fraud that is not always suspected.

In the bazaars of Calcutta and Bombay
the vilest poison is sold to the English soldiers as whisky or brandy in bottles branded with a reliable dealer's name. Jack pays the price of the genuine article, but is supplied with a villainous compound of native
concoction.

The dealer knows the value of brands,
and never distrusts labels or capsules. By the skillful application of the blowpipe he drills a small hole in the bottom of the bottle, draws off the genuine stuff, and replaces it with his poisonous stuff, closes up
the hole so that no trace remains and palm oil from the bottle on unsuspecting Jack real "Marcell" or "the old Irish." The abstracted liquor will, of course, always sell on its own merits elsewhere.

Another ingenious device of the mild Hindoo is to drill a hole in the edge of a rupee, and then scrape out the silver
from the inside, leaving only a sort of shell, without damaging the impression on the rim. Lead is then poured gently in, mixed with some alloy which gives the requisite ring, and the hole is carefully closed.

Only a keen and experienced eye can detect the imposture. The silver which is thus abstracted will be worth nearly a shilling, and the manipulator has still his rupee to a pound. The operation may be occupied by the greater portion of a week,
during which time he might have earned
two rupees by honest work.

In fact, it may be said that if all the ingenuity and talent which are applied to swindles were directed to legitimate ends,
the rewards would be both greater and more continuous than in the precarious almsgiving harvests of fraud. Leaving out of sight the moral question, it is indisputably the fact that honest labor pays best.

Trying Fortunes.
Children in the south will "try their fortunes" by going across a brook and gathering nine switches of different kinds, dip
them in the brook, then bind them together, using with the twine a hair from the head of the person "trying the fortune," then they are put under the pillow at night, and the dream will be of the future husband or wife.—New York World.

An Interesting Sight.
A most interesting sight to see is that of a young lady with "lips like rubies" and with teeth of "pearly whiteness," and with cheeks that have stolen the "deep carmination of the deathless rose," with her mouth full of hot potato.—London Tribune.

Some idea may be formed of the terrible degree of abject poverty which exists in Paris when it is stated that there are nearly 50,000 rickshaws in that city. There is, perhaps, no other city in the world
where a worse showing can be made.

Entered at the postoffice at Duluth, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN.

June 6.—A storm of considerable energy, but as yet of limited extent, is now central over Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota. It will probably move in a northerly direction and pass over this section and cause rain during its passage, accompanied by fresh northeast winds.

A long belt of warm weather extends along the Mississippi valley, where the temperature is 70°; reaching as far north as St. Paul. Over the Northwest it is slightly cooler than here.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 70°; lowest last night 46°; rainfall 7 a. m., .25 inch.

Duluth, June 6.—Local forecast for Duluth until 8 p. m. June 7: Rain, followed by clearing by tomorrow; slightly cooler; high northeast winds, shifting to northwest.

B. H. BRONSON, Observer.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Forecast till 8 p. m. Tuesday: For upper Michigan and Wisconsin: Southeastly winds; partly cloudy; slight showers; slightly cooler by Wednesday, except stationary temperature on the lake shore.

For Minnesota: Continued warmer; partly cloudy; southerly winds today; slightly cooler and fair Tuesday.

A DULUTH CONGRESSMAN.

As an independent paper, having only in view the best interests of Duluth and being desirous that this city shall have an able and efficient representative in the halls of congress, The Herald urged the Republicans of St. Louis county to endorse the candidacy of Col. C. H. Graves.

It had hoped and believed that they would perceive that it was their duty to elect a delegation to the district convention in favor of Col. Graves, because he was the best and ablest man in the field.

The convention on Saturday saw fit to select a Kendall delegation, and The Herald must confess that it is very much disappointed, because it is does not believe that Mr. Kendall is the best candidate that could have been chosen. It is very doubtful also whether he can secure the district nomination. The arbitrary manner in which Saturday's convention was run by the Kendall men is not calculated to improve his chances in other parts of the district. The rulings of the chairman were utterly inexcusable. They were a wretched travesty upon parliamentary law. They were unfair. They were a gross denial of the rights of every member of a convention, and they cannot be successfully defended. It is the right of every delegate to appeal from the decisions of the chair, and yet on several occasions the chairman absolutely declined to entertain any appeal and the Kendall men supported him in his arbitrary and unjust attitude. It is true that the Kendall delegates were in the majority and would probably have voted down every appeal, but that was no reason why they should not have treated the minority with fairness. Had they acted fairly and justly, they would have appeared in a much better light before the people.

The Republicans of St. Louis county, however, have made their choice and they must stand the consequences of what The Herald considers an unwise action. They have also given the Democrats an opportunity which they should not neglect. As The Herald said, when it first advocated Col. Graves' nomination, it is desirable that a Duluth man shall be sent to congress whose character and ability will be a guarantee that the interests of the Sixth district, and of Duluth in particular, will receive the close attention they require and who will at the same time be a representative of whom the district can feel proud. The Democrats of St. Louis county owe it to themselves and to the county to work for the nomination of a Duluth man who possesses these essential requirements in a greater degree than does Mr. Kendall. They should be able to easily demonstrate to the Democrats of other counties in the district that good politics demands the nomination of a Duluth Democrat.

There are numerous Democrats in Duluth, any one of whom would make an excellent congressman, and whose nomination would result in his election. The names of T. T. Hudson, Mayor d'Autremont, Maj. M. R. Baldwin, Hon. C. P. Maginnis and Judge Spencer will readily be thought of in this connection. Any one of these gentlemen would make an able congressman in whose hands the interests of Duluth and the whole Sixth district would be safe. There are probably other Democrats in Duluth who would make equally as good representatives. The Herald trusts, therefore, that the Republicans having failed to make the most of the opportunity that was presented, the Democrats will have the good sense to nominate a Duluth man who would properly represent the district. Duluth wants the next congressman from this district, and if the Democrats of St. Louis county act wisely she will secure her wish.

The harmony now prevailing among Duluth Republicans is so thick that it could be cut with a knife. And, by the way, it is whispered that not a few Republicans have well sharpened knives concealed about their persons and within easy reach for use.

A DOUBTFUL RESULT.

There is but little in the situation at Minneapolis today upon which to base a safe prediction as to the result of the convention's work. The Blaine boom does not appear to have made any rapid headway since his resignation, nor on the other hand do the Harrison forces appear to have lost or gained any strength of moment. There is supreme confidence on the one hand and serene assurance on the other, and it is impossible to say which of the rival factions is doomed to disappointment.

The majority of the delegates are as yet positively unpledged, and the probabilities are that their preferences will not be indicated until the first ballot is taken in the convention. The fight between the Blaine and Harrison men is growing bitter, and its intensity may make advisable the nomination of a third man.

"Picturesque Duluth" is the title of a beautifully illustrated brochure of fifty pages, 10,000 copies of which are being distributed in Minneapolis this week. It has been issued by the Duluth stock exchange and the interesting contents were written by Dr. Marion Stuart Cann, who is also engaged on a more pretentious work to be issued about the latter part of the present week. "Picturesque Duluth" contains many fine illustrations of the city, and deals with Duluth's present condition and advantages, and its intimate connection with the great Mesaba range, which is destined to make it the Birmingham of America.

The vested proprietor emerged from his retreat on Sunday morning, as The Herald predicted, and announced that the News will support Mr. Kendall. In view of the many bitter things which the vested proprietor has said concerning Mr. Kendall, the fulsome praise showered upon him in yesterday's News was certainly amusing. There is one hopeful feature about the case, however. The editorial ostrich has hauled his head out of the sand and has expressed an opinion.

The terrible disaster at Oil City and Titusville, Pa., yesterday is one of the most appalling on record. The dispatches today show that the earlier reports were not one whit exaggerated. The loss of life is frightful to contemplate, and the stories of the suffering hundreds, who were burned by the seething mass of flaming oil, are heartrending. The sympathy of the nation will be extended to the stricken towns and if aid be required it will be cheerfully given.

The country is reminded by Murat Halstead that there is a precedent for the secretary of state standing for the presidency and competing with the president before the nomination. This is the Webster precedent. Webster was a candidate in 1852 while secretary of state under Fillmore. Webster, however, did not resign prior to the convention, as Blaine has done.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press argues in favor of a single presidential term, and yet insists that Harrison shall be re-nominated. The P. P. is hardly consistent.

AMUSEMENTS.

Rhea at the Temple.

Rhea is drawing immense houses everywhere with her "Catharine," in Scribner's "La Czarina." This impersonation is said to be similar to her great "Josephine" of last season. It is also said to surpass it in dramatic fervor. Rhea brings about the same organization that was with her when she was here last, which includes some representative people. She will open at the Temple tomorrow in the afternoon, presenting the dashing comedy "Gossip," which is a clever translation from the French. She will wear "Felix" gowns in both of these plays.

A Fine Entertainment.

The entertainment by Will Carleton at the Lyceum Saturday evening was a treat and was undoubtedly the most intellectual and entertaining of any of the High school lecture course. His "Drama of Human Nature" is a beautiful thing, and is interspersed with many of his selections, some humorous, some pathetic, and all were admirably recited by Mr. Carleton. The audience was not as large as it should have been.

AFTER THE BATTLE

The Graves Men all Declare They Will Swing in Line for Kendall.

There is Disaffection Nevertheless and a Demand for a Duluth Democratic Candidate.

Some Interesting Features of the Wind Up of Last Saturday's Exciting Convention.

The outcome of the county convention was the topic of interest and discussion on the streets and everywhere Saturday evening and all day yesterday. The Graves men admitted that they were beautifully scooped and all said that they would turn in and work for Kendall. The leaders of both factions mingled together and were happy as school boys. Everything is not as smooth as appears on the surface however; there is a strong feeling that if the Democrats should nominate a Duluth man Mr. Kendall will have quite a hard row to hoe to carry the county.

The wind up of the convention Saturday night was quite interesting. The report of the committee on delegates to the convention recommended the following names: W. N. Shepard, John Owens, John Pengilly, C. G. Shipman, G. W. Wallace, G. A. Vivian, J. C. Moorhead, W. H. Frazer, H. C. Kendall, Geo. F. Ash, O. D. Kinney, J. B. Towne, Jos. Sellwood, F. B. Daugherty, N. F. Hugo, Monroe Nichols, B. F. Howard, H. H. Phelps, J. H. Nordby, Leonardas Merritt, C. W. Hoyt, J. B. Douglas, W. H. Hammons, H. H. Hamford, Alfred Merritt, W. T. Bailey. This was adopted and a motion to adjourn was immediately put by T. W. Hugo but voted down, and F. J. Chipman bobbed up with a resolution instructing the delegates to vote as a unit for Kendall. It was agreed by the Graves members of the committee that this should be passed in consideration for being allowed a repudiation of five on the delegation, and the resolution was adopted. John B. Sutphin then arose and said with fine sarcasm:

"Before we adjourn I want to make a motion which I think will be adopted. I have made a good many motions today, but none have been considered. I move that a vote of thanks be extended to the chairman of this convention for the able and extremely impartial manner in which he has presided over it."

This created an uproar of applause and amid the howls of laughter from the Graves faction, Mr. Sutphin put his motion and declared it carried. Lon Merritt was not seriously affected and a broad grin was his only manifestation.

Mr. Kendall was then called for and made an able speech of acceptance. He expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred on him. He had only sought it after being requested by hundreds of citizens and he was now willing at any time to withdraw in favor of a better man should Duluth citizens desire.

After Mr. Kendall's speech John B. Sutphin was called for. He made a short speech which would perhaps have been better left unspoken. He said that he knew Mr. Kendall's ability; he had sat in the council with him when the first important legislation ever adopted in Duluth was pending and Mr. Kendall was always equal to it. He then declared that his opposition to Mr. Kendall was because of his personal habits.

Mr. Sutphin was altogether too direct in his statements and a succession of groans went up from the Kendall crowd.

Mr. Kendall was called for and came to the front. He was somewhat inclined to resent Mr. Sutphin's words but was probably too jubilant over the result to stir up any strife. He walked to the platform and shook Mr. Sutphin's hand but it was hardly a cordial grasp. He then said to a group of men:

"Fellow citizens: When I came into the world I was born a man. I think I have always lived the life of a man and I intend to die the death of a man. I have been brought disgrace on man, woman and child with whom I have any connection nor will I in future. If I am elected to this office I shall conduct myself so that no man need be ashamed of my acquaintance."

Mr. Sutphin then jumped up and declared that all that he could say. There were cries of "Towne" next, but an adjournment was carried through, the hour being late.

ANOTHER WRECK.

The St. Paul & Duluth Road Has a Bad Collision.

A train dispatcher's blunder causes another bad freight wreck on the St. Paul & Duluth road at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning, and engines 53 and 59 are only about fit for the scrap heap as a result. Luckily no one was hurt. There were two wild freights, one coming north under care of Conductor Charles Brown with orders to run to Carlton, avoiding regular trains, and the other freight was under care of Conductor Dodds, with orders to run to White Bear, avoiding regular trains. The latter train had only got as far as the big gravel pit when it met the north bound wild train, the engines coming together with terrific force and utterly wrecking seven cars of flour of the north bound train and four cars of lumber of the south bound. The engine of the north bound train, but scarcely had time to shut off and jump. The blunder was probably due to the negligence of the first night dispatcher in failing to notify his relief man of the presence on the line of the north bound train. The night express did not get in until after noon yesterday and the limit was an hour and a half late. The wreck is being cleared away but trains are running around the accident on a new track.

THE ODD FELLOWS.

Some Already Here and the Balance Coming This Afternoon.

The weather today has been a disappointment for Odd Fellows, but if it is clear this evening the parade will come off. Several representatives have arrived already among them W. E. Smith, of Winona; Dr. D. C. Estes, of Lake City; J. Fletcher Williams, of St. Paul; W. F. McManus, of Camden, Ark.; H. A. Stanley, of Minneapolis; J. L. Bliss, Alex. Ehart, Oliver Olsen and J. R. Langley, of Fergus Falls. This afternoon at 2 o'clock a special train arrived over the Duluth & Iron Range road bringing lodges from Tower, Ely and Two Harbors.

A delegation consisting of R. E. Patterson, John Williams, E. Kugler and Joseph Dwyer went down as far as Carlton on the St. Paul & Duluth limited this noon. They will meet the special there and will provide the visitors with tickets for the hotels and theater and make all other arrangements necessary. The badges are quite neat. A small piece of iron ore with the word "Duluth" is fastened to each badge.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED.

Terrible Accident to an Excursion Train in Kentucky.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 6.—News has been received here of a terrible accident which occurred on the Owensboro & Nashville road, about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, near South Carroll, Ky., in which four persons were killed and a number injured.

A colored excursion train consisting of three coaches and a baggage car, which left Owensboro, Ky., at 7:30 o'clock, collided with the regular north-bound passenger train.

Sixty Persons Drowned.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 6.—A frightful disaster is reported from Central Russia. The steamer Albion, while plying in the Onjia river, a tributary of the Volga, took fire and sixty persons were drowned in endeavoring to escape from the burning vessel. Thirty persons were saved. The calamity occurred not far from Kantenskoi.

A Double Suicide.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Rudolph Hacker, a cigar manufacturer at 227 West Division street, and Mrs. Les Plum, wife of Jacob H. Plum, who keeps a bakery, were found dead in bed today in the woman's house on North Halstead street. The gas was turned on full from two jets and all the circumstances pointed to a double suicide.

Col. Colvill's Pension.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The case of William Colvill, late colonel First regiment Minnesota volunteers, for an increase of pension to $75 per month, came up in the house. It was finally amended to $50 per month and laid aside with favorable recommendations.

The blast furnace at this place will use up what material is now on hand and coke the furnace and go out of blast for a time. This step is necessary on account of the overproduction of pig and the inability of the West Superior concern to make use of all the output of this furnace. There is Bessemer pig enough piled up across the bay to run them at least a year judging from the amount they have used the past five months. It will only be a temporary shut down and by coking the furnace—filling the furnace with coke and shutting it up—the fires will burn and keep it hot for a year if necessary, so that business may be resumed at any day without delay or the great amount of cost entailed by allowing a furnace to get cold. The material now on hand will probably run the furnace till the end of the week.

The village council will have presented to them this evening a petition from the business men of the place praying that an ordinance be enacted that will make peddlers, bankrupt and fire sales people pay a liberal license for the privilege of flooding the town with merchandise to the detriment of home merchants.

The land company's big dredge is now at work dredging the slip for the Merrill & Ring mill and will have the work completed in about three weeks.

HIS LAST TESTAMENT.

The Will of John J. Costello Filed for Probate Today.

The will of John J. Costello was filed for probate today and the hearing will be held June 29. He bequeaths $300 per year through life to his sister Mary Hogan and also the use of the house in South Hampton, Suffolk county, N. Y., where she now resides. To his brother Michael Costello, Wilton, Wis., is given the sum of $1000. One-third of the residue of the estate goes to the widow Anna M. Costello and the other two-thirds is to be divided equally among his six children, Mary Blanche, Bessie Ellen, Anna Henrietta, Clair, Anna Verona and John Joseph. Anna M. Costello, his widow, is appointed guardian of the children, and she and R. A. Costello and John T. Lucas, Minneapolis, are executors of the estate. They are empowered to dispose of the property or part of it and transact all business of the estate without obtaining license from the probate court. The will is dated May 26, 1892, and is witnessed by L. B. Weber and Mary Grade. The estate will inventory $150,000.

GREATSINGER GOT IT.

The General Manager of the Iron Range is Elected President.

At the meeting of the Duluth & Iron Range directory this morning J. L. Greatsinger was unanimously elected president and will continue as general manager. J. L. Greatsinger and J. H. Chandler were elected directors to fill vacancies on the board. Mr. Greatsinger steps into the seat on the board formerly held by Governor R. P. Flower, of New York. The usual dividends were declared and the projected improvements were ratified and ordered pushed to completion. The meeting of the Minnesota Iron company was also held and usual dividends were declared. There were no important changes in the list of officers.

A Directors Meeting.

The chamber of commerce directors met tomorrow morning. A memorial from the St. Louis Merchants exchange asking that the chamber endorse the movement to take the Mississippi river appropriation out of the river and harbor bill will be considered. The communication of D. R. James, secretary of the New York board of trade and transportation, asking for the endorsement of the chamber of the Nicaragua canal project will also be discussed. The secretary will make his report on Washington matters.

Chief Smith's Report.

Chief Smith of the fire department has made his report for May. During the month there were four alarms and total loss by fire was only $30. Several new men have been added to the force and two men were slightly injured during the month. Emil Applehagen, fire warden, has reported for duty. The horses are all in good condition.

Changed His Name.

There is one little circumstance connected with Saturday's convention which is ranking in the minds of the Graves men. Joe Mannheim voted with the Kendall men. Ever since the election there has been a card in one of the frames in City Clerk Frank Burke's office which reads: "Vote for J. A. Mannheim for Mayor." Today it reads in red ink "Judas Ananias Mannheim."

RICH MEN'S HOMES.

The Costly Domiciles Which Are the Abodes of Noted American Millionaires.

W. K. Vanderbilt's Magnificent "Cottage" at Newport Arousing Envy.

Commodore Gerry's Spacious New York Residence in Course of Construction.

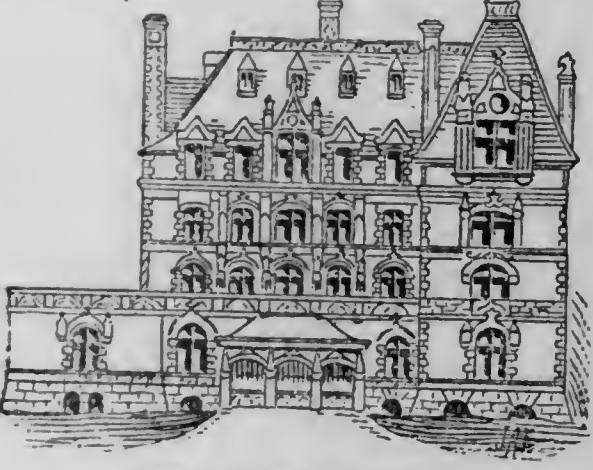

This seems to be the age of what might be called "residential competition" among the millionaires of America. Each appears to be imbued with the desire to own a home which shall outstrip in magnificence and architectural beauty all other private abodes. As a result several men of great wealth are now having constructed dwellings on which no expense will be spared.

A "cottage," so called only because it is located at Newport, and follows the cottage style of architecture, will shortly be completed for W. K. Vanderbilt. The main lines of the exterior, while evidencing great cost, are nevertheless so severely plain, that curiosity as to the interior appointments and arrangement has been excited, especially as Mrs. Vanderbilt, who has charge of

W. K. VANDERBILT'S COTTAGE, the details, has not permitted her most intimate friends, or even members of her family to inspect the building which she will occupy shortly and which she expects will be a surprise to every one, as it is intended that it shall be the handsomest "cottage" in the United States.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been expended in beautifying the grounds, and nature herself has been overcome by the erection of an artificial promontory, which projects for a considerable distance into the sea. The main vestibule extends 57 feet in one direction and 30 feet in the other. Its walls and floor are of yellow marble. This apartment is 60 feet high, and has a balcony upon which the rooms of the second story open, running entirely around it. The ceiling is divided into panels by massive beams and is beautifully frescoed. The dining room is on the first floor and measures 43 by 20 feet. The drawing room is of the same size as the dining room, and is on the opposite side of the vestibule. The walls of this apartment are completely covered with crystal and gold. The value of the latter is said to be enough to build an ordinary municipal building. The library and Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt's apartments rival in magnificence Aladdin's cave, and the entire finish of the "cottage" is such as is calculated to excite the envy even of the multimillionaires who have summer homes at Newport.

THE GERRY MANSION. While Mrs. Vanderbilt has been expending money and ingenuity on an out of town residence, Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry has been devising means for the erection of the handsomest city home in the United States. Work has already been commenced on the building, which will be at the corner of Fifth avenue and Sixty-first street, next door to the Metropolitan, better known as the Millionaires' club. The house will be of marble. No wood at all will be used, as the beams will be of steel. The building will be about 100 feet on Fifth avenue and 144 feet on Sixty-first street. The Fifth avenue front of the building will be given up to sumptuously appointed drawing rooms, and the remainder of the first floor will be occupied by the dining room, picture gallery and Commodore Gerry's law library and "den."

Mrs. Gerry's apartments will take up the entire space over the drawing rooms. Each of the bedrooms will have a bath and maid's room adjoining. Besides the commodore's study the third floor will contain a specially constructed room for isolating any member of the family who may be stricken down with a contagious disease. The attic will be devoted to twelve servants' chambers, ranged about a large central workroom. The building will be elaborately decorated.

Frederick Lothrop Ames is one of the richest men in New England, and it is said that he aspires to be Boston's chief landlord. His ancestors came over in the Mayflower. His Boston residence

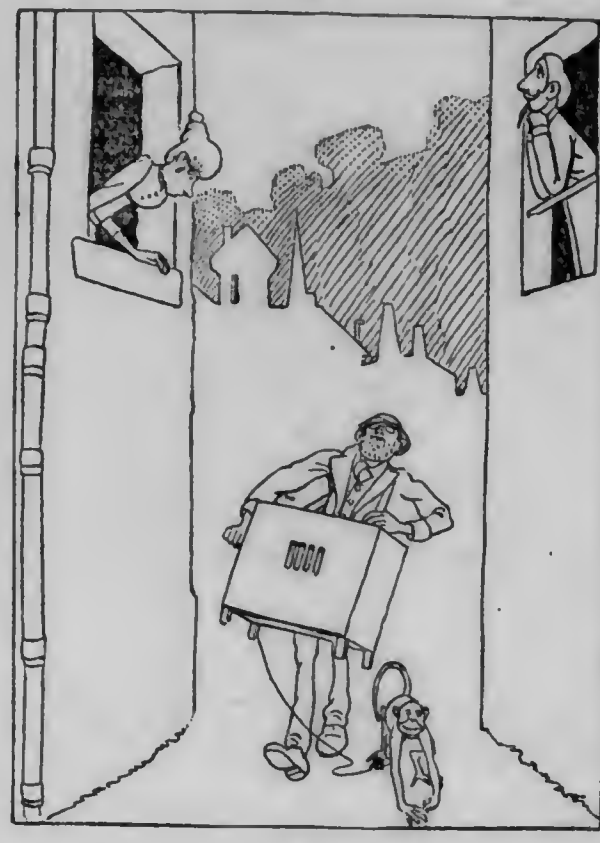

F. L. AMES' BOSTON HOME. is believed to be its owner's greatest pride, and it is noted as one of the finest and most costly dwellings in New England. It is adorned with rare furnishings from all parts of the world. Mr.

Ames' vast fortune is the result partly of inheritance, but principally of judicious manufacturing, railroad, telegraph and real estate investments. He is a director in some of the largest corporations in the United States. His country seat at Easton is one of the finest rural homes near Boston. Mr. Ames is assessed for $6,000,000 of real estate in the "Hub" alone.

A MCKINLEY BOOM.

Plan on Foot to Nominate McKinley if the First Ballot is Indecisive.

Senator Cullom Has Also Heard Dark Horse Talk and Hoisted His Rod.

The Michigan Delegates Met and Have Decided to Present Gen. Alger's Name.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—Since the arrival of Governor McKinley this morning the dark-horse talk has suddenly assumed great proportions and the name of McKinley is on every tongue. A private letter from a prominent Ohio Republican to the Harrison men received this morning said that there is a plan on foot to nominate McKinley if the issue should not be settled on the first ballot. The Indiana people went to Governor McKinley this morning and asked him what he would do about the matter. The governor assured them that if they wished he would rise in the convention and ask the delegates from Ohio not to vote for him.

Notwithstanding this assurance, talk about McKinley is heard everywhere. The dark horse movement has brought out the other minor candidates again and the talk in political headquarters is "Blaine or Harrison on the first ballot or a dark horse." Senator Cullom has heard the mutterings of the storm and his lightning rod is in position. Word has gone out among his friends that Harrison is not nominated on the first ballot, he would like to have the Illinois votes thrown to him on the second. Out of this probably arose the story that Senator Cullom had a letter in his pocket from the president authorizing the withdrawal of his name on the second ballot. The Allison and Rusk booms gathered strength, and even the Alger boom was galvanized into something like activity.

ALGER NOT WITHDRAWN.

Michigan Delegates Decide to Present His Name.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—The Michigan delegation held a secret meeting this morning to determine whether they would present Mr. Alger's name to the convention or withdraw it. The announcement yesterday was made by Senator Stockbridge that Mr. Alger's name had been withdrawn. Besides the friends of Mr. Blaine made up their minds that the result on the first ballot might be so close that it would be safer to have other candidates before the convention. So the meeting this morning determined to present Mr. Alger's name and Mr. Duffield will place him in nomination.

Senator Stockbridge said after the meeting: "After Gen. Alger, our delegation is divided. Mr. Harrison will get about seven and Mr. Blaine the rest. Gen. Alger will get the full vote of the delegation on the first ballot."

RELYING ON MCKINLEY.

The Harrison Men Much Cheered by His Arrival.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—The arrival this morning of Major McKinley was a source of considerable satisfaction to the other leaders of the president's cause, who have been awaiting his advice and counsel, with some degree of impatience. Three said they were not drunk and will be heard this afternoon. McKinley is relied upon to more than overcome what ever Ohio influence unfavorable to the president's interests that has been lost in the crowd. So far little has been seen of him and less heard.

It was not until long after midnight that the Ohio special reached the city, and Governor McKinley had retired some time before, leaving explicit orders that he was not to be disturbed by politicians or any one else. This morning, however, he was up early and with a dozen of the Ohioans he walked up to the West hotel shortly after 7 o'clock. He ate a hurried breakfast and retired to his room where, in a few minutes, Michener, of Indiana, called to confer with him about the situation. Soon after the governor left the dining room, ex-Governor Foraker came in and sitting down opposite the place just occupied by Mr. McKinley, did a little missionary work with the Ohioans. Governor McKinley said before he went into the conference with Mr. Michener that he had not heard that he was to be permanent chairman of the convention. He said also that he would not speak at the dedicatory exercises at convention hall tonight as had been announced. Ex-Governor Foraker denied this morning the republished statement that he will speak at the mass-meeting tomorrow night.

A reporter of the United Press saw Governor McKinley a few minutes after his conference with Mr. Michener. In reply to a question, Governor McKinley said: "I am for Harrison, firmly for Harrison. I have been for him and I am for him still." "What do you think the effect of Mr. Blaine's resignation will be in the convention?" "Mr. Blaine's resignation has placed him in the field as a candidate. I think it will strengthen rather than weaken Mr. Harrison. It has removed from Mr. Blaine that mystery which has surrounded him. He has lost that attractiveness which an uncertainty gives him. I don't know that I make myself perfectly clear." It was suggested that possibly Mr. McKinley meant to emphasize the difference between the position of a man who stood aloof, and to whom the nomination was offered in spite of himself, and a man who was an open candidate.

"That is it," said Governor McKinley. "I think Mr. Blaine's resignation at this time was a mistake. I think it has hurt him with the delegates and with the people. We could feel the effect of it as we came through the American. The announcement would draw a big crowd such as you have here; but where one man heard it, he had an opportunity to ask quietly and I believe the general judgment of the people is that Mr. Blaine has made a mistake."

Governor McKinley said he did not know enough to form a judgment of Mr. Harrison's strength. He did not know of the delegation was divided. Concerning the permanent chairman, Governor McKinley said: "I have heard nothing about the matter. I am not a candidate for the place. If I should be asked to serve I should do so. The governor has asked the governor if there was any possibility that his name would come before the convention as a compromise. 'I am not in any sense a candidate,' he said. 'I will not even discuss it. I take it the two names will be presented to the convention and that therefore the nomination will be on the first ballot.'"

Major McKinley was accompanied from Chicago by another delegate at large, Wm. H. Hahn, nearly all the state officers and five hundred prominent Buckeye Republicans. Of the forty-six delegates from that state, it is claimed that Harrison has eighteen out and out supporters while Blaine has about ten, and eighteen have no preferences.

THE CONVENTION HALL.

The Model Auditorium Which Minneapolis Has Prepared.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—Under a dome of blue, with forty-four stars scattered very irregularly over its surface, but all of them there, the tenth national Republican convention will meet tomorrow. The last touches of decorations were given to the convention hall today. The pillars on each side of the platform are supported by natural eagles, with wheat and brown Millet trimmings.

The presiding officer's table has been specially carved by the pupils of the state mechanical school. His chair is of carved oak, embellished with designs characteristic of the state. On the face of the galleries and underneath them, the forty-four states are emblazoned on American flags supplied by the Tin Manufacturers' association, of Cleveland, O. The shield and eagle of the United States are displayed behind the chairman; to his right and left respectively are the two mottos: "Reciprocity" and "Protection." In gilt letters on a blue field with brown border. A monster eagle of embossed tin surmounts the stairway by which the delegates enter.

The thirty-six columns which now only support the roof, but which formerly held the second floor, now removed, have been gilded and bronzed. Where the girders of the second floor were let in, the seats, of wheat, oats, barley, flax and grasses, with bronze colored banners as a background. Four handsome sets of thirty-six foot American flags are draped, one at each end of the hall, one on each side of the space set apart for the delegates and one in the rear of them.

The galleries are artistically hung with brown plush and the hanging gallery fitted with plush, where the Chicago band is to be placed. The music is similarly draped in old gold. The roof and the skylights have been tinted in two delicate shades of blue, picked out with stars to correspond to the states and forty extra ventilators have been let into the roof and the amber tinted light which falls through them gives a pleasant effect. The passage ways and platform will be covered, to deaden the sound of footfalls, with linen made of flax grown in Minnesota and woven in Minneapolis. At the end of the building, facing the chair, is displayed the time-honored banner of the Boston Home Market club, which has been in so many conventions with its inscription: "American wages for American workmen." "American markets for the American people." "Protection for American homes."

Nothing could be better than the arrangements made for the accommodation of the press, to whom the best seats in the convention hall have particularly been assigned. The delegates occupy a square of themselves in front of the chair, fenced in on each side by a wire screen. Oak opera chairs have been provided for their accommodation. The 10,000 spectators will be seated in two tiers extending all around them and also back of the platform. Probably on no similar occasion has such elaborate care been taken to insure absolute safety. The convention hall is on the second floor of the exposition building. The floor and galleries are all so graded and trussed that particularly every chair rests on an independent support more than sufficient to uphold a ton weight.

Over 30,000 feet of lumber have been used in making the changes in the hall for the purpose of the convention. The number of the exits is so great that in the event of a panic the building would be emptied in five minutes. There are fifty feet of clear space all around the main floor and thirty feet all around the gallery, this outside the convention room. Ventilation acoustics, light and decoration are all admirable. Minneapolis has prepared a model convention hall.

THE NEW YORK DELEGATES.

Frank S. Witherbee to Succeed Fassett as National Conventionman.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—There was a great crush in and about the rooms of the New York delegation at 10:30 o'clock this morning, the time announced for the first meeting of the delegates from the Empire state. J. Sloat Fassett called the meeting to order and after considerable delay succeeded in clearing the room of all but the delegates. The meeting lasted only ten minutes and no attempt was made to take a vote.

on the preference of the delegates for the presidential nomination.

Ex-Senator Warner Miller was elected permanent chairman of the delegation, the Blaine men having evidently abandoned their program yesterday, which was to make Mr. Depew chairman and then attempt to gag him by the name of Harrison. John W. Dwight, of New York, was elected permanent secretary; Philip Becker, of Buffalo, was selected as New York's honorary vice-president of the convention and Rufus F. Peck, of Cortland, as honorary secretary.

Members of the several committees of the convention were selected as follows: Resolutions, State Senator Edmund O'Connor, of Binghamton; rules, Gen. James W. Husted, of West Chester; credentials, Wm. C. Wallace, of Brooklyn; permanent organization, Gen. Samuel Thomas, of New York; committee to notify nominees for president and vice-president of the action of the convention, Col. Elliot Shepard, of New York. Frank S. Witherbee, of New York, was chosen to succeed J. Sloat Fassett as national convention man. The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

Mr. Platt claimed this morning that Mr. Blaine will receive the votes of fifty-eight of the New York delegates. The claim made by the other Blaine men in the delegation is fifty for Blaine against twenty-two for Harrison. A Harrison delegate made the following estimate after a careful canvass: Blaine 34, Harrison 33, doubtful 5.

AFTER THE DELEGATES.

Blaine and Harrison Leaders Now

Looking for Votes.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—No one but a Harrison enthusiast any longer doubts that Blaine's name will be presented to the convention. The assurance that he will not forbid it makes it morally certain, and the calmer heads are now applying themselves assiduously to ascertaining the intentions of the delegates. Both sides seem to have suddenly realized that it is the delegates after all who are to settle the question and every incoming delegate is promptly seized immediately upon his arrival and his allegiance earnestly besought by the rural leaders.

It is believed that Blaine will not be formally placed in nomination at all. The plan is to allow Harrison's nomination and seconding speech to proceed without interruption and then, when the roll call begins, to have Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado and other leading states in the list to cast a majority of their votes for the popular leader. This, it is hoped, will create a stampede of the untried delegates to Blaine and result in his nomination on the first ballot.

The Harrison people are working vigorously, however, with the delegates from the states that lead alphabetically and appear already to have assurances that that Blaine will not get the unanimous vote of either Alabama or Arkansas. Indeed the Harrison leaders claim a majority of the delegates from the South are for the president and as Alabama has a contesting delegation her delegates of both factions are very non-committal as to their presidential preferences.

FOR TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN.

No Action Yet Taken by the National Committee.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 6.—The national committee at its meeting this afternoon without action on the temporary chairmanship, adjourned until 9 p. m. Mr. Platt confirmed today the announcement made in the United Press dispatches last night about the temporary chairmanship. It says New York will present the name of J. Sloat Fassett for temporary chairman. The Harrison men will present the name of Gen. Horace Porter.

Another Grand Lodge.

Another grand lodge is to assemble in Duluth tomorrow. This is the grand lodge of the Swedish Mutual Aid Unity association. Lodges 18 and 19 will be in charge of the entertainment. A banquet will be given Wednesday evening and a parade and boat excursion to Spirit Lake next Sunday.

THEATRICAL WORK A SPECIALTY.

New York, Feb. 16, 1891.

Gentlemen:—Some three years ago your fireproofing was presented to us for examination, and after a thorough test we were asked what we thought of it. We would not at that time give an opinion of its merits; but can now say after three years of actual test, that we believe your RICINATE to be permanent and reliable, and find it to be all you represent as a fire-proof material.

We recommend its thorough application to all wood, canvas and other inflammable materials and after a thorough test we were asked what we thought of it. We would not at that time give an opinion of its merits; but can now say after three years of actual test, that we believe your RICINATE to be permanent and reliable, and find it to be all you represent as a fire-proof material.

FASSETT NAMED.

J. Sloat Fassett Made Temporary Chairman of the Republican National Convention Today.

The Harrison Men Did Not Oppose Him and His Selection Was Unanimous.

Mr. Fassett Delivered An Eloquent Address, and Mention of the Leaders Aroused Applause.

Thomas B. Reed's Name Drew Forth Cheers and He Made a Stirring Speech.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 7.—It was just 12:30 when Chairman Clarkson of the national committee struck the table a light tap with his gavel. It was not enough to restore order, but it caused many of the delegates to sit down and to cease conversation. A moment later when Mr. Clarkson brought the gavel down again twice sharply, the convention and the galleries came to order quickly and there was not a delegate standing when Mr. Clarkson announced that the session would be opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Brush, chancellor of the university of South Dakota.

A moment after the whole convention stood as Dr. Brush, a venerable looking man with sparsely covered head and long white beard began to deliver the invocation. He prayed for harmony and that the platform and the other issues might be subordinate to "Thy great will." When he said "amen" the convention settled down again with a rustling of badges that was like the whispering of autumn leaves. There was a hush of conversation which was hushed quickly as Mr. H. DeYoung, of California, stepped forward and read the call for the convention. At this time the e were not a dozen of the delegates' seats unfilled but the galleries were very empty.

At 12:39 the reading of the call was concluded and Chairman Clarkson arose and announced that he was instructed by the committee to present to the convention for its temporary chairmanship, Hon. J. Sloat Fassett, of New York. There was a burst of applause at this announcement by the New Yorkers. Mr. Fassett, who was seated in the seat second from the center aisle between Warner Miller and Henry Burleigh, looked uncertain. He evidently did not know whether he was to take the initiative or whether he was to be escorted to the platform by a committee as he was at Rochester in September last. Mr. Clarkson nodded to him and Mr. Fassett, unhesitatingly, left the seat and started for the platform. A path was cleared for him and less than a minute later Mr. Fassett was presenting him to the convention. He received the customary welcome, the New York delegation rising and waving their hats in his honor.

Mr. Fassett looked perfectly self-possessed as he gazed about the vast hall. In his hand was a type-written manuscript to which he referred occasionally as he spoke. Mr. Fassett, after returning thanks for the honor and complimenting Minneapolis' enterprise and artistic talent as shown in the Exposition building, said the convention met to exercise one of the highest privileges of citizenship, "not as warring factions, struggling to win supremacy under favorite leaders, but as members of one great party, seeking to select from the shining roll of our honored great men that type of statesman which shall be regarded as the soundest and most complete embodiment of the cardinal doctrine of our party." He said that differences which were ripe now should end at the convention doors, and will end there. The nomination does not end the campaign; it begins it.

Mr. Fassett pleaded for the delegates that they should subordinate all merely local considerations to an earnest endeavor to secure the best interests of the Republican party. "None of our true leaders," he said, "are weak men; all of them are strong. And the eyes of all Republicans at home and of our adversaries everywhere are fixed upon this convention. The responsibility is enormous, but you will meet it wisely. The Republican party had never yet made a mistake in its choice of candidates. It will not make a mistake here. All over this broad land the bonfires are set to be lighted, the flags ready to be unfurled, and the Republicans at home are waiting to shout in approval of your choice. The history of the Republican party since 1856 is the history of the country. Its chosen heroes are the jewels of the nation, and we proudly turn to our Democratic friends with a defiant challenge to match them."

Speaking of the accomplishments of the Republican party, Mr. Fassett said he did not have time to even catalogue the long list of good works undertaken and performed. "They include the construction of the great system of public credit, reconstruction and increase of the Union, the wide West thrown open to settlement and to easy access, and the policy of protection to American labor and American industries, established, developed and vindicated; the markets of the world opened by reciprocity until the nations of the earth are today paying millions of tribute to the sagacity of our legislation and diplomacy and Lord Salisbury has been driven to the significant confession that, even in England, free trade has proved disappointing. Internal improvements have been made, the navy is plowing the waters of every sea, peace has been maintained at home and respect secured abroad. And our political adversaries are compelled to admit the wisdom of our course, to confess that we were right and they were wrong. In the Fifty-second congress they have exhausted about one year of congressional life in vain assaults upon three items of the tariff bill. At this rate 800 years would be required to accomplish tariff reform upon the lines laid down by our conflicting Democratic friends."

Mr. Fassett that the Republican party will never be contented until the pledge is made good of a free and honest ballot secured to the country. "It is the pride of the Republican party that it has never yet committed an assault against the freedom of the ballot. No question is ever settled until it is settled in the right and until every citizen can have his vote counted with absolute honesty, none of us may rest assured that our liberties are safe. Some times we are told that mission of the Republican party is ended; we have met our destiny and fulfilled it, but the destiny of a progressive party is never fulfilled so long as there remains a wrong to be redressed, a right to be enforced. So long will there be a great work before us and each Republican may exclaim:

"I live to great that reason—
By gifted men foretold:
When men shall live by reason,
And not alone by gold.

When man to man united—
And every wrong thing righted,
This whole world shall be lighted
As fair as was of old."

The hall was very quiet as Mr. Fassett began. The delegates woke up almost immediately at his allusion to Minneapolis and a minute or later when he spoke of reciprocity there was an enthusiastic response. Some one tried to start the Blaine cry, but there was no disposition to precipitate the crisis and there was no response. The convention applauded liberally the announcement that all interests would be in harmony after the convention. As the delegates raised their faces in earnest attention to the chairman the effect of the subdued light from the blue-tinted glass roof falling upon them as viewed from the stage brought every feature into sharp relief as if they were grouped for a monster photograph or a great historical painting. Every man in the thousand or more delegates and alternates could be instantly and clearly recognized. The galleries, meanwhile, had filled up and supplied a striking background, rising in two gently sloping tiers half way to the roof.

Warner Miller did not seem to be absorbed in listening. He sat with his cane in his hand occasionally scratching his head with the handle of it. Mr. Platt sat on his spine, tapping the floor nervously with his foot, but apparently losing no word of what was said. Hiscock sat back heavily in his seat apparently more amused than interested. The Blaine sentiment in which Mr. Fassett finds his inspiration in this convention came out in the dramatic presentation of the Maine man's name and the subordination of the name of Harrison. As he named the leaders of the party, he paused after Grant, Garfield and others for the round of applause that he knew would follow, but when he came to "Harrison and Blaine" he brought the names out in one breath so that the applause of the Harrison men would seem to mingle with the applause of the Blaine men in recognition of the ex-secretary of state. The Harrison men recognized the point and Senator Hiscock sat back and laughed as he applauded. There was much enthusiasm and the applause was renewed again and again while handkerchiefs and hats were waved high in the air.

At another point in his speech, Mr. Fassett made another significant pause, after his allusion to the foreign policy of the administration, but it evoked comparatively little enthusiasm. When Mr. Fassett subsequently brought in the name of Thomas B. Reed, the convention went wild for a few minutes and Mr. Reed being detected in the rear gallery, sitting in a group of ladies, every eye was turned upon him. The ex-speaker raised his lips in apparent embarrassment. As the applause continued he bowed, but the audience being still unsatisfied he finally rose and, saying briefly "thank you, gentlemen," resumed his speech. Mr. Fassett completed his speech at 1:00 o'clock and took the gavel in his left hand before the convention realized that he was through. Then he was applauded loudly, but almost immediately there went up cries of "Reed" and "Reed" and the convention was on its feet shouting and waving hats.

Mr. Fassett held up the gavel in his right hand for a momentary silence. The Hon. Thomas B. Reed is always in order," he said. Every eye in the hall was on the big man from Maine, as he sat in his gallery chair, his face crimson, and shook his head in response to the calling. But the convention would not be satisfied without him. The applause continued until Mr. Reed, rising, his straw hat in his hand, picked his way to the aisle and walked down to the chairman's platform. It was with a gratified smile that he took the hand of Mr. Fassett. Then he stepped to the front of the platform and stood for a moment looking about the hall. There were cries of "quorum" from the delegates. Mr. Reed did not understand and he turned to ask Mr. Fassett what it was. Then he turned to his audience and amid a profound silence began to speak.

Mr. Reed said he wanted to add, in the presence of this vast audience, his hearty expression of faith in the future of the Republican party. "Its past has been history itself. We are prevented from 'pointing with pride' to the achievements of our party because of our tenderness for the Democracy. We are rejoicing that our past shows that from our birth until now, our character has been such that it is a guarantee of the magnificent future which we are sure to have. While we have done great things, we have no right to rest upon them. We have given to this country a wonderful physical prosperity. We have been poured into the laps of our people by the great system which we believe in, but I say to you today that there is another future before the Republican party, even than having given prosperity to the country, and that is, to give to every citizen of the United States liberty of thought and action. Wealth and prosperity are noble, but human liberty is magnificent."

The speech was received with continued enthusiasm. Bowing his thanks as he concluded Mr. Reed left the platform

A YOUNG VOYAGER

Frederick K. Bingham, a Ten-Year-Old Boy, Makes a Trip Without Protection.

Traveled Alone From Mexico to Germany and Then Returned to San Francisco.

A Claim Made That the Jews Are No Longer of One Particular Race.

Master Frederick K. Bingham, ten years of age, recently traveled without a protector from Hanover, Germany, to San Francisco. Freddie's father was in the machine business in the City of Mexico when he sent his son off to Hanover to school, although his home was in San Francisco. Freddie's story of his journey to Germany and return is best told in his own words. He says: "I sailed from Vera Cruz on July 20, last year, with the freight steamer Austria. It was so slow that we didn't get to Hamburg until Sept. 12. I don't like that boat. As soon as we got to Hamburg I was taken to Hanover that night, and right away after that I went to school. I learned German, to read and write, and I can talk a bit too. I can talk Spanish, but the Germans don't."

"I didn't like Germany, and wanted to come back to my mother. The boys there thought Hanover was a nice place. I said it wasn't nothing like San Francisco, and I told 'em that San Francisco was like heaven. I told the boys at the school about the cable cars. I said the cars were pulled by big iron ropes, miles long. They wouldn't believe that either. I didn't want to stay there and kept writing to come home. In March my mother wrote that I could come, for she thought I was homesick. I guess I was homesick, but I didn't go to school. The consul put me on the steamer Gellert. The Germans say when you start on Monday or Friday it's bad luck. I started from Hamburg on Monday and from New York on Friday. I didn't have any bad luck, but the steamer's propeller broke in the North sea and afterward a man jumped overboard but was saved."

"Most everybody was seasick, but I wasn't. I helped the sick people and gave 'em pills, and went to the doctor for 'em. They liked me, for they put their hands around my head. We got to New York in eight days. I staid on the steamer two days, and then the first officer took me to an agent. I don't know what for he was an agent. This agent brought me to another fellow and transferred my baggage, and I had to pay four bits for it. When I said 'four bits' he didn't know what I meant. He sent me with another boy to the train across the ferry. I had a letter of recommendation to the general agent, but I couldn't find him; he went home. Everybody helped me. I was so little, they said. Then I took my ticket and went to that man that holds all the tickets. He looked at me kind of funny, and he said, 'Well, my boy, sit down and I'll fix you all right.' I got on the train and started, but we changed cars about ten times, we did. I had to keep asking every time, but I found out what to do easier than some of the others did. There was one great big man who didn't know anything and might have got lost if I hadn't helped him. We stopped at Niagara Falls, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver and a place spelled O-g-den. I don't know how you pronounce it. I got here Sunday night and was glad too. I don't want to go away alone any more."

Freddie's only unpleasant souvenir of his long trip was a severe cold. Otherwise he reached the Golden Gate safe and sound.

The Work Done by Historian Borda.

El Telegrama, a leading newspaper of Bogota, Colombia, says that Ignacio Borda, who has done so much for literature in Colombia, as attested by his book on "Estudios Colombianos," does not weary in his patriotic and American interest. With the purpose of making a contribution to the Madrid and Chicago expositions, he has formed an important and curious compilation of laws, decrees and other documents referring to military decorations, commemorative medals, patriotic monuments and metallic moneys of Colombia. It has been announced by Senor Restrepo that the Columbian commission would send a numismatic collection, made up of the medals and moneys of the country, and the work of Senor Borda will supplement this very attractively, especially as it will be illustrated by engravings of some medals, moneys, monuments, etc. Senor Borda also has prepared another important work entitled "Natural Marvels of Colombia." He has secured by the labor of years a multitude of facts, scientific and descriptive data about all the natural curiosities of the American continent.

Jews No Longer a Race.

The Jewish Tidings, one of the principal papers of the Israelites of America, gives some very interesting information about the people it is supposed to represent, and among other things asserts that "the Jews are no longer of one particular race, but are of nearly all races." It says that "the Jew theory is not approved by intelligent Jews, but only by those who want to build a Chinese wall around themselves," and it adds: "There are Mongolian Jews and there are black Jews in Abyssinia. All peoples and nations have their Jews. The Jews originally came of one stock; that cannot be denied, but their racial identity has been obliterated, and their only present distinction is that they are adherents of a peculiar form of religion. The Jews are no more a separate race than are the Catholics or any other religious body."

The Very Thing.

"Porter, I want you to put me into a carriage where there's no smoking or talking, and where the passengers do not keep getting in and out."

"Well, sir, there's the dog compartment!"—Hecht.

Patient Motherhood.

The training of children, either girls or boys, should be commenced at that moment when the mother can see in them the first gleam of the knowledge of right and wrong when they know for the first time that one action merits whether it receive it or not—reward, and another punishment, because of the action itself, not because of their parents' will. Prior to this, training can be nothing more than disciplining, but when this time arrives the mother's real duties commence, and from that moment date her responsibilities. Girls and boys require very much the same treatment in this matter of training, and I do not know that I believe in making very much, if any, distinction in it. The same amount of firmness, of common sense, of respect to individual character and regard for individual talents should be shown in the one case as in the other.

The greatest care must be exercised by the mother as her children grow older to retain their affection, to be one of and one with them; to have her daughters talk over the people, and especially the men they meet, with her as they would with any girl friend, and to keep an ever watchful eye over their girl and men friends alike. I believe most sincerely in girls' friendships, in the friendships a girl makes after she is fourteen or fifteen—Mrs. John Wanamaker in Ladies' Home Journal.

Feminine Train Hands.

On the through lines of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad girls form part of every staff on the dining car. The kitchen girls assist the cook. They clean and prepare vegetables and fruits, make salads and dressings, cut bread and turn out butter prints, fill cruet, pitchers, cake baskets and sugar bowls with table supplies; pack and distribute linen and wash and dry dishes. They work ten hours a day seven days in the week. At first they are a little uneasy and smash more crockery and waste more supplies in a day than they can pay for in a week, but after they get their train legs on they are invaluable.

The cashier sits in the rear end of the dining room, gives out checks, receives the cash, keeps an eye on the passengers and reports at once to the manager any evidence of discomfort or dissatisfaction, and in addition sells cigars.

Cashiers get the same wages as the kitchen girls. All these fair train hands are Bostonians, and the demand for positions exceed the passenger list for any day in the year.—New York World.

Mrs. King's Big Ranch.

When ladies go to call on Mrs. Richard King, after they have reached the front gate they have to drive ten miles to the walk to the front door. But the baker when he wants to get at the kitchen must drive thirty miles from the back gate. Mrs. King lives on her ranch forty-five miles south of Corpus Christi. Over her acres roam 100,000 head of cattle. These are attended by 300 cowboys and 1,200 police. When there comes an order from a Chicago butcher for 1,000 head of cattle it is but short work to round them up and start them on their way. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob would find this life ideally patriarchal. And none the less so by reason of the modern improvements of the home and house parties of this life of large acres and many cattle.—New York Evening Sun.

Precocity of Julia Ward Howe.

School, which some children regard with mingled feelings (so I have been told), was a delight to Julia Ward. She grasped at knowledge with both hands; plucked it as a little child plucks flowers, with unwearied enjoyment. At nine years old she was studying Paley's "Moral Philosophy," with girls of sixteen and eighteen. She could not have been older when she heard a class reciting an Italian lesson and fell in love with the melodious language. She listened and listened again, then got a grammar and studied secretly, and one day handed to the astonished Italian teacher a letter correctly written in Italian, begging that she might join the class. Will you kindly consider these things, dear girls?—Laura E. Richards in St. Nicholas.

Hints for the Housewife.

Scored spots may be removed from cotton or linen by rubbing well with chlorine water.

Acids, wine or fruits may be extracted by first being moistened with ammonia, then washed in chlorine water.

To remove brown spots from black fabrics pour spirits of ammonia on the spot, drop by drop, and rub gently round and round with the finger.—Exchange.

Fine Cambric in the Wash.

To wash a fine cambric handkerchief, embroidered in colored silks, so that the colors do not run, the secret is to wash in a cap rather very quickly, wring thoroughly and then iron, so that it dries at once. There should be no soaking and the embroidered corner should be kept out of the water as much as possible. A little alum in the water will make the process more sure.—New York Journal.

Red Cross Sisters in Russia.

The number of sisters of charity in connection with the Russian Red Cross society is now ninety, making a total in Russia of 1,900 Red Cross sisters, besides a considerable number in reserve, 25 percent of whom would be immediately available for active work in case of war breaking out.

How to Keep Young.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale gives this prescription as an infallible rule for preserving a youthful spirit at seventy years of age: "Never bother yourself about who gets the credit of what's done. Self seeking is what makes people grow old even in youth."

A correspondent asks, "Why don't women learn more about what colors are becoming to them?" It is an unfeeling rule (if the complexion is good) that the color, being the same as the color of the eyes, worn near the face makes the eyes appear bluer or browner, as the case may be.

It was in the Congregational church that women were first permitted to preach. One of the pioneer women preachers in America was Antoinette Louise Brown, who in 1853 was ordained pastor of the Congregational church of South Butler, N. J.

It is well to remember that dustcloths slightly moistened and afterward shaken out of doors are much more sanitary than feather dusters, the use of which drives the dust from one location only to settle upon another.

How wretched is the mother who sees her daughter living in a sphere entirely apart from her own, separated from her by a more impenetrable wall than was ever reared by mason.

CUT DOWN YOUR SHOE BILL

Attention, Mothers and Fathers! Why not have your Shoes and Kid Gloves as well as those of your Children looking like new continually? Why have them looking worn and rough when you can avoid it? To do this you have only to oil them once a month with Tanner's Oil. Tanner's Oil does not injure but benefits the leather. It is now prepared by us for family uses. It prevents leather getting hard and from cracking, keeps it looking fresh and smooth, makes it soft and pliable and absolutely water-proof. Best of all—Shoes and Gloves kept thusly in good condition—will outwear three pair worn ordinarily. One box should last a family of three one year. On ladies' and children's wear you should use it instead of Blacking. Gentlemen can shine their shoes after using it equally as well as before. All we desire is to "have you give it a trial. Shoe Dealers, Glovers, and those Dry Goods merchants who sell Kid Gloves should have it on hand to furnish up their stock that has become shopworn. It will give it an absolutely new appearance. Your youngest apprentice can apply it. Price by mail 40 cents. Special price to Dealers.

Dr. Speer & Co., West Superior, Wis.
Gentlemen—According to the promise I gave I forward you a testimonial of the troubles I had.

I, George H. Thompson, make the following statement regarding the skill of Dr. Speer & Co., whose marvelous cures have won them a high reputation as successful physicians: To whom it may concern: For a long time I had been a constant sufferer from catarrh of the bladder, accompanied by pains in the back, loss of flesh and what is worse that feeling of lassitude which overcomes sufferers from this disease, rendering them wholly unfit for work and making life a complete burden. I treated with several different physicians without obtaining relief. Accordingly, in June last, I consulted Dr. Speer & Co., placed myself in their care and no longer happy to say that I am completely cured, thanks to their skillful treatment. Any further information will be gladly furnished to all who may feel interested.

Harry Miller, an engineer stopping at the Norris House in Duluth, has been afflicted for four or five years with loss of self-confidence, with nervousness, sleeplessness, pain in the head and back, flabbiness of the muscles and cold, clammy sweats, and was, at the time he began treatment with Dr. Speer four months ago, a total wreck, both in his physical and nervous system. He is now wholly recovered and stands ready to go before any justice of the Peace and swear to the facts above set forth. Dr. Speer's office is in the New York block in West Superior.

HE FOUND A WORLD

The Monument Soon to Be Erected in New York to Christopher Columbus.

It is the Work of the Italian Artist, Russo, Who is World Famous.

Details of the Design Which Does Credit to the Genius of the Artist.

Within a comparatively short time the traveler arriving at New York may behold two imposing statues, both erected by natives of other lands. With the history of the Bartholdi statue every school child is familiar, but comparatively few Americans know that their city is soon to be enriched by a colossal statue of Columbus, which will stand as a monument to the public spirit and patriotism of thousands of Italians who have made America their abiding place.

THE MONUMENT.

Americano, a leading Italian newspaper of New York city.

Cavalier Barsotti conceived the idea that out of the hundreds of thousands of his fellow countrymen who have found homes and comparative prosperity in America there would be a sufficient number who would be willing to contribute toward a fund for the erection of a suitable monument to "The Finder of a World." Nor was he mistaken, for his suggestion met with the most hearty commendation from Italians in every portion of the country, and the subscription list was closed very soon after it was opened. More money was received than had been contemplated in the original arrangements, and a monument worthy of the natives of the "land whose very soil is tinged with art," was assured.

A correspondence was opened with Premier Crispi, as a result of which it was decided that there should be an open competition, under the auspices of the Italian government, for the purpose of deciding upon the sculptor who should have the honor of making the great statue which is to stand at the "gateway of America." A jury was selected which included in its membership such eminent artists as Salvini, Sacconi, Monteverde, Mascari, Ferrari, Caldeirini and many others of almost equal reputation. After the most careful examination and patient consideration of everything submitted, the jury finally selected Gaetano Russo as the sculptor. Russo is a native of the island of Sicily. He was born in the little town of Catania in 1835. He was practically a born artist. He looked like an artist when he was a little toddler just as much as he does today, when his name and works are famous the world over.

When Russo was but ten years old he became so persistent in his wish to become a sculptor that he was permitted to go to Rome. There his genius attracted attention, and while he labored under great disadvantages and suffered hardships which would have discouraged a less determined youth, his advancement in his beloved profession was comparatively rapid. Like many men of artistic temperament, Russo is high strung and nervous, and he is said to

detest personal notoriety, but if this be true he is destined to be greatly irritated in the near future, for the work on which he is now engaged is certain to cause him to be talked about and written about very freely.

There have been and will be Columbus statues galore, but it is safe to assert that this latest and greatest conception of Russo will overshadow them all. The figure of Columbus is of heroic proportions. It is twenty feet in height and represents the discoverer clad in the picturesque costume of his time, with his left hand resting lightly on his hip and holding back his rich doublet, whose folds are thereby carelessly but gracefully disarranged, revealing a loose kilt below the close fitting shirt which Columbus is said to have worn when presented at court upon his return from his voyage of discovery.

The right hand grasps a scroll, and the arm is held in a position which is thoroughly in accord with the look of expectancy and firmness which is plainly visible on the countenance of the fearless navigator. The poise of the figure, from the head turned slightly to the left and thrown a trifle backward to the easy but strong curves of the body and legs, indicates a man of commanding nature and presence. The far away look usually attributed to Columbus, and his well known pride, have been aptly caught by Russo in the full, deep set eyes and thin nostrils chiseled into the marble.

The statue of Columbus will stand upon a shaft nearly fifty feet in height, which in turn will rest upon a base of ornate design, embellished with allegorical figures. With the steps which form the foundation the monument when completed will be 121 feet in height. The tall shaft might be rather severe in its outlines were it not relieved at intervals of several feet by appropriate naval emblems. On the back of the pedestal there will be two figures depicting America as it was in 1492 and as it is today. An Indian is shown, bow in hand, looking upward at Columbus, while at his side is seated Columbia, representing the change which has come over the New World during four centuries. These figures are nearly eighteen feet tall.

LANDING OF COLUMBUS.

On the front of the pedestal will stand Genius, seventeen feet tall. This piece of work will possibly attract more attention even than the statue of Columbus itself, for it is a specimen of allegorical art which it will be difficult to surpass, either in boldness and uniqueness of design or accuracy and perfection of execution. It shows the angel of discovery bending over a globe, upon which the left hand rests, and in the contemplation of which it appears to be deeply absorbed. The figure is nude, but for the piece of light drapery which falls across it between the waist and knees. The position of the body and the poise of the head are refreshingly illustrative of interest, hope and expectancy. The base of the monument is ornamented by four massive posts, which serve to break the monotony of this massive piece of stone.

There is a post at each corner of the base, and between them, on the back and front, are two bas-reliefs of beautiful execution, one representing the departure of Columbus as he set out from Palos in his quest of a new world, and the other depicting that new world as he found it when he landed at San Salvador. The latter is particularly good, and shows Columbus silently waiting a prayer of thanks to heaven, as he stands on the beach, awaiting his sailors, who are handling the boat in which the party had come ashore out of the reach of the tide. The Indians, furtively peeping at the intruders from the shelter of a friendly patch of maize, add to the effectiveness and suggestiveness of the "atmosphere" so assiduously sought after, and so seldom attained, by good artists, either in color or in marble.

It was originally intended that the monument should be located on Governors' island, the argument being that with Bartholdi's Liberty there would then be two huge guardians of New York harbor, between which all incoming and outgoing ships would have to pass. It was also urged that the effect upon the eye of the stranger as his vessel entered the Narrows would be particularly striking. On the other hand it was asserted that the location of the monument in New York city would bring it nearer to the common people, to whom it would then be easily accessible, and this view finally prevailed. Chicago was also anxious to have it on exhibition at the World's fair, but it was deemed inadvisable to incur the risk of accident by additional transportation.

Cobras Susceptible to Music.

Deadly and dangerous as the cobras are they may nevertheless be occasionally handled with impunity by those who know how, and possibly by persons who possess some characteristic which makes them less liable to attack, as we know is the case as regards bees in our own country. Miss Hopley relates a case of a Brahmin boy, who could without any music but his own voice attract and handle them with impunity, and they would come forth from thickets or walls and go to him. He was regarded by some of his countrymen as divinely inspired, but in spite of that he got bitten at last.—Quarterly Review.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH.

Entered at the postoffice at Duluth, Minn., as second-class matter.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., June 7.—The weather throughout the West and Northwest is generally clear; also in the extreme Southwest.

The heaviest rain was at St. Paul and Duluth. The storm center at present is at Des Moines, moving toward Lake Michigan. There is also a low pressure forming in the extreme Northwest, moving this way.

DULUTH, June 7.—Local forecast for Duluth until 8 p. m. June 8: Generally fair; possibly light showers; slight change in temperature.

B. H. BRONSON, Observer.

INCREASED CIRCULATION.

The Herald has begun the circulation of 2000 copies daily in Superior, 1100 being distributed in West Superior, 500 in East Superior, and 400 in South Superior. In order to secure prompt and regular distribution in the homes of the Superior people, ten carriers have been employed and the entire distribution is under the supervision of a committee of Duluth business men. There can, therefore, be no question about the full number being circulated daily and being placed in the homes of the people whom it is desired to reach.

By this addition, the daily circulation of The Herald is increased to a total of 5000 copies which is much more than double the bona fide circulation of any other paper at the head of the lake. It is hardly necessary to draw attention to the consequent superiority of The Herald as an advertising medium. It goes into more homes in Duluth and Superior than are reached by any two of the other papers published in the two cities. It prints daily more and later news than any other paper, and is therefore a welcome visitor wherever it goes.

The special daily issue for Superior will furnish Duluth merchants an unequalled opportunity of presenting their business announcements to the residents across the bay. The entry of The Herald into the Superior field has caused no hard feeling, as some people feared. There is a generous feeling there as well as in Duluth that it is foolish for these two cities to quarrel, and that more intimate business relations should exist between them. The Superior Telegram has decided, therefore, to reciprocate by circulating several hundred papers in Duluth, on the ground, it states, that "as the merchants of Duluth are desirous of cultivating the trade of Superior people it is but just that the people of Duluth be invited to visit the stores of Superior and inspect the goods and prices." This is the proper spirit of friendly rivalry that must receive commendation.

The Duluth merchants are satisfied that they can offer the Superior people goods the quality of which cannot be equalled across the bay and at prices which no Superior merchant can duplicate and they have selected The Herald, as the leading and representative paper of Duluth, to present these facts to the Superior people. The Herald assures the people on the Superior side of the bay that they will find that all the statements made by the Duluth merchants in their advertisements are correct in every particular. They have only to visit this side of the bay to become convinced that this is the case.

THE ODD FELLOWS.

The people of Duluth welcome the many members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, now holding the annual session of their grand lodge in this city, and they have an equally hearty welcome for the fair Daughters of Rebekah, whose charitable works are known to all. With "friendship, love and truth" emblazoned upon its banners, the order of Odd Fellows is one of the best as well as one of the most numerous and influential associations which men have formed for bettering mankind and improving the condition of the less fortunate. The aims of the order are lofty, and if its many members shall attain even half the heights towards which the objects of the order point the world will be the better for their presence.

Though the elements were unfavorable for the parade last night, the indications are they will be given a specimen of real Duluth weather before the time comes for their departure from the city, and we feel sure that they will be so much charmed by its beauty that they will return at an early date to participate still longer in its enjoyment. They can rest assured that they will always be welcome.

If Blaine is nominated, we shall probably be regaled with some more inside facts about the Nevins-Blaine divorce case. Then there is Wilbur F. Storey's famous editorial on "The Schoolmaster in Love," which might make interesting reading once more.

While the Republican delegates at Minneapolis are struggling to agree on a ticket, what is the matter with this:

For president, Henry W. Blair of New Hampshire; for vice-president, Dennis Kearney of California; platform, the Chinese must go.

The Toronto Irish-Canadian last week boldly advocated the annexation of Canada to the United States. It is no longer reasonable in Canada to urge annexation and this shows the marked advance that public sentiment has made on the question.

The Fargo Argus says "the Duluth papers have quit publishing iron stock quotations." The Argus is mistaken, or perhaps "the wish is father to the thought" with its cynical editor. The quotations are published by The Herald daily.

Gen. Horace Porter, one of the candidates for temporary chairman at Minneapolis, is the New Yorker who took hold of the Grant monument fund recently and completed it.

The house has passed a bill to admit Arizona and New Mexico as states of the Union. It is not likely that it will pass the senate this year.

"Alger and Morton" has been suggested as a compromise ticket. This would be a double-barreled ticket.

There is renewed talk of a wall paper trust. This is a combine that can go to the wall and yet not fail.

The predicted stampede to Blaine does not occur as quickly as was expected.

The dark horse may soon displace the favorites in the Minneapolis handicap.

AMUSEMENTS.

Rhea in "La Czarina."

Mr. Rhea, whose intelligent dramatic methods and fine personality have obtained for her numerous admirers in this city, is to produce at Temple Opera house tonight the new historical play entitled "La Czarina, Empress of Russia." She gave such a winning portrayal of Josephine during her last engagement here that it is but natural to look forward with considerable interest to her work in another historical drama, particularly as the far different role of the famous Catherine in this play may afford her even greater histrionic scope than did that of the great "Josephine."

This play made a pronounced hit at McVicker's theater in Chicago a few weeks ago.

WILL BUILD THE LINE.

Street Cars Will Soon be Running to Lakeside and Lester Park.

Street cars will soon be running to Lakeside and Lester River. Yesterday a company was organized to build a line from Montana, the present terminus, to Lester River. Work will be commenced July 1 and prosecuted vigorously. The line will be operated by the Duluth Street Railway company and a 5-cent fare will carry one from West Duluth to Lester River. This will be appreciated by Lakeside residents.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

Cincinnati Iron Company Elects Directors and Receives Proposals to Lease.

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the Cincinnati iron company yesterday a total issue of 101,000. A. E. Humphreys, George J. Milligan, John McKinley, E. G. Chapman, C. W. Buck, H. W. Coffin and M. O. Brooks were elected directors. J. T. Hale presented his resignation as president.

Three propositions for leases were received. John B. Weiner, who represents the Kimberley syndicate, wanted to lease three forties and J. R. Foley wanted an option on one forty. N. D. Moore, the Gogebic iron man, presented the best proposition. He wanted to lease three forties and would agree to mine 300,000 tons of ore annually and offer a royalty which would average about 65 per cent. These were referred to the directors and will be considered by the stockholders at a meeting to be held June 14. The Moore proposition will probably be accepted.

The company is in excellent condition. There are 18,600 shares of stock in the treasury, only about 1400 shares having been sold. If the lease goes through there will probably be a stock dividend declared and the 18,600 shares divided among the stockholders. It was stated at the meeting that there is a pit on one of the south forties where there was supposed to be no ore, which is thirty-seven feet down in high grade ore.

The directors of the Cincinnati company met this morning and elected the following officers: A. E. Humphreys, president and general manager; John McKinley, vice president; Morris Brooks, treasurer; Frank Cox, secretary.

THE GRAND LODGE

Several Hundred Odd Fellows Arrive Last Evening and Are the Guests of the City.

Speeches of Welcome By Mayor d'Autremont and Grand Patriarch T. W. Hugo at the Temple.

Grand Master Johnson and Mrs. Charlotte Haynes of the Daughters of Rebekah Respond.

The weather was raw yesterday, the icy northerner was whirling down with all its fierceness and it all but snowed, but even the coolness of the elements could not give a suspicion of chilliness to the reception given by Duluth to the Grand lodge of the state of Minnesota, I. O. O. F. Everywhere they were made welcome and Duluth citizens combined to receive in a fitting manner the body of men and women who will be the guests of the city for two days at least.

The special train bearing the Grand lodge representatives and St. Paul visitors did not arrive until 6 o'clock, and were escorted to the Spaulding hotel, where they had already been provided with hotel and theater tickets and there was no delay. At 8 o'clock the parade was formed in four divisions. The first formed on Second avenue east, the second on First avenue east, and the third on Lake avenue. They then marched down to the Spaulding and met the Grand lodge and Past Grand officers, who formed the fourth division. The line of march extended as far as Sixth avenue west and with a counter march there to Temple opera, the parade was a splendid turn out and several hundred Odd Fellows were in line.

The formal exercises opened at the Temple. After an overture by the City band Grand Patriarch T. W. Hugo addressed the visitors in his own characteristic and bright way and welcomed them to the city. He thought that to expect him to make an address of welcome after having gone through what he had as chairman of the committee on arrangements was putting too great a strain on human nature. This convention he said had been the dream of the Odd Fellows of Duluth and it was now the pleasure of the city to have the citizens of Duluth are united, he said, in extending a hearty welcome to their visitors.

"To all we extend a hearty Duluth welcome," said Mr. Hugo. "A welcome as deep and as wide as the waters of Superior; as fresh as the Spaulding house planked whitefish; as refreshing as our northeaster, and as persistent as our fog horn which you will probably be hearing before morning. We hope your visit will be a pleasant one and when you go home that you will come again and bring your furniture. As citizens of this representative giant enterprise with one foot on Wisconsin mud and the other on Duluth rock, we are proud of our city and our peaceable law abiding people and as a sample I would introduce our mayor, Hon. Charles d'Autremont."

A burst of applause followed Mr. Hugo and greeted Mayor d'Autremont as he stepped forward. He said:

Grand Master and members of the Grand Lodge, visiting Odd Fellows and Daughters of Rebekah: It is with great pleasure that I extend to you and all a hearty welcome to our young and growing city, the only seaport in the state of Minnesota. I say seaport for before another session of the Grand Lodge is held in Duluth, the ships of all nations will be entering our harbor. On behalf of myself and the citizens of Duluth I extend you a cordial greeting, far warmer than the weather, and I hope that your visit will be one of benefit and pleasure. The city is yours for the time being, it is at your disposal. When you make the acquaintance of our people you will meet with warm and kindly eyes. Perhaps when you go up on our boulevard and see how broad and deep are the foundations of the new metropolis, some of you may be so infatuated that you will remain and give your energy and industry to building up this great city. You have come here from all parts of the state and will, for a few days, lay aside business cares and devote yourselves to building up your order. If we judge the future by the past it can truly be said to be in safe hands. You have grown faster than the state and now you are members by the thousands and are willing to extend a hand of charity and aid. Again I bid you a hearty welcome to Duluth."

Grand Master W. R. Johnson responded and said: My first impulse in responding to your expressions of generous hospitality is to voice the sentiment which all your visitors feel that have men here who exemplify that first principle of our order, fraternity. Mr. Johnson delivered a glowing tribute to Duluth's social and commercial enterprise and closed with the assurance that the visitors would carry away the most pleasant impressions of Duluth and would wish her a continuance of her prosperous march of progress.

Mrs. Charlotte Haynes, president of the Daughters of Rebekah, responded and said: "I am exceedingly grateful to you, a welcome so cordial that it has warmed our hearts. For a year we have anticipated the day when we should meet on the shores of Superior, and again we acknowledge your greeting. The Daughters of Rebekah have added many members in this year and our banner reads 'success.' We number more today than the encampment and will soon be ahead of the subordinate lodge. The aim of the I. O. O. F. is our aim. Now brethren, do not deny us, take us by the hands; we will not harm you, we will assist you in the grand work of friendship, love and truth."

The Minneapolis Masonic Quartet club next sang, "I stood on the Bridge at Midnight," and received two encores. The club is composed of E. P. Brown, A. G. Marshall, J. M. Root and F. H. Forbes. Their singing is remarkably good and every one of their numbers brought forth applause. They were generous, too, and responded freely. Miss Augusta Ohrstrom sang the "Jewel

Aria" excellently and was recalled, singing "Home, Sweet Home." Miss Ohrstrom has an unusually fine voice and sings with perfect ease and freedom. She gave several numbers and was each time obliged to respond to an encore. The whistling solos by Professor Woodruff were also very good.

Rev. Robert Forbes delivered an excellent address on "Odd Fellowship." He said: "Personally I am opposed to secret societies. Odd Fellowship, however, is not secret. Everyone may know where the lodge meets and who the members are. You wear your badges and do not try to keep your membership a secret. There are several sentiments in the idea of Odd Fellowship. There is the sentiment of humanity, of the interest of man in his fellow man. Another, which is a little stronger, is patriotism, the love of the flag; but stronger than all, there is friendship. It comes from love and truth. You take your friend, with his faults, and love him in spite of them. Prosperity makes friends, adversity tries them. Prosperity tries them sometimes also. Envy and jealousy interfere. This should be out and as your competitor rises you should say: 'On, brave spirit, I loved you as a boy, I love you as a man.' Then there is truth. I have great faith in truth. Take a lie and put it in a throne and surround it with a battalion yet it is on the road to death. Put truth in manacles and it is on the way to victory. Truth cannot be kept down. It rises in dignity and casts the lie. Never fear the truth." Mr. Forbes also spoke of the charitable work of the order and its efficacy.

The decoration of chivalry was then conferred on Capt. T. W. Streeter and Miss Flora Thompson by Brigadier General Woodward and staff. The City band rendered a fine selection called the "Duluth I. O. O. F. March." It was composed by Ernest Meyer the least. The evening exercises closed with the singing of "Good Night, We Thank You All," by Miss Augusta Ohrstrom and chorus.

GRAND LODGE SESSION.

The Meeting Opens This Morning and Officers' Reports Are Heard.

The grand lodge of the state of Minnesota I. O. O. F. opened at 9 o'clock this morning at Odd Fellows' hall on Lake avenue. The morning was mostly taken up with the reading of reports of officers, although several were dispensed with to save time. Grand Master Johnson's report is a lengthy one and thoroughly covers the work of the order in the state during the year. He said in opening:

"We have again assembled in annual convention to legislate for the order, all love so well, to review the work accomplished during the year, and so far as possible, to gain fresh strength and inspiration for the work we have in hand; a work that is doing so much to transform this selfish world into something better; to disseminate the broad spirit of fraternity, and to inculcate the grand principle that God is father and we are all brothers."

Grand Secretary Bolton's report was mostly statistical. During the year seventeen new lodges have been installed, and two surrendered their charters, leaving a total of 187 now in the state. These have a membership of 12,787. There has been expended for relief $207,547. A number of other reports, mostly statistical, were presented. This afternoon the question of ex-lodging saloon men membership is being considered. The election of officers will not take place until tomorrow morning. The Daughters of Rebekah convened in the Hayes block hall at 9 o'clock. The addresses of the state officers were received and some other routine business transacted. The election of officers will occur late this afternoon or tomorrow.

TO SETTLE THE GUARANTEES.

The Gas and Water Ordinance as Introduced in the Council.

The ordinance settling the guarantee question and providing for water service in the outlying districts was introduced last evening. It provides that the city shall pay to the company for all extensions ordered 50 cents per lineal foot less any amounts received by the company for hydrant rentals or for the sale of gas and water along the line of such extension. The city is to not order more than four miles in any one year and must determine the extensions to be made during the year before June 1. In consideration for the abandonment by the company of the suits the city is to rent 100 hydrants, 50 prior to June 1, 1893, 25 prior to June 1, 1894 and 25 prior to June 1, 1895. Any question as to the purity of the water is to be settled by an examination by representatives of the city and company acting together. After June 1, 1892, the charge for gas shall be $2 per 1000 feet with 25 per cent discount on all bills for fuel purposes. 10 per cent discount on all bills for illuminating purposes which exceed $5 and 5 per cent on bills under that amount. By June 1, 1893 the company is to extend its system to 500 feet above Lake Superior, the city to pay 50 cents per lineal foot for extensions, less the revenue which the company obtains, but no guarantee is to be paid on the main on East Seventh street from Fifteenth avenue east to Sixth avenue east. The company is also given the right to lay out pipes for its own use in all the streets and alleys of the city. The ordinance was referred to the special committee having the negotiations in charge.

The Duluth, Red Lake Falls & Northern filed its acceptance of the ordinance granting an extension of thirty days in the time for commencing work was passed.

A petition was presented representing thirty-nine squatters are residing on the streets and alleys on Rice's Point. Residents on West First street between Fifteenth and Twentieth avenues west informed the council that the Gas and Water company refuses to connect their property with the mains. The engineer gave his estimate of the cost of grading Eighth avenue west from Third to Ninth streets as $10,571. A protest against doing the work was filed. The paving of Third avenue west from Michigan to Second streets was ordered.

President Hugo was absent for the first time when he was in the city since he has been elected president. Alderman Nelson was also absent.

A NURSE'S NOTES ON BABIES.

By Miss M. H. Beebe.

I want mothers everywhere to see the pictures of some babies that I took charge of after their mothers had given up all hopes of rearing them.

They had tried nearly everything in the way of foods before I took the cases.

Ruth was a year and a half old when I took charge of her, and was not so large as a well child at seven months. Her flesh was soft, flabby and wet with perspiration all the time. She hardly stopped crying, did not sleep nights, and was so weak that she could scarcely sit up. No one thought she could live. I put her on lactated food and in a few weeks her flesh was hard and solid, she slept well nights and was running all around, as well as any child.

When I first took Alice she was in a terrible condition—cried night and day, head all scales, no natural movement of the bowels. The trouble was improper food and too much medicine. Lactated food and good care made her what the picture shows.

The third child, Florence, was even worse off than Ruth when I first saw her. She wanted to eat all the time, but threw off her food as soon as swallowed. Lactated food had the same magical effect in her case, and that the child is alive today is, I believe, due solely to the use of this pure food.

With all three of these babies nearly every food had been tried without success before I used the lactated. I could mention many other cases where the lactated was the only food that agreed. My long experience has fully proven that none of the other foods equal it in making solid flesh and giving that perfect health which shows itself in good sleep at night and happiness in the day time.

The author of the above is Miss M. H. Beebe, Springfield, Mass., a nurse of long experience. The facts she describes prove that Lactated Food makes the sick baby well and keeps the well baby a picture of health. This food is not a medicine—simply nature's substitute for mother's milk that has saved many a little one's life. All reputable druggists sell it, or it will be mailed on receipt of price—25 cents, 50 cents or $1. Book of price babies and beautiful birthday card free to any mother sending her baby's name.

A NURSE'S NOTES ON BABIES.

By Miss M. H. Beebe.

I want mothers everywhere to see the pictures of some babies that I took charge of after their mothers had given up all hopes of rearing them.

They had tried nearly everything in the way of foods before I took the cases.

Ruth was a year and a half old when I took charge of her, and was not so large as a well child at seven months. Her flesh was soft, flabby and wet with perspiration all the time. She hardly stopped crying, did not sleep nights, and was so weak that she could scarcely sit up. No one thought she could live. I put her on lactated food and in a few weeks her flesh was hard and solid, she slept well nights and was running all around, as well as any child.

When I first took Alice she was in a terrible condition—cried night and day, head all scales, no natural movement of the bowels. The trouble was improper food and too much medicine. Lactated food and good care made her what the picture shows.

The third child, Florence, was even worse off than Ruth when I first saw her. She wanted to eat all the time, but threw off her food as soon as swallowed. Lactated food had the same magical effect in her case, and that the child is alive today is, I believe, due solely to the use of this pure food.

With all three of these babies nearly every food had been tried without success before I used the lactated. I could mention many other cases where the lactated was the only food that agreed. My long experience has fully proven that none of the other foods equal it in making solid flesh and giving that perfect health which shows itself in good sleep at night and happiness in the day time.

A SELF MADE MAN

Thomas Rees Morgan, Who Is the Republican Candidate in McKinley's Old District.

He Is a Wealthy Manufacturer and Now Gives Employment to Six Hundred Men.

Congressman Hall's Crusade Against the Tourists Who Smuggle Goods Into This Country.

The Republicans of the Eighteenth Ohio congressional district, so long represented by Major William McKinley, Jr., the author of the existing tariff

THOMAS REES MORGAN.

Law and present governor of Ohio, after a heated struggle have nominated Thomas Rees Morgan, Sr., as their congressional candidate. This district has been the ground for many a political battle. It comprises Stark, Mahoning and Columbiana counties, and as the Republican majority averages 2,300, Mr. Morgan's chances of winning "M. C." after his name are flattering.

Two years ago the Ohio districts were changed by the legislature, Stark county being placed in Democratic company, and McKinley, then a candidate for re-election, was defeated by John G. Warwick after a memorable contest in which Reed, Blaine, Alger, Sherman, Burrows, Hill and many other leaders, Republican and Democratic, participated. This year the old district was restored by the Republican legislature.

Mr. Morgan was born in Merthyr Tydfil, Glamorganshire, Wales, in 1834. His parents sent him to school until he was eight years old. Then he was forced to earn a living in the mines. At the age of ten he met with an accident to his left leg. Through the kindness of friends he was again placed in school. He chose to be a machinist, and spent several years in the large establishments in Wales. In 1863 he came to America, and three years later started in business as a manufacturer in Pittsburgh. In 1871 his works were removed to Alliance, O., and now employ over 600 men. Mr. Morgan's family consists of his wife, five sons and a daughter.

Smuggling Tourists.

A great many European tourists return to America each fall with more trunks than they took with them in the spring. The fact has frequently been commented upon, and now Congressman Hall, of Minnesota, has inaugurated a crusade against this well known abuse. He says that over 100,000 Americans visit Europe each year, and lay in clothing not only for themselves, but for their families, and smuggle it in without paying duty, and he proposes to place a tax on all wearing apparel brought to the United States from foreign countries by tourists. It came out not long ago that a number of large importing houses in New York and Chicago paid the expenses of people coming to America, finding it profitable to do so and to smuggle goods into the United States in this way. So that Congressman Hall is not altogether wrong in his crusade. The exodus to Europe, by the bye, promises to be much larger than usual this year.

Relics of Racine.

A retired diplomatist, the Viscount de Grouchy, has discovered among the papers of a notary in Paris several highly interesting documents relating to the affairs of the poet Racine. Among them, says the Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph, are his certificate of marriage and the inventory of his property and of his library. It is hoped that a careful examination of these papers will set at rest a long standing dispute as to which of two houses that both claim the distinction was the scene of Racine's death. The documents completely refute the prevailing idea that Racine died poor, as among them is an acknowledgment of a debt of 20,000 francs from a prince. Curiously enough, the inventory of the library shows that at the time of his death Racine did not possess a single copy of any of his own works.

Female Liberty in Africa.

Woman suffrage in Wyoming isn't a circumstance to the liberty of the gentler sex in some parts of Africa. In the oasis of Ghardaia, in the great desert of Sahara, the women when they marry draw up their own marriage contract, and if the man in any way breaks it the woman is immediately free and will have no more to say to him. The Ghardaia are Mohammedans, and by the law of the prophet a man may have four wives. The women, however, do not allow more than one, and polygamy is practically forbidden. They have also a peculiar objection to drinking and smoking, and in many contracts the husband is told that if he falls into the habit of "consuming liquors or using tobacco" he will be divorced.

Our Country's Flag.

June 14, 1777, the stars and stripes were adopted officially as the ensign of the United States. Its stripes are the number of the original colonies which separated from the mother country in 1776. Its stars have increased in number until they crowd the blue field. The territory over which it waves in triumph has widened from year to year until it stretches from ocean to ocean. The three millions which hailed its birth with cheers have grown to sixty. And almost all this increase has been peacefully gained. Texas is our only trophy of conquest by war. Wide and fair as is our land, it never could have been filled with its wonderful people, unless enterprising men had harnessed steam to the work. Of this great Republic the central portion is the heart, and in ten of its best states the Burlington is the main railroad artery. If you want to travel anywhere in the West, write first to W. J. C. Kenyon, general passenger agent, St. Paul, Minn., for information, stating what trip you wish to make.

A SUNDAY BATTLE

The Bloody Daylight Assault Which Was Made By Longstreet at Fort Sanders.

Three Thousand Confederates Stormed a Bastion But Got No Farther Than the Ditch.

Lieut. Benjamin Was the Hero of the Day and He Rapidly Won Promotion.

From five to ten rods of ditch from the front of the fort, the men in Fort Sanders surmised what the enemy was planning to do. Every foot-hold on the exterior slope was pared off, the ditch was widened and rifled and on duty along the parapet at the ticklish hours of twilight and dawn to welcome assailants in due fashion. A happy thought of Lieut. Benjamin's placed another obstacle in the way of the enemy. Along the front of the fort was a field of pine stumps, where the trees had been cut off two feet from the ground. Benjamin, with his men, would telegraph wire about the stumps, stretching it between them just high enough to trip soldiers on the march. An abatis of brush was made under the screen of a ridge, so as to be unseen until assailants were almost upon it.

For some reason the Confederate attack was made at the first streak of dawn, leaving but little time for the artillery prelude. It was on Sunday, the day of countless big enterprises in war, some lucky, some just the contrary. The Confederate batteries fired a few signal shells at the fort and tossed a few more into the lines beyond it, and were then called off their exciting game by the high command. Suddenly three lines of men in gray, 1,000 Mississippians and 2,000 Georgians, from McLaws' veteran division, rushed from their cover, 300 yards from the goal, and headed for it at double quick. They moved on noiselessly, without yelling or firing a shot, but with their bayonets ready for execution the instant the parapet was reached. When fairly under way the column was in a jumbled mass instead of deployed lines, as soldiers should move to the assault. The northwestern bastion of the fort formed a salient angle and reached out, as it were, toward the Confederate lines. In their haste to be first on the works, and possibly because of the confusion over the tangled wire episode, the heads of the three columns converged at the angle. On the edge of the ditch everything came to a halt, but none of the men were cool enough to fire through the embrasures upon Benjamin's artillerists and on the riflemen above on the parapets. The fire of the fort was soon silenced under these telling short range shots and the Confederates far in the rear believed that it had surrendered.

An awkward wait it was there under the muzzles of Benjamin's guns; but that wait, deep and dark as the bank, they moved beyond, slippery with a freezing rain, how could men jump and climb and fight off opposition at the same time? The officers and the color bearers leaped down into the ditch and tried to scale the bank. They men initiated their valor, leaped in and ranged themselves at the base of the high bank to make human scaling ladders, and some few climbed on the shoulders of their fellows until they reached the top. The flags of the Thirtieth and Seventeenth Mississippi and of the Sixteenth Georgia were made fast on the parapet, and again and again the men around them were shot.

In the midst of hasty efforts to build defensive works around the city the Confederates appeared in force about a mile beyond the outer fortifications, on the south, on Nov. 17, bent on going straight into Knoxville. There was really little in the way of their doing so on that route, except about 700 Union cavalry led by Gen. W. P. Sanders in person. Sanders commanded a full cavalry division, but he remained at the point of danger to see it out. The handful of men with him were not to act as a foil while their infantry comrades were getting things in trim behind them. With the enemy closing in and the breastworks and batteries unfinished, Burnside's engineers asked for a day's grace at their labors. The general referred the matter to Sanders, who said yes, without of course consulting Longstreet as to his intentions. The day's grace was to be up at midnight of the 18th. During the night of the 17th Sanders' men built a breastwork out of fence rails, sent their horses to the rear and awaited the issue with the other party.

It so happened that Longstreet was anxious for a speedy attack, and his leading soldiers ran into Sanders' rail pile early on the 18th and drew back with countless broken shins. Then artillery was brought into play, the rails were knocked into splinters, and a Confederate column charged upon and overpowered the brave cavalrymen. Sanders was mortally wounded while he stood erect, head and shoulders above the flimsy breastwork, over which bullets were flying like driving hail. His courage stimulated his followers and they buffeted the enemy until darkness drew on, and by that time the breastworks and redoubts around the city were nearly completed.

Directly in rear of the spot where Sanders fell, and at the most salient point south of the town, there was an old Confederate fort which the Union engineers were busy remodeling during Sanders' plucky fight on the outposts. As soon as news of his heroic death was carried back the work was named in his honor.

The ruling spirit in Fort Sanders was Lieut. Samuel M. Benjamin, Twenty E, Second United States Artillery. Benjamin commanded the artillery in the fort, ten or twelve ordinary field pieces. About 300 riflemen belonging to the Seventy-ninth New York Highlanders, the One Hundredth Pennsylvania Roundheads, and the Twentieth Michigan were distributed about the fort, which was an irregular quadrilateral averaging 100 yards' length on a side. The work was located at the angle where the line of defense on the north and west met, and its capture by the Confederates would carry down the adjacent Union lines running east and south from it. It was faultily placed and poorly constructed, but such as it was the defenders had to make the best of it.

The Confederates found out that Fort Sanders was the key to Knoxville and devoted ten days to preparations for attack upon it. Three cannons belonging to Alexander's crack artillery corps were placed in battery to fire upon the work at short range. Four pieces were elevated upon skids so as to rain down shells vertically inside the parapet, at Fort Sanders, and four long range guns were placed on a hill a mile and a half away, having a range to rake lengthwise the trenches adjacent to the fort on the south. Ordinance enough, it would seem, to make dust out of a log and earth fort in a few minutes. But this was not all. At the supreme moment, after bombardment had done its work, a storming column of infantry, followed by horse batteries, was to press through the gap and sweep whatever the artillery fire spared around the fort or beyond it. The fort once passed, then on to the reserve lines and through them to the town.

The men in Fort Sanders surmised what the enemy was planning to do. Every foot-hold on the exterior slope was pared off, the ditch was widened and rifled and on duty along the parapet at the ticklish hours of twilight and dawn to welcome assailants in due fashion. A happy thought of Lieut. Benjamin's placed another obstacle in the way of the enemy. Along the front of the fort was a field of pine stumps, where the trees had been cut off two feet from the ground. Benjamin, with his men, would telegraph wire about the stumps, stretching it between them just high enough to trip soldiers on the march. The general referred the matter to Sanders, who said yes, without of course consulting Longstreet as to his intentions. The day's grace was to be up at midnight of the 18th. During the night of the 17th Sanders' men built a breastwork out of fence rails, sent their horses to the rear and awaited the issue with the other party.

It so happened that Longstreet was anxious for a speedy attack, and his leading soldiers ran into Sanders' rail pile early on the 18th and drew back with countless broken shins. Then artillery was brought into play, the rails were knocked into splinters, and a Confederate column charged upon and overpowered the brave cavalrymen. Sanders was mortally wounded while he stood erect, head and shoulders above the flimsy breastwork, over which bullets were flying like driving hail. His courage stimulated his followers and they buffeted the enemy until darkness drew on, and by that time the breastworks and redoubts around the city were nearly completed.

Directly in rear of the spot where Sanders fell, and at the most salient point south of the town, there was an old Confederate fort which the Union engineers were busy remodeling during Sanders' plucky fight on the outposts. As soon as news of his heroic death was carried back the work was named in his honor.

The ruling spirit in Fort Sanders was Lieut. Samuel M. Benjamin, Twenty E, Second United States Artillery. Benjamin commanded the artillery in the fort, ten or twelve ordinary field pieces. About 300 riflemen belonging to the Seventy-ninth New York Highlanders, the One Hundredth Pennsylvania Roundheads, and the Twentieth Michigan were distributed about the fort, which was an irregular quadrilateral averaging 100 yards' length on a side. The work was located at the angle where the line of defense on the north and west met, and its capture by the Confederates would carry down the adjacent Union lines running east and south from it. It was faultily placed and poorly constructed, but such as it was the defenders had to make the best of it.

The Confederates found out that Fort Sanders was the key to Knoxville and devoted ten days to preparations for attack upon it. Three cannons belonging to Alexander's crack artillery corps were placed in battery to fire upon the work at short range. Four pieces were elevated upon skids so as to rain down shells vertically inside the parapet, at Fort Sanders, and four long range guns were placed on a hill a mile and a half away, having a range to rake lengthwise the trenches adjacent to the fort on the south. Ordinance enough, it would seem, to make dust out of a log and earth fort in a few minutes. But this was not all. At the supreme moment, after bombardment had done its work, a storming column of infantry, followed by horse batteries, was to press through the gap and sweep whatever the artillery fire spared around the fort or beyond it. The fort once passed, then on to the reserve lines and through them to the town.

The men in Fort Sanders surmised what the enemy was planning to do. Every foot-hold on the exterior slope was pared off, the ditch was widened and rifled and on duty along the parapet at the ticklish hours of twilight and dawn to welcome assailants in due fashion. A happy thought of Lieut. Benjamin's placed another obstacle in the way of the enemy. Along the front of the fort was a field of pine stumps, where the trees had been cut off two feet from the ground. Benjamin, with his men, would telegraph wire about the stumps, stretching it between them just high enough to trip soldiers on the march. An abatis of brush was made under the screen of a ridge, so as to be unseen until assailants were almost upon it.

For some reason the Confederate attack was made at the first streak of dawn, leaving but little time for the artillery prelude. It was on Sunday, the day of countless big enterprises in war, some lucky, some just the contrary. The Confederate batteries fired a few signal shells at the fort and tossed a few more into the lines beyond it, and were then called off their exciting game by the high command. Suddenly three lines of men in gray, 1,000 Mississippians and 2,000 Georgians, from McLaws' veteran division, rushed from their cover, 300 yards from the goal, and headed for it at double quick. They moved on noiselessly, without yelling or firing a shot, but with their bayonets ready for execution the instant the parapet was reached. When fairly under way the column was in a jumbled mass instead of deployed lines, as soldiers should move to the assault. The northwestern bastion of the fort formed a salient angle and reached out, as it were, toward the Confederate lines. In their haste to be first on the works, and possibly because of the confusion over the tangled wire episode, the heads of the three columns converged at the angle. On the edge of the ditch everything came to a halt, but none of the men were cool enough to fire through the embrasures upon Benjamin's artillerists and on the riflemen above on the parapets. The fire of the fort was soon silenced under these telling short range shots and the Confederates far in the rear believed that it had surrendered.

WELCOME!

We are right glad to welcome I. O. O. F. delegates to the State Grand Lodge, who assemble here this week in regular annual session. It is a good thing to let outsiders know just how progressive Duluth is, and it wouldn't be a bad idea to see the Finest Clothing House in the Northwest.

Well, perhaps they will. You will at any rate. You're after the sights. We want you to make capital out of your visit. We argue it something like this: Here's a store bigger (and bigger by far) than every other. It keeps everything that men and boys' wear. It is enterprising, pushing, successful; and there's a reason why Duluth people are proud of it and do more trading here than anywhere else. You won't go far wrong if you follow the Duluth people.

Prices! Well, there's plenty of them on paper. Our's are in the store.

Summer Suits and Furnishing Goods are very active now because of the indications of very warm weather. Prices are so little on some things the wonder is where our profits can be made, except—we are not so anxious so much to make money now as we are to make our name a household word for reliable goods and our store the best known in the Northwest. That's queer business you think. It's trade logic—sound and solid.

We never tire of doing for out of town people what they would do for themselves could they get to the store. Shopping by mail is easy, simple and practicable. Send for catalogue and try it.

BLAINE MEN AHEAD

At Least They Claim to Have a Clear Majority of Twenty For Blaine.

No Doubt That They Have Made Inroads on the Harrison Southern Delegations.

They Also Assert They Have a Majority on the Committee on Credentials.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 7.—The Blaine men are more confident this morning than even last night and their program is said to be to compel a showing at the earliest possible moment, with a view of disintegrating the Harrison column. The argument is that when it can be shown that the president has not a majority of all the delegates the break will come. After the national committee adjourned this morning the Blaine leaders held a conference at which Emmons Blaine was present. This morning a report was current that Mr. Boutelle had accepted the nomination. Mr. Boutelle could not be found to confirm the report but at the headquarters it was stated that Mr. Boutelle or some other of Blaine's friends had what was equivalent to such a letter and that it would be produced at the proper time.

The renewed confidence of the Blaine men is said to be due to the inroads made upon the Harrison Southern delegations, owing to the missionary work of the majority of the New York delegation yesterday and last night. For the first time figures were given at the Blaine headquarters this morning. It was said that the canvass of votes showed a clear majority of twenty for the Maine man, and the desire to demonstrate this fact to the convention is supposed to account for the report that a test vote will be forced as soon as possible. The Harrison managers, on the other hand, were equally as confident that a copy would show a majority in favor of President Harrison. Land Commissioner Carter said there were 321 delegates that would be for him in any storm that may blow.

To this statement, Mr. Michener gave his assent with frankness and heartiness. The result of the vote of the Tennessee delegation last night, by which H. Clay Evans was defeated for re-election as a member of the national committee, was admitted as unpleasant surprise to the Harrisonites. They had claimed at the very lowest fifteen votes in the delegation, but the balloting showed only eleven for Evans, whose candidacy represented the Harrison side of the contest. The results of the meetings of the state delegations yesterday in the selection of members of the delegations was also a disagreeable surprise to the president's friends. In two or three instances at least the Harrison men, though in control of the delegations by a considerable majority, permitted the Blaine men to fill the important position of members of the committee on credentials. This was notably the case in Wisconsin and South Dakota.

Both sides claim to control the committee on credentials and whichever way it stands, the majority will probably not exceed two. Upon the composition of this committee depends to a large degree the foundation of the permanent roll. It is conceded to be an almost inevitable losing fight to antagonize the verdict of both the national committee and the committee on credentials before the convention. The Harrison men, according to a statement made this morning, will not attempt to display their strength till the determination of the vital issue presents itself.

It was said this morning, that in consequence of the reported inroad upon the Southern delegates by the friends of Mr. Blaine, the Harrison people had sent the greater number of the colored delegates to Lake Minnetonka to spend the night. The crowd on the streets began to turn toward convention hall shortly after 10 o'clock and an hour later there was a struggling mob about the big exposition building trying to get in.

ROOM FOR ALL COMERS.

Minneapolis Has Accommodations for Many More Visitors.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 7.—Shortly before 10 o'clock there was an impromptu review in front of the West hotel. The Eau Claire, Wis., club began it. Wearing linen dusters with pearl buttons and carrying canes with little flags at the end, which unfolded as they drilled, they marched past headed by their band. They were quickly reinforced by the Iowa Republican club with their white linen uniforms and their parti-colored umbrellas. Other clubs in grey and brown and blue and scarlet uniforms followed, each preceded by a band, and altogether they made the scene decidedly lively.

Nevertheless in spite of all the hurly-burly, Minneapolis is beginning to feel itself disappointed. Great as the crowd is, it is not so great as was expected and falls short of that for which preparations were made. The West hotel has 400 unused beds stacked up in its corridors and the managers say they could accommodate at least that number of guest; over and above those they now have. No one is seen running around hunting a square meal. On the contrary there seems to be quite sufficient accommodation for all comers and in spite of the showery weather all appear to be having a good time. Unless today's arrivals change this condition of things, the gloomy predictions as to the capacity of Minneapolis to handle a national convention will fall to the ground.

NOT SO MUCH HURRAH.

The Great Enthusiasm of Yesterday Not Repeated Today.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 7.—The attempt to revive, in the hotel corridors this morning, the enthusiasm and hurrah of yesterday was not a success. Occasionally bands and uniformed clubs marched through the corridor of the West, making it lively for a time, but though there was a big crowd in the corridor at all times, no one seemed inclined to shout. A query from a tall stout gentleman concerning "the matter with James G. Blaine" at 10 o'clock evoked one half hearted assertion that the man from Maine was "all right," but no one seemed much interested in either the question or the response.

The North Dakota people added to the Blaine enthusiasm on the street shortly after 10 o'clock. They started out from the West hotel in a column of four carrying red, white and blue plumes. The Young Men's Blaine club of Cincinnati made a fine showing a little later as it marched down Hennipen street in an open column with colored umbrellas. A minute later he announced which was scheduled to arrive about 10 o'clock. It came in with lithographed pictures of the Michigan candidate held aloft and a brass band in the lead. The Alger shout echoed through the corridor of the West hotel for a half hour and then subsided.

CONTESTANTS SEATED.

A Loss of Thirty Votes in the Harrison Column.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 7.—The national committee remained in session until an early hour this morning and disposed of the business of contested delegations pending after the Alabama and Mississippi cases were acted upon. All the contestants were seated, the result being a loss of about thirty votes in the Harrison column. This is an average of the assertion of both sides, the Blaine men claiming a gain of forty and the Harrisonites conceding twenty. The contest will be resumed before the committee credentials and continued if necessary before the committee.

The New Hampshire delegation, as was intimated, have revised their poll and now stand four for Harrison, the remaining votes scattering. This was a gain of one for the Harrison column. The Maryland delegation stands fourteen for Harrison and two for Blaine on the first ballot.

The Montana delegation has elected A. J. Seligman as its chairman.

The Minnesota delegation stands as follows on the question of the candidate for president: For Blaine—Eustis, Jacobson, Snyder, Pillsbury, Hilliard, Dunn, Berg, Thompson, For Harrison—Yale, Shell, Dunnell, Day, Daugherty, Jackson, Hall, Newell, Doubful—Comstock, Wallan.

FASSETT NAMED.

and returned to his seat. Then there were cries for McKinley and amid great enthusiasm, he bowed his thanks. The cries of "McKinley," mingled with the cries of "Ingalls," continued until the chairman said, as he brought down his gavel, "no coercion in a Republican convention." A minute later he announced that the convention would proceed with the regular order of organizing this temporary gathering.

Then Mr. Clarkson presented the following list of temporary officers: Secretaries—Charles W. Johnson, Minnesota; F. N. Arthur Holt, Ohio; Carson Lake, New York; George Lee, Colorado; J. O. Browne, Pennsylvania; W. P. Brown, Tennessee; Arthur S. Clark, Massachusetts. Assistant secretaries—Theodore F. Simmons, California; Philip Q. Churchmen, Delaware; Aaron Bradshaw, District of Columbia; Charles Hopkins, Ohio; Charles S. Morris, Kentucky; A. W. Morrison, Maryland; J. W. Dimmick, Alabama; J. B. Walker, Montana; T. V. McAllister, Mississippi; Otto Grannue, New York. Reading clerks—Charles F. Harvey, Minnesota; J. H. Stone, Michigan; J. S. Kenyon, New York; H. S. Oliver, North Dakota; Charles Curtis, Kansas; Charles Partridge, Illinois; J. B. Miles, Wisconsin; W. E. Riley, Kentucky.

The report was adopted and Mr. Sewell of New Jersey was recognized to offer a resolution for the appointment of one member each of committees on permanent organization, rules and order of business, credentials and resolutions from each delegation. Pending this, the chairman said that if there was no objection, the convention would be governed for the time by the rules of the last Republican national convention. No objection was offered. The clerk read Mr. Sewell's resolution for information, it was quickly adopted, and the secretary began immediately to call the roll of appointment of the committees. The first state called was Alabama. The chairman of the delegation asked that the state be passed until the contesting delegations could have a conference.

The call then proceeded without interruption until R. W. Thompson, of Indiana, arose to announce the committee-men from his state. He was received with applause, which was repeated tenfold when John James Ingalls, of Kansas, stepped into the aisle and, leaning on his umbrella, prepared to announce the committee-men from Kansas. Mr. Ingalls as he made the announcement and then (always exact) said, "I send the written slip to the secretary for precaution." Other favorite sons were greeted enthusiastically. When Louisiana was reached, a delegate arose and the names had been read and entered a protest. There was no one of the men named, he said, whose seat was not contested. The chairman declared the protest out of order and the roll call proceeded. William Warner, the Republican nominee for governor of Missouri, was greeted with enthusiasm.

Warner Miller, who read New York's list in a tone which brought the warning "louder" from the galleries, was applauded. Governor McKinley received an ovation of applause when he read ex-Governor Foraker's name on the list. There was some slight applause. "Mahone, Virginia" was cheered and especially from the galleries. Ex-Senator Spooner of Wisconsin was applauded. When the District of Columbia was called there was a pause and no response. The roll call dark form of Perry Carson was looked for in vain. The secretary repeated the call, again without response, and passed to the next on the list. But after an interval of some minutes a direct line of delegates of the national capital were again called and Perry Carson responded.

Just before adjournment, Wm. Murrell, a colored delegate, formerly of Louisiana, afterwards of Washington City and now claiming to be an internate from New Jersey, rose and insisted upon the chair ruling upon a point of order relating to his credentials, but was summarily sat upon by the chairman and told he was out of order.

A motion to adjourn till tomorrow was then put and carried, and at 1:52 o'clock to the music of the band, those of the delegates not members of the standing committees slowly filed out of the hall and the committee-men adjourned to their respective committee rooms to proceed to business.

RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE.

Foraker Elected Chairman and Another Blaine Man Secretary.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 7.—The committee on resolutions met immediately after the adjournment, and elected J. B. Foraker, of Ohio, chairman, and George Thompson, of Minnesota, secretary. A motion was made to appoint a sub-committee of five each on the tariff, silver, the race question and other matters. Some suggested "the election question" for "the race question." Foreign relations was proposed and accepted as a subject for consideration by a sub-committee. The Nicaragua canal was proposed, but the proposition did not meet with favor. The committee, after a few minutes' session, took a recess till 8 o'clock this evening, when it will meet in the Lumberman's Exchange.

The committee on permanent organization organized by the selection of

A SUPERB RESIDENCE.

The Beautiful Row of Homes on Piedmont Terrace Now Complete.

The beautiful Piedmont terrace built by R. S. Munger is finished and the grounds about it are being arranged in excellent taste by one of the finest landscape architects. These houses are far ahead of anything in Duluth or in the state. They are very large and conveniently arranged, having sixteen rooms with English basement. They are finished in natural hardwoods, beautifully carved, and are provided with hot and cold water, electric bells and lights, etc. Several of these houses are still unrented and families wanting the finest of accommodations at remarkably low rent would do well to look them over.

The view from these houses is probably the best in Duluth, embracing a wide range of harbor, lake and city, and before autumn the street railway company will have a direct line of Piedmont terrace. The fourth street station of the incline is but two blocks from the terrace.
